CHARLOTTETOWN, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, TUESDAY, JANUARY 6, 1852.

THE PARTING SIGH. To Miss  The last time we parted, I functed when leaving, When I took thy fair hand to bid thee good bye; Though you smild, yet that smile was but faint and de Some heart-felt emotion call'd forth a deep sigh.

Alas has the heart that I fancied secure, Enshrin'd in the inmost recess of thy breast; Free, free from all sorrow, as tight and as pure, As the spirit that glows in the souls of the bless'd :

That heart that I fancied unclouded by care, Where one ray of affliction or sorrow ne'er shone; O ! to think it obscur'd by the chilling despair, That has darken'd each ray, that o'er beamed on my own !

How oft is the smile like the zephyrs that sweep, In soft marmur'd sighs o'er life's swelling wave; O'er our long-faded hopes, while in sorrow beneath The heart is as cold and as dark as the grave !

Hope beams with delight upon youth's happy hours, When in dreams of delusion we playfally rove; Through shades of enchantment, our path among flowers, And our dreams one unbroken elysism of love.

But those dreams of delusion too briliant to last, Alas, noon give place to life's troubl'd noon-day; When sud and care-worn, disgusted at last, We turn from the phantom of pleasure away !

Did some dream of the past in thy bosom awaken, Some long buried day-dream of love that oppress'd? Or some friend that the cold gloomy grave has long taken, That drew that low mournful sigh from thy breast?

Did some long-cherished dream to thy bosom return, Of youth's first pure love that had alumbering lain; Of some long cherish'd hopes which though blasted and torn, Yet in mockery return in their freshness again ?

There are sighs of despair and the bitterest anguish, And vows have been broken and mourn'd in tears; Fond heasts have been doom'd to wither and languish, And hopes have been blasted and turn'd into cares.

There are sighs bleat with tears when o'er life's stormy way, From its clouded noon-day we look mournfully back Oer youth's early vinions of love, and warvey, All the flowers that lie strew'd o'er the once shining track.

There are sighs when the summer of love has departed, And vanish'd and faded away like a dream; But from one so esteem'd, so belov'd and kind-hearted, Such heart-felt emotions have never been seen.

A WORD TO OLD MAIDS AND BACHELORS. "Men should not merry," it is commonly said, "unless they con, not, only maintain for themselves the social position to which they have been accustomed, but extend the benefits of that posi-tion to their wives and children. A Boston paper relates of Mr. Lee, a Methodist clergyman noted for his wit, that he was riding from Boston to Lynn, and on that road was overtaken by two Boston lawyers. The profession of each was soon known, and in reply to a query, if Mr. Lee ever made a mistake in his preaching, and if so, if he restlifted it: Mr. Lee answered, that he did make mistakes some innes, but if they were trivial, he did not step to correct them. "For instance," said the preacher, "I went to quote the text, 'All liars shall have their part in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone,' and by mistake I said, 'all laters,' and it was so nearly true, I did not think it worth while to correct it."

LOUIS NAPOLEON BONAPARTE.

-Either give me the means of insuring your prosperity, or choose another in my place. In 1930, as well as in 1848, you were treated as a vanquished army. After having branded your heroical disinterestedness, they distained to consult your sympathies and washes, and wavertheless, you are the elite of the nation. To-day, at this solema moment, I wish the voice of the army torheard. Vote, then, freely as citizens; but, as soldiers, do not forget that passive obelience to the orders of the chief of the Government is the proportion duty of the army, from the general down to the soldier. It is for me, who am responsible for my actions before the public wel-fare.

fare. As for you, maintain entire the rules of discipline and honour. By your imposing attitude assist the country in manifesting its will with calmass and reflection. Be ready to repress all attempts against the free exercises of the sovereignty of the people. Soldiers, I do not speak to you of the recollections attached to my mame. They are engraved on your hearts. We are united by in-discoluble ites. Your history is mine. There is between us in the past a community of glory and misfortanes. There shall be for the future a community of semiments and resolutions for the repose and grandour of France. (Signed) LOUIS NAPOLEON BONAPARTE. Palace of the Elysee, Dec. 2.

LOUIS NAPOLEON BONAPARTE. De Morny, The Minister of the Interior. Palace of the Elysee, Dec. 2.

SEA LIFE.—What can there be in the bare abstract, sea-life, that it is so all-surpassing, so very seducing? If a man, with re-verence be it said, be ford of any one pursuit natural to man or boyhood, he must resign it at sea; if he love angling, or archery, or belles, or billiards, or his children, or cricket, or dancing, or driving, or elegance, or eating, or his father, or family, or fishing or fowling, or gardening, or handing, or horses, or independence, or love, or music, his mistress, or his gasther, or news, or novely, or research, or racing, or shooing, or shoaing, or travealing, or tennis, or his wife, or—or—or—indeed any thing, in short, save sait beef and salt water, let him stay ashore—Society in India.

election. 5. A second Assembly formed of all the illustrious persons of the mation; a preponderating power, guardian of the fundamental part and of public liberty. This system, created by the First Consul in the beginning of the present century, has already given to France repose and prosperity. It guarantees them still. Such is my profound conviction. If you partake it, declare so by your suffrage. If, on the contrary, ycan prefer a Government without force, Monarchical or Republican, borrowed from some chimerical fatture, reply in the negative. Thus, hen, for the first time since 1804, you will vote with complete-knowledge of the fact, and knowing for whom and for what you vote.

knowledge of the fact, and knowing for wnon and the votes. If I do not obtain the majority of the votes, I shall summon a new Assembly, and lay down before it the mission I have received from yoa. But if yoa believe that the cause of which my asme is the symbol, that is, France regonerated by the revolution of '98, and organised by the Emperor, is still yours; proclaim it is be so by ratifying the powers I domand of yoa. Then France and Ex-rops will be preserved from anatchy, obstacles will be removed, rivalries will have disappeared, for all will respect, in the will of the people, the decree of Providence. Done at the Palace of the Elysee this 2d of December. LOUIS NAPOLEON BONAPARTE.

PROCLAMATION OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC TO THE ARMY. Soldiers !—Be proad of your mission; you will save the country. I rely upon you, not to violate the laws, but to command respect for the first law of the country—national sovereignty—of which I am the legitimate representative. You long suffered, like up, from the obstacles that prevented me doing you all the good I intended, and opposed the demonstrations of your sympathy in my favoer. Those obstacles are removed. The Assembly sought to impair the authority which I derive from the entire nation; it has ceased to exist. I make a loyal appeal to the people and the army, and I tell them —Either give use the means of insuring your prosperity, or choose another in my place.

PARIS, TUESDAY, Dec. 2, 4 o'clock. The President of the Republic was informed last night, that a meeting was held at General Changaraier's house, attended by M. Th ers, M. Baze, and others of the chiefs of parise, at which it was decided that the corp against the President should be made this very day—that is, that he should be president should be made this very day—that is, that he should be treated, the Assembly prorogued or dissolved, and no doubt, the Republic abelished. It was considered absolutely peccesary to take steps immediately. Proclamations were at once prepares to take steps immediately. Proclamations were at once prepared, addressed to the nation and the starty, in the former of which, the President explained his causes of compliant, and declared, that instead of employing itself in taking care of the interests of the people, the Assembly had only become a theatre of conspiracies and plots against him, the elect of the people. He restores universal suffrage, summond the people to assemble next moth in their considers to elect a new Assembly, its this new As-sembly he will resign his powers, and let the nation scresse its will neither electing or rejecting him. He proposes 10 years as the period which the Chief of State should retain power, aided by Ministers responsible to the Executive. He abolishes the Council of State, &c. WEDNERDAY, 5, p. m. Louis Napoleon reviewed a division of the army, and was enthu-sistically received by the troops and people, on the Boalevards. The President's proceedings are very popular in the Market-places which is a great point. At the Boars's the balls is, that he will' succeed. The fall in Fives was only 1f; 90 continued yesterday. The decree which was passed yesterday by the representatives who had assembled and the Market of the 10th Arrondisement, de-claring the deposition of the President of the Republic, was after-vard brought to the Court of Cassation, to have it confirmed. The Court assembled, and had just ratified the decree of the Assembly, when a message came from the Minister of Justice, ordering them been graced on further in the matter, and the judges immediately dis-tered on further in the matter, and the judges immediately dis-tered on further in the matter, and the place of the Quai dromay, and the 10th Legion of the National Guarde, which had been placed at their disposal by General Lauriston, has been dis-board.
