

one of the companions of St. Ursula, in 1675. The skull of St. Justus, in 1662. A parcel of the Holy Cross, in 1667. A parcel of the Crown of Thorns, brought from Paris in 1830.

Opposite the Chapel of St. Ursula is the site of the dwelling occupied by Madame de la Peltrie, the foundress.

Descending Garden street is the English Cathedral, erected in 1804 on the site of the Church of the Recollets. - It is built in Roman style of architecture, and is filled with mural monuments, one of which is erected to the Duke of Richmond, a former Governor of Canada, whose remains lie near the pulpit, and who died in Upper Canada, 20th August, 1819. Another monument is erected to General Monckton, who fought under Wolfe at the capture of Quebec in 1759, and who died on 10th May, 1830. The tattered colours of the 69th Regiment are placed in the Church.

The Basilica Minor, hereto raised by Pio Nono in 1874, was consecrated in 1666 by Monseigneur de Laval, an eminent divine, who became first bishop of the colony, and who was founder of the Seminary School, which has added to itself a University, bearing the name of the founder.

Leaving the Basilica and the Seminary Chapel, the drive will be continued to the Grand Battery, from which a magnificent view of the St. Charles Valley, the Village of Beauport, and the ranges of the Laurentides can be had. There are fifty guns mounted on the Battery which command the entrance to the Harbour. In 1775, Arnold marched his men along the streets immediately below, and suffered a defeat. Quite close, where Hope Gate was, is the building once occupied by General Montcalm. Descending from the Battery by Palace Hill, the visitor should not omit to visit the ruins of the Intendant's Palace, which are now used as vaults for the storage of beer, manufactured immediately facing the ruins. The extent of the building can easily be traced, as, although during its occupation by the troops in 1775, under Montgomery and Arnold, it was bombarded from the city and destroyed by fire, there are sufficient remains to judge of the once magnificent structure.

Passing over Dorchester Bridge, which crosses the River St. Charles, called before the St. Croix and also the Cabir Combat, the tourist reaches the Village of Beauport, near which is the Beauport Asylum. The line of road is beautified by rows of white cottages, fronted by small patches

Carter's Little Liver Pills.
