The Jaeger Sanitary Slippers

KEEP THE FEET WARM AND DRY.
ALLOW EVAPORATION. PREVENT CHILL.

The temperature of the extremities exercises most important influence on that of the whole body. The Jaeger woollen cloth "upper," lined with porous undyed woollen material, maintains a comfortable, equal temperature, preventing excess of heat and protecting from chill and too rapid cooling.

The foot is, for the first time, enabled to breathe and to throw off those secretions which, when retained by an impervious covering, are a source of discomfort and ailments.

Everyone who desires health and comfort should make a trial of them.

Ladies' "Teck" Style, sizes 2 to 6, $1.75

CIVIC REFORM.

Our Merchants and Civic Reform.

Those who read the report of the Cambridge, Mass., "No-License Campaign in recent issue of 'News,' must have been struck with the general good results that followed in the increase of population, trade, etc.

These results, however, were but natural, and what were to be expected, and yet, how many may be heard to say that the closing of the saloon would be injurious to business, that the liquor traffic fosters trade. The result in the increase of trade, the sales of boots and shoes, and clothes and groceries, upon the closing of the saloon in Cambridge, proves the fallacy of such a theory.

When men cease to spend their money for drink, it necessarily follows that they have more money with which to pay their rents, feed and clothe themselves, and their families. If our merchants would only reflect upon this, we think they would be more urgent in requiring the removal of the open saloon which puts temptation to drink, in the way of the weak who cannot resist it.

Unfortunately there are too many men in business, perhaps they ought not to be called business men, who, when a moral issue is at stake, such as seeing to the enforcement of a liquor law, where it exists, think nothing of sacrificing the best interests of the community, rather than offend, and thereby lose the trade of one or two of those whose living and patronage is dependent upon a traffic, which they as business men and good citizens should help to abolish. A striking illustration of this occurred some time ago in a neighboring town.

Rheumatic Warped Limbs

Mrs. H. Wills, Chesley, Ont., says: "My boy was all crippled up with rheumatism. Although we doctored, he was in this way for about one year, and the pain was terrible. Reading of many cases where Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills had cured rheumatism, we got a box. Before they were half gone he began to improve and is now quite well. I am very glad to recommend them to others. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box."

The ministers and temperance people, reinforced by the merchants and citizens generally, waited upon the hotel and saloon keepers, requesting them to close their bars, and go out of the traffic, which was corrupting so many of the youth of that place, demoralizing society, breaking hearts and ruining homes (the record is everywhere and always the same) with the understanding that they meant business, and that if their request was not conceded, then more stringent and effective measures would be employed. Well, what was the result? Simply this, that seeing the people meant business, or appeared to mean business, the bars were closed, but not for long. A system of boycotting was immediately instituted by the hotel men, who began to buy their supplies in other towns and cities, with the results anticipated—that one, and then another of the weak-kneed merchants and would-be citizens, as soon as this was done, and they began to feel the thing a little, caved in, and offered compromises, forgetting that "they" enslave their children's children who make compromises with sin."

These, however, took the risk, and are now taking the consequence of their mean and cowardly conduct, which today finds rum flowing in that town as freely as ever, blasting and withering everything in its course.

How weak the faith and dim the vision of men who cannot see that trade lost in such a way, must eventually return through proper and more legitimate channels, the only thing needed on their part being the courage to endure a little temporary loss for the cause of truth and temperance.

Lowell must surely have had such men in view, when he penned the words:

Then to side with truth is noble,
When we share her wretched crust,
Ere her cause bring fame and profit
And 'tis prosperous to be just.

Then it is the brave man chooses
While the coward stands aside,
Doubting in his abject spirit
Till his Lord is crucified;
And the multitude make virtue
Of the faith they 'had denied."

Truro is one of the most centrally located towns in the Maritime Provinces, and has many attractive features, and were it not for the undeniable reputation which it has in the matter of intemperance, would be much more of a residential centre than it is.

The educational advantages are such that many would like to bring their children here to be educated, but they are deterred by their fear of the open saloon.

Remove this objection, which is a very real one to those who have the moral welfare of their children at heart, and give the town a name for sobriety, cleanliness and good society, and its desirability as a place of residence, will be very greatly enhanced.

People drawn to the town by such considerations as these, from the most desirable class our town could wish to have.

Hence, we believe, that if on no higher ground than the increasing of population, and the advancement of the town's material interests, our business men should unite in trying to make our town morally, what it is already physically and educationally, the most beautiful and attractive in the Provinces, and there is no better way to do this than by closing the saloon.

Cambridge is in evidence, and what Cambridge did, Truro can do. Why not give it a test?
