

POETRY
THE MOUNTAINEER.

DEDICATED TO THE SCOTTISH NATION.
By Robert Dibb, Wharfedale Poet.

Young Harry was as brave a lad,
As e'er in Scottish garb was clad;
And oft—when a boy at home Amidst his native woods would roam,
With fearless heart would climb the rock,
Or dare the tempest's mighty shock—
In search of mountain deer.

And Isabel, a beautiful girl!
With neck o'erhung by many a curl;
Had when in childhood's happy stage,
Been rescued from the torrent's rage,
By his bold arm had been preserv'd,
When other forms—with fear unnerv'd,
Had watch'd her midst the waves!

And nobly she repaid that youth,
By kindness, courtesy, and truth!
Her gentle heart amidst the storm,
Would cheer around his manly form,
And though the lightning's vivid spark, Might hover round their fragile bark—Yet hope was on her brow!

Oh! she was beautiful and bright—
The bud of promise and delight!
Her spotless mind by virtue bent, Seem'd in her mountain cot content;
She sigh'd not for a distant strand,
But lov'd her own dear native land,
Her Harry, and her God.

But soon these halcyon days were past,
And cruel wars commenced at last:
The sons of Scotland, bold and brave!
With gallant hearts advance to save Their home, their country, and their fame,
And strike the tyrant's power with shame,
Who dare invade their land!

Young Harry sought his Isabel,
To bid a long—a last farewell!
They meet—they part—it reeks not how—Unruffled is that youthful brow;
And she, like Scotia's daughters free, Lives but for love and liberty,
With maiden's fondest zeal!

The banners flutter—hark! the cry Of "Forward!" echoes to the sky!
The flower of Scotland leads the band,
Their gallant Chieftain waves his hand;
He gazes on that beautiful maid,
Then draws his trusty Highland blade To strike in Freedom's cause!

They meet—'tis on the battle field,
But sons of Scotland never yield!
Their hearts are brave—their sinews strong—
They charge—they charge—the patriot song—
Of "Victory" thunders from the plain—Napoleon's host is rent in twain,
The Thistle waves on high!

But where is he? the brave, the good,
Poor Harry, weltering in his blood!
That lion heart with valour crown'd
Too premature a grave had found!
Without a tear, or sad farewell To Scotland, home, or Isabel—He fell at Waterloo!

A HEROIC EPISTLE
From the Marquis of L-sd-ne to Lord John R-s-s—ll on the Present and Future prospects of National Education.

Arise, my Lord John, quit all meaner themes,
The games of courtiers, and the sports of Queens.
Let Erin's wrongs no more provoke thy scorn, Abjure the ballot, and forsake the corn;
Give all thy genius to the infant nation,
And let thy soul explode in education.
Guide of my youth, companion of my sire,
May all thy changeful schemes may breast inspire!

Priestley! grammarian, chemist, bard, divine,
Teach me each settled truth to undermine, Shake every church, demolish every creed, Reject each fact, dissect where all agreed;
Still let thy genius o'er my labours wave,
And Horsley's ghost shall quiver in his grave.

See where they come, each bishop's thorne they shake, Cath'lics totter, deans and chapters quake—
Each mother hears her babe, with sweet surprise, Lisp'ing to heresy, and prattling lies:
From bench to bench the soft confusion rises,
And Babel's jargon titters on their tongues.

Knights of the black rod! erst an injured throng,

CHARTIST BRAVERY.—On Thursday last, at a Chartist meeting held in the Bazaar, Glasgow, Bailie Craig, of Kilmarnack, gave the following advice as to the tactics which the Chartists ought to pursue, in the event of their coming in contact with the military:—"In such a case," said the gallant Bailie, "PUT THE WOMEN IN THE FRONT RANK, AND THEN THE MILITARY WILL NOT DARE TO FIRE!"
This MANLY proposal was loudly cheered by the assembled Chartists.—Scotsman.

TOM DIDDIN'S HORSE.—The dramatist had a horse which he called "Gra-phy." "What a silly name," said Ox-berry. "Not at all," said Tom; for when I bought him, it was Buy-a-Gra-phy; when I mounted I was Top-a-Gra-phy; and when I want him to trot its Gee-ho-Grphy!"

Men was formed with an understanding, for the attainment of knowledge; and happy is he who is employed in the pursuit of it. Ignorance is in its nature unprofitable; but every kind of knowledge may be turned to use. Diligence is generally rewarded with the discovery of that which is more valuable. Human learning with the blessing of God upon it, introduces us to divine wisdom; and while we study the works of nature, the God of nature will manifest himself to us; since, to a well-tutored mind, "The heavens," without a miracle, "declare his glory, and the firmament showeth his handy word."—Bishop Horne,

The combined armies of Austria, Prussia, and the Germanic confederation amount, according to the calculations of a Frankfort paper, 1,400,000 men, 700,000 furnished by Austria, 400,000 by Prussia, and 300,000 by the other states of the confederation.

We are credibly informed that when the rumour of Sir Herbert Taylor's death was conveyed to the Home-office, Lord John Russell immediately sent to the clergyman of St. Katharine's demanding the charter of the foundation. His lordship's zeal, no doubt, was extremely praiseworthy in endeavouring to provide for some whig-radical friend before his proximate loss of office; but it would, perhaps, have been rather more decorous to have waited till he had ascertained whether the report of Sir Herbert's death were actually true. But the whigs are famed for selling the skin of the bear before the animal is caught,—and, whether reputation is to be won or lost, the rapacity which characterizes their acts is ever predominant.—Morning Herald.

CONSERVATIVE TRIUMPH AT OXFORD.— Oxford, March 30.—The Conservatives of this borough have this day achieved, a triumph as unexpected as it was decisive.
The Death of Mr. Cook caused a vacancy in the East Ward, the most Radical ward in Oxford, they (the Radicals) having always returned their candidates by large majorities at the head of the poll. In the present case, Mr. Jones, a Dissenter, the Radical Candidate, had 24 hours' start of Mr. Griffith, the Conservative.— The election of the latter was conducted by Mr. W. Brunner, the new Conservative agent, under whose auspices this glorious victory had been achieved, the number at the close of the poll being for Mr. Griffith, 147; Mr. Jones, 138; majority 9. On the number being announced the bells of the city church were set ringing, and carriages proceeded around the town amidst the enthusiastic congratulations of the Conservative party.
A Conservative Association is about to be formed, with Mr. Brunner as agent, and Oxford will ultimately redeem the character it has lost in returning one Radical to parliament.
