St. Martin, Que., May 16, 1893. G. C. RICHARDS & CO. Gentlemen, Last November my child stuck a nail in his knee, causing inflammation so severe that I was advised to take him to Montreal and have the limb amputated to save his life. A neighbor advised us to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, which we did, and within three days my child was all right, and I feel so grateful that I send you this testimonial, that my experience may be of benefit to others. ## LOVE'S TRIUMPH.

Continued.

With a tantalizing smile and rocking nod of her golden head, she passed out of the library and down the long hall to the small room that belonged to Aunt Lucy.

The door stood open to allow the gentle breeze to pass through, and she entered noiselessly and stood by Aunt Lucy's side. With a start the faithful old servant rose from her easy chair, her motherly face beaming with delight at the sight of her young mistress.

"You do not forget ole auntie! Why, bress you sweet face, it makes sunshine all ober de room! Take de little rocker, Miss Goldie, dat I used to rock you in when you was a wee, toddling baby."

"Ob, no, auntie! you must keep the rocker, and I will take this wee seat at your feet, as I used to do when a child."

Goldie took Aunt Lucy by the hand and gently placed her in the low easy chair, noting with distress how old and feeble she had become; then, seating herself on a bright colored ottoman at her feet, she clasped her small hands across the lap of her faithful old nurse, her bright eyes sparkling with expectation.

"Ob, auntie, there are so many things I want to ask you! First, tell me about the Maud Cousin Erle loved so well, and please tell me what happened her," she said, eagerly.

"Well, I 'clare to goodness! Jes' hear de chille!" said Aunt Lucy, in a frightened tone. "There is no harm in talking to me of Cousin Erle's wife, auntie; but of course, it would not do to speak of her to others. Now, begun away back to the time when he was married, and tell me all about it."

"I doesn't know, honey, if I's right or not in talking ob de dark days ob Rosehill; but if you wants to know you'll find it out somehow; an' I spects ole auntie can tell it 'bout as straight as any one."

When Massa Erle was twenty-one he brought Miss Maud here a bride. Der wasn't no one good 'nough for him in de country, I spects, for he went 'cross de water for her—ober in England, dey called it. She was only sixteen, and she was so beautiful, she was de handsomest an' de dearest bride de sun eber shined on! Well, arter Miss Maud came here she took a notion to work, and massa would do but I should be her maid; an' many is de time she said to me, 'Lucy, I'm too happy to lib; dis can't las' forever, an' bress you soul, chile, it didn't las' long."

"What happened then, auntie?" questioned Goldie, breathlessly, as Aunt Lucy paused, and cast her eyes upon the floor, as if in deep thought.

"Ob, honey, what happened den almost breaks ole auntie's heart to tink ob. In jes' three months from de day ob de wedding my beautiful young missus an' Massa Erle both gone, but not taged. Ob, chile, it was de sorrowfulest day we eber had at Rosehill—cause ob de disgrace."

"Disgrace, auntie? Why did they leave home?" interrupted Goldie, eagerly.

"Why, Miss Goldie, you see, we didn't sactly know 'bout Massa Erle's stamp ob all to hisself, but we found out 'nough to know dar was a man mixed up with it somehow."

"Do you think, auntie, that Erle's bride was a bad woman?" asked Goldie, reflectively.

"Bless your heart, honey, no, I don't. If eber de good Lord put de stamp ob it to hisself, but we found out 'nough to know dar was a man mixed up with it somehow."

"Do you think, auntie, that Erle's bride was a bad woman?" asked Goldie, reflectively.

Pretty

Is an adjective which seems to have become monopolized by the young lady at the typewriter. It is astonishing what an array of beautiful women are found in stores and on the streets.

In fact, the typical American beauty will be found sitting at the typewriter rather than loitering in a carriage in the park.

And yet this pretty young girl needs always to be reminded that "beauty is only skin deep," unless it roots in health.

When the health is undermined by womanly diseases, the luster soon passes from the eyes, the cheeks grow thin, the body loses its plumpness.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures diseases which weaken women and which destroy their strength and beauty. It establishes regularity, stops weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, cures female weaknesses.

"Several years ago I suffered severely from female weakness, proflapsus and menorrhagia, and used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with splendid effect," writes Fannie Shelton, of Washington, Iowa, not long since cured. "I have not had a return of the trouble for several years past, but if I should ever have any more of my lady friends, I always tell them to try a bottle, and if they are not benefited by it I will pay for the medicine. In every case they have been cured in a few days."

her hat and gloves, Goldie passed through the side door out upon the terrace which surrounded the three sides of the house, and after calling Carlo, who came quickly to her side, she went down the steps and across the smooth grass toward the rustic bridge.

Aunt Lucy looked longingly after her, then sunk wearily into her chair.

CHAPTER VIII.

MYRA TEASDALE.

We will leave the fresh mountain air and grassy slopes of Rosehill for awhile, and seek a poorly furnished room, in a close, gloomy street in the City of Philadelphia.

A tall, queenly looking woman, with a dark, lovely face, deep brown eyes, half languishing, half beseeching in their expression, and crimson lips a trifle full, is pacing hurriedly up and down the small room, her rustling silk trailing its richness over the faded carpet. She was a creature so rare in her queenly beauty as to seem entirely out of her sphere in the dingy and meagre apartment.

Some noise outside attracted her attention and she stopped a moment to listen, her well-shaped head, with its heavy coil of brown hair, bent forward, and her small, nervous hands clasped eagerly. The step she had thought familiar passed by her door, and she continued her restless walk, her eyes flashing angrily, and her red lips curled scornfully.

"How dare Grant treat me so!" she exclaimed. "It is full an hour past the appointed time. Does he think that I have nothing to do but await his pleasure? Ah! at last."

The Cause of Nervous Headache. This most distressing and common malady doubtless has its origin in some unbalanced condition of the nervous system. Probably the simplest, safest and most efficient remedy is Polson's Nervine. Twenty drops in sweetened water gives immediate relief, and this treatment should be supplemented by bathing the region of pain with Nervine. To say it acts quickly fails to express the result. Sold everywhere in large 25c. bottles.

COURT BRIGHT, No. 3448.

At a regular meeting of Court Bright, I. O. F. No. 3448, on the 22nd ult., the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God in his providence, to remove from the side of our dear brother Allan Ritchie his beloved wife, we hereby unite in extending to him our heartfelt sympathy, and our most earnest wish is that the God of all Grace may sustain our dear brother, and put around him and his children his loving arms."

Nervous Headache, Brain Fog, Dyspepsia.

The Sufferings of a Business Man Overcome by Worry and Exhausting Brain Work—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Cures.

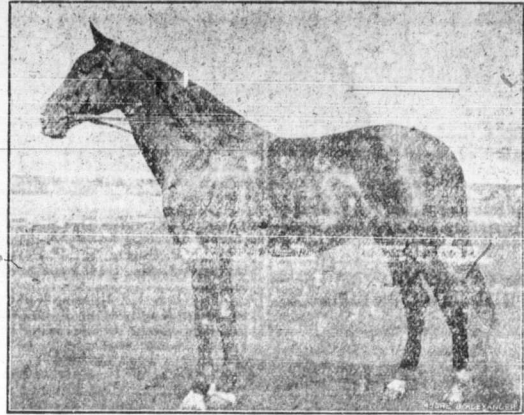

Sick, nervous headache and nervous dyspepsia or indigestion are usually found together, and have a common cause in an exhausted condition of the nerves. Modern headache powders are simply narcotics that deaden the afflicted nerves. They are harmful and frequently dangerous. The only way to effect a thorough cure is to restore the nerves by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. Joseph Geroux, 22 Metcalf street, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I was nervous, had headache and brain fog. I was restless at night and could not sleep. My appetite was poor and I suffered from nervous dyspepsia. Little business cares worried and irritated me. After having used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for about two months, I can frankly say that I feel like a new man. My appetite is good, I rest and sleep well, and this treatment has strengthened me wonderfully. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is certainly the best medicine I ever used, and I say so because I want to give full credit where it is due."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box; 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

KEARSARGE JR.

We here present the breedings of York a photograph of this beautiful stallion, showing his form, without check or appliance of any kind, which is faultless. At exhibitions he has taken eight first class prizes in competition with State of Maine and Maritime Provinces. He has size and style; his gait is wonderfully striking; his breeding is incomparably rich, commingling the most renowned blood of the thoroughbred and the trotting breed, who in a direct line hold the champion mark of runners or trotters at the present time, without a dilution of Wilks blood. It will prove vastly to the benefit of breeders to have this rich infusion blended in the coming horse. To that end I invite all interested in the improvement of the horse to call and learn fuller particulars and terms.

We guarantee you positively that the "Crest" don't break.
