BEDDON A STARTLER.

Wants to Abolish the New Zealand Upper

The Marquise de Fontenoy has the following in The Chicago Daily Tri-Inasmuch as the Prime Ministers of bune:

Inasmuch as the Prime Ministers of Great Britain's self-governing colonies hold their office from the sovereign in the same way as the Prime Minister of England, Arthur Balfour, the announcement which has just been made by the Right Hon. John Seddon, the Premier of the great dependency of New Zealand, to the effect that he has made up his mind to abolish the upper chamber of the Colonial Legislature as being "in the nature of a useless, fossilized and obsolete piece of machinery," is, to say the least, startling.
John Seddon enjoys in a marked degree the favor of the royal family in England, especially of the Prince and Princess of Wales, who relish his homely, straightforward speech. his sturdy independence and his contempt for titles which led him to reject the knighthoods and the baronetties which were offered to him, and the fact that a man occupying such a position should inaugurate so fadical a departure as the abolition of the New Zealand "House of Lords," or Senate, is calculated to give encouragement and impetus to the movement already inaugurated in England for the abolition of the couragement and impetus to the movement already inaugurated in England for the abolition of the House of Lords at Westminster as now constituted, which is also alleged to be "a useless, fossilized piece of machinery," altogether out of keeping with modern principles of popular Government.

There are even some members of the English House of Lords, including the Earl Russell, Lord Coleridge, and several others, who are in favor of its abolition while where and several others, who are in favor of its abolition, while there are plen-ty more of the peers on its roster in favor of its being radically reorin favor of its being radically reorganized in such a way as to make it more representative of the people and to exclude therefrom men whose only right to a seat and to a vote is based on their birth, and whose svil character, stupidity and absence of any serious interest in the welfare of the country render them manifestly unsuited for the role of a legislator.

In New Zealand the Upper House is divided into life members who were appointed by the Government prior to 1891 and into ordinary members who, appointed subsequent to that date, merely hold office for a term of seven years. Since Seddon has been Premier he has secured the nomination of no less than half a dozen men of the working classes, representatives of the labor element, to the Upper House of the Legislature, and the New Zealand Parliament is, I believe, the only one in the world where labor has its delegates to the upper chamber. In New Zealand the Upper House is upper chamber.

HONOR FOR "LORNA DOONE." Unveiling of Memorial in Exeter Cathedra to D. R. Blackmore.

On the occasion of the unveiling of the Blackmore memorial in the cathedral Eden Philipotts said there were paramount qualities that underlay all Blackmore's books. A supreme dramatic artist, he showed that goodness was man's only hope, that evil, sooner or later, reaped the whirlwind. Blackmore upheld the purest ethical ideals; he indicated the virtue of courage and humility, the propriety of tolerance, the value of self-reliance, and the distinction of patience, that rarest modern gift. He rated men not by their achievements, but by their desires, by things they held good and strove for. Lifted On the occasion of the unveiling of they held good and strove for. Lifted above the least shadow of selfishness by his human sympathy he surveyed mankind with mercy, but with jus-

The Dean of Exeter, in accepting The Dean of Exeter, in accepting the memorial on behalf of the chapter, said that Blackmore was a true child of nature. His memory would be perpetuated in that cathedral alongside that of the late Dr. Temple, fellow students together at Blundell's School, who had both exercised great influence upon their generation. Dr. Temple had his early religious teaching at the hands of

The memorial took the form of a beautiful stained-glass window in the cathedral, the magnificent central fane of the county which the author of "Lorna Doone" loved best. The figures filling the panels are respectively those of Jonathan, David and Samson. The tablet, beautifully carved in Carrara marble, bears a medallion containing what is said to be a good portrait of Blackmore. The inscription states that the tablet and window are a tribute of admiration and affection, mentions that Blackmore was educated at Blundell's and at Exeter College, and that he was the author of "Lorna Doone," "Springhaven" and other works, He was born in June, 1825, and died in January, 1900. At the foot of the tablet are the following lines from Cradock Nowell:

"The Member" for Australia.

An English paper says Mr. Henniker Heaton is sometimes called the member for Australia, and seldom anything so parochial as the mere member for Canterbury. His M. P. has before now been interpreted member for the Post Office by the intelligent foreigner, wholly incredulous of the existence of the nominal Postmaster-General. Mr. Henniker Heaton has achieved so much that he may be excused for talking about being weary when he is the halest of men who boast the accumulated wisdom of fifty-six years. When he talked about retirement some little time ago he had to take back the word. Bexhill-on-Sea knows the week-ends of Mr. Henniker Heaton, and among his varied diversions is counted a love of pictures. Indeed, he is often to be seen, perhaps partly allured by the name, in what is called "the postage stamp roons" at the Royal Academy.

A DRY SHAMPOO.

How to Clean the Hair Without Dan-ger of Catching Cold.

"I've got to shampoo my hair, and, oh, how I dread the cold that is cer-tain to follow!" sighed the delicate girl. "Do you dry it carefully?"
"Always, but it makes no difference.

I never wash my hair without suffer-ing from cold and neuralgia."
"Well, then, why don't you try a dry shampoo?"

"No water?" "Not a drop. Have several clean brushes, an old silk handkerchief and some good bay rum. Part the hair through the middle and again across behind the ears. Brush gently in long even strokes, but firmly enough to reach the scalp and remove all dust and dandruff; then separate the hair in small strands, shaking each well to dislodge any remaining particles of dust. Brush again, using another clean brush, and finish by wiping each strand with a clean, soft handkerchief. You will be delighted to see how bright the hair is. Apply bay rum to the scalp with a small sponge and rub it in well with the finger tips. Bay rum is a valuable tonic as well as an aid in keeping the hair soft and dry. A better preparation even than bay rum is the prepared rum and quinine which any druggist can put up for you."

"It sounds awfully comfortable," said the delicate girl. "I'll give it a trial anybow."

644t For Yat." Professor Skeat in his Etymological

Processor Skeat in his hymological sictionary explairs the expression as "blow for blow" and says that it is a corruption of tip for tap, where tip is a slight tap. He refers to Bullinger's works, i., 283 (Parker society), the translation of which is, I believe, dated 1577. May I be permitted to direct attention to the fact that "tit for tat" had already appeared at an earlier date in John Heywood's "Proverbs," 1546? Since tit for tat (quoth I) on even hand Set is set, Set the hares head agaynst the goose jeblet. Pp. 109, 110, Reprint, 1874.

A Dangerous Trade.

The dangers of work in a white lead factory are described by a medical authority in a discussion of the cause and effects of lead poisoning. Most of the cases occur among the workers in the department where the preparaon by what is called the "Dutch process," in which the lead, in sheets, is placed on the top of pots filled with acetic acid and converted first into the subacetate and finally decomposed by carbon dioxide emitted by tar. In mov ing the carbonate clouds of white lead dust are easily caused by careless han-dling on the part of the workmen, and m spite of the respirators worn by them much of the poison is taken into the system.
