

what matters are now in the thought. - Will the opportunity ever come again? This evening, I must be content to wait and see. You have made this wait possible, along with the accomplishment of what I should feel was the better for it, so I am striving to add patience to what I may possess that is worth possessing, and shall endeavour not to disappoint you.

I have been wondering if there would be any possibility of my arranging to join in 17728

England a little in a few weeks on our Indemnity Resolutions Investigation Act. I have spoken in the States at different times upon it, and realized a little.
Lord Grey once thought the former -ment might be our to assist in the drafting of some measure, but there are other & larger measures in their hands just now. I only mention it, in case an opening should present itself. If it became that my father & mother are aging, and that great changes must come ere long
