

MAYOR GAYNOR RESTING EASILY

Continued From Page One. In Brooklyn, who was going with him and asked me laughing if I minded posing for another group photograph for the benefit of a newspaper man, who had arrived late, when I heard Gallagher yell out something and saw the flash of his gun, and then the shooting and the struggling began.

Mr. Edward's Story. Commissioner Edwards said: "I was standing with Corporation Counsel Watson, Dr. Lederle, the health commissioner, Commissioner Thompson of the water department, and Mr. Adamson, the Mayor's secretary, on the forward deck, when the assassin approached.

"We were wishing the mayor bon voyage. As we chattered I heard a shot directly back of us. It was immediately followed by another. We turned about and saw this man with a revolver smoking in his right hand and not three feet away. He had the revolver almost against the mayor's back. Mr. Watson grabbed the fellow's pistol hand and held it upwards. The man began to struggle desperately.

"I then seized him around the body and slammed him against the railing. I did not care much what I did with him, and for a moment I thought he was going overboard. He continued to fight furiously, but a well-directed blow or two took the fight out of him.

"It took three or four minutes to rush him down the gang plank and into the auto. The crowd was murmuring and crushing and it was a hard task. As we got him into the machine the fellow looked about him and said, so all of us heard him distinctly: 'He robbed me of my bread and butter and that's all there is to it.'

Another Description. Mr. Adamson said that his picture of the scene was too blurred to admit of detailed description, but nevertheless he described with vivid fragmentary sentences what occurred.

"Mayor Gaynor had turned to give me a last word of instruction," he said. "We were standing on the port side, near the companionway, and just under the bridge. I saw him start under the impact of the bullet. I leaped to get him in my arms, and as I did so turned so that I came face to face with the assassin.

"In the excitement of the moment it seemed to me that the second shot was aimed at me. But I do not know. All was confusion and I recall only arms waving and shouting and through it all the muzzle of that revolver pointing toward us. In any event, the crowd nearby had so leaped upon the man that his aim was impaired.

"Don't Kill Him Bill." "I do not remember any of the rest, except that when I looked up again, Mayor Gaynor was half fainting in my arms, and Gallagher was on the deck beneath a crowd of shrieking, screaming men. Some one was dragging at Commissioner Edwards' arm.

"Don't kill him, Bill," was the cry I heard. "Through the seconds of that scene, that seemed to pass like hours, I could hear that voice calling. They tell me that Edward's big hand had closed about Gallagher's neck in a grip of a vise. He would have choked him to death right there if others present had not restrained him. Some one called out: 'Let's lynch him.'

"By that time they had dragged Edwards off, and he had regained some of his calm. 'Get me a pair of hand-cuffs,' he ordered. There were no cuffs at hand, but Henry Goering, one of the local detectives, passed Edwards his chains. They were nipped around Gallagher's wrists and he was London is Sorry.

London, Aug. 10.—The London morning newspapers print full reports of the attack on Mayor Gaynor, and express deep concern and earnest wishes for his recovery. "The Standard" in an editorial says: "Mayor Gaynor ranks high in the class of men who can be spared from the world's work. The completion of his career is a matter of international importance, and his loss would be a calamity to his own country."

Expressed No Remorse. Gallagher is a short, thick set man, weighing close on to 200 pounds. He smoked a cigar cheerfully after his arrest and at no time expressed sorrow because of his deed. On the other hand he repeated stolidly that the mayor had robbed him of a five-dollar bill and that he had meant to kill him. He is 56 years old. It was a clergyman, he said in a signed statement issued in Hoboken after his arrest, who pointed the mayor out to him before he fired the shot.

"The man appeared perfectly rational and sane to me," said Commissioner Edwards tonight.

Delay At Hospital. Mr. Thompson severely criticizes the conduct of affairs at St. Mary's Hospital. "When we arrived," he said, "we had to ring the bell for four or five minutes before any one responded. Then a nurse came to the door and said that there was no doctor in at the times. A little later an interne came out, smoking a pipe and seemingly not much concerned, and when I said the mayor of New York has been shot and is here, he replied: 'I will telephone and see what I can do. I will try and get someone immediately.' Apparently there was not a doctor at the hospital and Rufus and I had to be held to undress the mayor. While we were doing that Dr. Wm. J. Arlitz, a city visiting physician, arrived. He wanted to probe for the bullet, but Rufus and I objected to his doing that until New York physicians arrived on the scene. While we were waiting for them Mayor Gaynor turned to me, smiled, and said: 'Don't let them discourage me, Thompson. The mayor was put in a private room and cared for by the surgeons of the hospital who arrived about one half hour to three quarters of an hour after our arrival.'

The New York physicians attending the mayor are Dr. George B. Brewer, Dr. George D. Stewart and Mr. Chas. N. Dowd. In addition there was summoned Dr. James W. Parish, of Brooklyn, the Gaynor family physician.

May Be Tried in New York. After his arraignment before Recorder McGovern, this afternoon, Gallagher was sent to the Hudson county jail, at Jersey City, where he sat in his cell tonight contentedly smoking a pipe and seemingly pleased with

TWO CHILDREN DROWNED IN M'CRACKEN'S LAKE AT GOLDEN GROVE YESTERDAY

Allan Johnson and Percy Smith Went to Death While Small Boy Watched.

They Were Rowing and Lost Oars--Boat Started to Drift Out Into Lake and They Leaped Overboard--Both Bodies Recovered

A tragedy which cast a pall of gloom over the entire neighborhood occurred at Golden Grove at noon yesterday, when two small boys, Percy Smith, aged 12, and Allan Morrissey Johnson, aged 10, jumped from a boat and lost their young lives by drowning in the waters of McCracken Lake, which is only a short distance from their homes.

Whether driven to desperation through fear or from a determination to reach the shore in some manner, young Smith jumped from the boat into the water, and quickly disappeared below the surface. The sight of his playmate struggling helplessly in the water evidently caused the Johnson boy to lose his head and he too stood up in the boat and plunged into the water and quickly followed his little friend to the bottom of the lake. Upon being told of the occurrence by the younger Johnson lad, a searching party was quickly sent out and the bodies were soon recovered.

OPTIMISM AND ACTIVITY IMPRESSED THIS VISITOR

Australian Business Man Now in City Draws Interesting Comparisons Between His Country and Our Own.

Among the visitors to the city yesterday was James Macdougall, who is one of the largest manufacturers in Melbourne, Australia. Mr. Macdougall is on a tour of the Dominion, chiefly for pleasure, but incidentally he will study our trade conditions and possibilities and various commercial industries.

Trade conditions in Australia, he said, were very good, and the labor party had taken over the reins of power, there was a general air of confidence in all industrial enterprises. Although himself a staunch Conservative, he had great faith in the present labor government. So far, he said, they have shown themselves capable of wise legislation and are gradually winning the confidence and united support of the entire country.

HUB SWEEPED BY SERIOUS FIRE

The first alarm for the sixth end lumber yard fire was sounded shortly after six o'clock by a passerby. Hearing the call of the box just outside his door, Chief Barrington of the Boston fire department in charge of the repair station, situated directly opposite Blacker and Shephards yards, on Albany street, looked out and seeing a mass of flame, sounded quickly a third alarm, skipping the second.

Although not officially so declared the fire appeared to be under control at 10 o'clock. The burning embers, however, continued to blaze for hours afterward and will smoulder probably for days.

The flames becoming of a baking intensity, the firemen were forced temporarily to abandon engines numbers 15 and 22. No horses could be rescued to enter the curtain of flame and pull out the apparatus. A small corps of volunteers, firemen and onlookers responded to a call and managed to drag the engines to safety.

PROVINCIAL AGENT WILL HELP SEND BUSINESS OUR WAY

New Brunswick's "Man in London" to Boom Trade.

Good Results Follow Local Government's Aggressive Policy in Opening New Offices in London.

A. Bowder, the representative of New Brunswick, in London, England, has written to A. B. Wilnot, Provincial superintendent of immigration, that produce dealers and others frequently make inquiries at his office with a view to establishing a connection with produce exporters in New Brunswick.

Mr. Bowder, whose office is located at 37 Southampton St., London, W. C., writes that he would be glad to hear from exporters wishing to establish a business connection in London, and that he will undertake to answer all inquiries and gather any information possible. It is intended to make the office of assistance in developing trade, and Supt. Wilnot of Church street, St. John, is prepared to attend to inquiries on this side.

Many Inquiries. "I am glad," writes Mr. Bowder, "to be able to inform you that as a result of the press notices of the formal opening of the office here, I have received many inquiries from all parts, and also personal applications. The exhibit of plaster casts of N. B. fruit in the window has attracted much attention, and several men from Covent Garden have dropped in to make inquiries as to the possibility of shipping fruit from New Brunswick."

They Want Our Fruit. "There is undoubtedly a great opening for New Brunswick fruit in the London market, and I hope this year the business will be put on a sound footing. There are doubtless several firms in St. John who would be pleased to establish a business with a good firm on this side. The one thing we require is more literature to advertise the province, the products and resources."

Another Press Tribute. The Manchester Guardian prints the following on the occasion of the formal opening of the N. B. office in London: "The latest of the Canadian provinces to open shop, so to say, in or near the Strand, is New Brunswick, whose new premises in Southampton street were opened this afternoon by Lord Strathcona. These colonial shops, of which so many have been added of late, give a bright and interesting piece of color to the pavement picture. The New Brunswick one, whose hand was rolled up today, is as pictorial as any. Its settler's cottage which forms the background is more picturesque than anything you will see at the Garden Suburb. The New Brunswick settler seems to live in a novel of his own days, and the photographs of his occupations suggest that he has an equally pleasant time outside. You see him shooting snipe or cooking trout over a camp fire, and doing other things you cannot do in the Strand. The cottage is set in a panorama of fruit trees in blossom and beautiful flowers. The interior of the shop is still rather empty, but the remarkable exhibit of New Brunswick at the Brussels exhibition is to be advertised in the Strand."

While in the city Mr. Macdougall called upon James Pender, whom he met when the latter was attending the congress of the chambers of commerce of the Empire, held in Australia last year. The laboring men of Australia are opposed to and elected over socialists by crushing majorities.
