A SHORT INTERVIEW.

A number of years ago a somewhat sensational journalist was making a flying trip around the world for her newspaper. She stopped in San Francisco. Among other assignments for her brief stay there was a visit to Robert Louis Stevenson, who was then living in that city.

Calling at his home she was told that he was too ill to see anyone that day. She wrote him an appealing little note on the back of her card, explaining that her schedule would not permit her to remain over to see him later, and that as an interview with him was one of the chief objects of breaking her journey in California, she begged for at least two minutes' conversation.

Permission was granted for her to ascend to his room, and when she saw him propped up in bed with pillows, looking pitifully white and frail, she was much shocked and regretted her persistence. For once her usual assurance deserted her and she stood silent and shy before the writer.

Stevenson, too, seemed at a loss, and after a moment or two of embarrassed silence during which his hands were fumbling beneath the counterpane, he drew forth an unfinished woollen stocking, and beginning feverishly to push the steel needles in and out, he asked:

"Do you knit?"

"No," answered the reporter, and glancing at the mantel clock she realized with chagrin that the interview was ended.—Youth's Companion.

"See here," said the theatrical manager, "you must drop your overbearing behavior toward the other members of the company."

"Indeed!" replied the leading lady, haughtily. "I'm the star, am I not?"

"Well, yes; but just remember that you're not a fixed star."—Jester.

"Hiram, what profession do you think our John ought to follow?" "I dunno," replied Farmer Kornkob, "John is rather handicapped. The only profession he thinks he is naturally adapted to is that of a capitalist, and I can't see where the money's coin' from."

When Nelson's famous signal, "England expects every man to do his duty," was given at Trafalgar, a Scottish sailor complained to a fellow-countryman: "Not a word o' puir auld Scotland!" "Hoots, Sandy," answered his friend, "the Admiral kens that every Scotchman will do his duty. He's just giving the Englishers a hint."—Independent.

Skurry—No, sir, I've never seen a successful man who talked too much.

Skidd—Hold on. Do you see that prosperous looking fellow just crossing the street? Well, that man is worth $100,000, and he completely disproves your theory.

"How so?"

"He's a barber."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A HORSE COUGH.

Harry, aged four, while visiting his grandparents in the country, heard a mule bray for the first time. "Goodness!" exclaimed the little fellow, "that horse has whooping cough awful."

In a little village in Illinois the school mistress saw one of the little boys crying. She inquired the reason.

"Some of the big boys made me kiss a little girl in the school yard," was the rep.

"Why, that was outrageous! Why did you not come right to me?"

"I didn't know you would let me kiss you," he said.—Chicago Tribune.

"So your daughter intends to pursue her studies abroad?"

"Yes," replied the self-made man "she pretends she does, but between me and you I don't believe she stands the least show of overtakin' 'em."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A bashful cowboy, returning from the plains to civilized society after an absence of several years, fell desperately in love at first sight with a pretty young girl whom he met at a party.

On leaving the house that evening the young lady forgot her overshoes, and the hostess, who had noticed the Westerner's infatuation, told the young Lochinvar that he might return them to the girl if he wished. The herder leaped at the chance and presented himself in due time at the young lady's house. She greeted him cordially.

"You forgot your overshoes last night," he said, awkwardly handing her the package.

"Why there's only one overshoe here!" she exclaimed, as she thanked him and opened it.

"Yes, Miss," said he, blushing. "I'll bring the other one to-morrow. Oh, how I wish that you were a centipede!" And with that he turned and sped away down the street.

"What's the trouble?" asked the Madrid citizen.

"We've been obliged to arrest this man for less-majeste," answered the policeman.

"But he's a very peaceful and inoffensive person."

"Yes. But he inadvertently dropped a remark that he thought he had the smartest small boy on earth."—Washington Star.

THE TENDER-HEARTED BUTCHER

"It must have been a very tender-hearted butcher who killed this lamb," said the cheerful boarder, pausing in the sawing of his chop. "Why?" kindly asked the inquisitive man. "He must have hesitated three or four years before striking the fatal blow."—London Tit-Bits.

Masculine Guest—Isn't that Freddie Fetherpyt, sitting over there, plunged in thought?

Feminine Guest—Yes. At an affair like this every one is expected to do something unusual, you know.—Puck.

—CHARLOTTE E. STINSON, in The Dilineator.

It is said that a French painter one day visited the Salon in Paris in company with a friend who was a member of the Committee of Selection, and who had been instrumental in securing the acceptance of the painter's work. When the artist came near his picture he exclaimed:

"Good gracious! You are exhibiting my picture the wrong way up."

"Hush!" was the reply. "The committee refused it the other way."—Kansas City Star.
