A CREMATION ODE.

She lay down with an eager ear
To Joseph's declaration,
And heard him say with earnestness
Decent upon cremation.

I want no sentiment, he said;
No "I'm sure the matter"
Just set my legs free, and let
The balance go to heaven.

And when you go, it shall not be
To molder in a casket;
To lie in a coffin, and let you see
To lie in a casket.

What! have your Susan Jane, said she,
And when you go, it shall not be
To molder in a casket;
To lie in a coffin, and let you see
To lie in a casket.

Why then, said Joe, I should not lose
A single jot or tittle;
You'd better be much in haste
Than you'd be much in haste.

You'd frigate the earth, my love,
And when you go, it shall not be
To molder in a casket;
To lie in a coffin, and let you see
To lie in a casket.

Oh, do not scatter me, she cried,
But put me in your pocket, dear,
Or hide me in your pocket.

It cannot be, I'll never see you,
And when you go, it shall not be
To molder in a casket;
To lie in a coffin, and let you see
To lie in a casket.

And so poor Susan Jane and weeps:
At last she knew her fate,
Just settled that she should become
The sweetest spot in heaven.

NOTES AND NEWS.

UNITED STATES.

Samuel Gettings, of Springfield, Ohio, is the father of twenty-two children, and yet is not happy!

Why shouldn't Vermont girls be sweet when their fathers make five million pounds of maple sugar a year.

A Louisiana sportsman bagged five chipmunk birds, a gopher, a muskrat, a possum, and a polecat—all in one day's shooting.

Fifteen years ago a Washington gentleman scratched his name on a gold dollar, and sent it on his travels. He has never seen it since.

A National Convention of butter manufacturers is to be held in Indianapolis next week, to take measures for "upgrading" their industry.

A great interest has been excited in the examination of dams throughout New England, and the situation of things is breaking loose more frequently.

"Five dollars is the fine for out-door profanity in Marion, O." But a lady can't get her father-in-law's coat with the Boston, Mass., and in the city of St. John, N. B., and in the city of Montreal, Canada. Call on us.

Prof. Swing is just beginning to realize the benefits of perspiration. A magnificent tabernacle capable of seating 5,000 people is to be erected for him by his congregation in Chicago.

The Cornell University crew is as follows: Miss Thomas, 75; Miss Ladd, 75; Miss Tilden and Miss Bruce, 77, with Prof. Bryant (Harvard) as coxswain. The odds are in favor of Cornell.

A case of parental pride has occurred at Marblehead, Mass., where the progeny of triplets have had the little darlings on exhibition every evening in a public hall for a fee of fifteen cents a ticket.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank, of Philadelphia, had a little misunderstanding the other day. The balls have been extracted, and the matter is settled. The one that remains in her head is causing considerable anxiety in the family.

"For twenty long years," says a New Jersey paper, "the wolf stood at the poor widow's door." To keep a wolf standing that long is nothing less than a brief season, and the situation of Bergh is called to the circumstance.

A competent committee of civil engineers reports, after investigation, that the Mill River dam was not an "engineering work" at all. The professionals wash their hands of the whole thing. It looks more and more as if someone ought to be hanged.

The Boston brokers, or at least some of them, had quite a scare the other day, because a torpedo exploded just as they were getting awarded in Congress street. Of course there was a stampede and much fright as if the bulls and bears had suddenly come into head-breaking collision.

The Seneca tribe of Indians now consists of one old horse, a chief and three gallons of whiskey. A few more setting suns—a few more moons—a brief season, and that three gallon jug will join its comrades in the happy hunting grounds.

The San Francisco Bulletin says there is an assurance of an unprecedented wheat crop in California this season. "Some estimates place the surplus for export, during the ensuing year as high as 800,000 tons. This quantity is perhaps extravagant.

RESOLUTION WAS PASSED.

Whereas, We view with alarm the steady increase of paperism within the bounds of our State, thereby increasing the burden of our taxpayers; and at least three-fourths of such paperism is caused either directly or indirectly by the use of intoxicating liquors, therefore, resolved, that we will use our influence, as we may think best, for the discontinuance of the use of intoxicating liquors.

A young widow advertises in a Cincinnati paper that she has an income of three thousand dollars a year, and will marry any man, young or old, who possesses the same amount of money, and can produce a certificate of good character. The young widow wants to marry. Had she been satisfied with a man of means without any character, or a man of character without any means, she could have been a pyromaniac ere this. But to expect a fellow to have both in this age of wickedness and extravagance is altogether too much.

From the advance sheets of Mr. Francis H. Underwood's novel, "Lord of Himsell," to be issued by Messrs. Lee & Shepard, Boston, on Saturday, it is easy to see that the claims of the novel to popularity are not alone the most interesting and eventful love story, with the accessory lights and shades needful to preserve the unity of the story. It is a narrative of life in Kentucky, at a time before the war, when the conservative spirit of the inhabitants was unshaken. It exhibits no little originality of style, is thoroughly interesting in plot, and evinces a considerable skill in the portraiture of character.

The New Orleans physicians of the 10th 1/2 street, in Louisiana, have discovered a new symptom of disease. Not to put too fine a point on it, the cotton crop cannot be so plentiful as it has been, unless the patient has a certain number of symptoms of disease.
