Of my mother's voice in song As she sung in sweetest accents, What I since have often read-" Hush, my dear, lie still and slumber, Holy angels guard thy bed." As I listen'd, recollections, That I thought had been forgot, Came with all the gush of mem'ry, Rushing, thronging to the spot;

And I wander'd back to childhood, To those merry days of vore. When I knelt beside my mother, By this bed upon the floor. There it was with bands so gently Placed upon my infant head, That she taught my lips to utter Carefully the words she said : Never can they be forgotten. Deep are they in mem'ry riven-" Hallowed be thy Name, O Father Father ! thou who art in heaven."

Years have passed, and that dear mother, Long has moulder'd 'neath the sod, And I trust her sainted spirit Revels in the home of God : But that scene at summer twilight, Never has from mem'ry fled, And it comes in all its freshness When I see my trundle bed. This she taught me, then she told me Of its import, great and deep-After which I learned to utter "Now I lay me down to sleep:" Then it was with hands uplifted, And in accents soft and mild,

Does anybody believe that birds of the air go about begging for nests? that foxes ever die for want of holes? or that foundling asylums and homes for indigent femsles could be found in the forest communities of animals, if we searched ever so closely and understood ever so exactly the secret of their ways ? Do you have any trouble about a falling off in the statistics of reproduction? And has there ever been a Malthusian among them who thought the population too great for the supporting capacity of the earth? We are of more value than sparrows and it is certain that at least as good provision of room, and work, and food must have been made for us as for them ; if we do not find and accept ours as readily as they do theirs, it must be our own fault.

It cannot be that the element of unhappiness and failure which escaped from Pandora's box was a soul; that simply because we are raised by that immortal passession above all other animals, we must of necessity crowd, stumble and blunder, and go hungry and naked, while they are clothed and fed and content. To think this would be blasphemous; and in the original tongue to blaspheme means simply te be stupid.

The trouble is that we walk wrong foot foremost. And the worst of it is that this state of things has lasted so long that it has become organic and hereditary. It has reached such a pass that parents make it almost impossible for their children to ask or to know which of their feet is intended to go foremost.

When a man and a woman are heard gravely discussing whether they shall send their boy to a scientific school, and make a chemist of him or to a theological seminary, and make a preacher of him; or to a machine-shop, and make a mechanic of him; or to a college, and make a doctor of him: I shudder, knowing that the chances are against anything being made of him. which way they like.
