WEIGHED AND NOT FOUND "WANTING."

We need not here repeat again the story of the charge made by Mr. Ryan, who has taken such a fancy to the Surveyor Generalship, against Hon. Michael Adams. An outline of the inquisitorial process that sprang up out of that base and malicious charge has already been given in the STAR, so we shall not now bore our readers with a repetition. But here is the report of the committee who was charged by the Legislature with the task of searching out the fraud and neglect, if fraud and neglect existed. Be it remembered this report, too, was read and endorsed by Mr. A. G. Blair, Arch Persecutor in the base transaction:

The Committee to whom was referred all papers and letters laid upon the table of the House on the 24th March last by the Honorable the Surveyor General, of lumber cut in Gloucester County in the years 1877-78 and 1878-79, and of all lumbers seized in the same County during the year 1880, beg to report—
That they have carefully examined the said papers laid before them and examined under oath several scales and officers of the department, also persons engaged in lumber operations in said County during these years, and from these papers and the evidence adduced, they find that the department has exercised proper vigilance in protecting the rights of the Province and collecting the stumpage on lumber from the Government lands and no special favors had been accorded to any persons.
Committee room, 21st April, 1880.

W. B. BEVERIDGE,
A. A. DAVIDSON,
DAVID McLELLAN,
J. E. LYNOTT.

This is the report of four conscientious and intelligent men, but being of such a character it did not suit the depraved tastes of Mr. Blair. He had in his pocket a vile document, a kind of Report Extraordinary, not founded on evidence or fact, but upon theory and fancy. This he beseeched the House to allow him to submit, but there was only one answer to the application, and it rang through the House from both political parties, "No! Mr. Elder read from the journals to show the motion of Mr. Blair was without precedent, decent lawyers in the House pointed out how absurd and how dangerous would be the adoption of such a practice. And when the Surveyor General stood up, there was a breathless silence, for it was a man of stainless honor, before two unscrupulous men. He took the sympathy of the House by storm when he asked Messrs Blair and Ryan if they were not satisfied, they had now gone far enough in trying to blacken his name and plunder his reputation. Did not, he asked, a legal investigation of the most searching kind, satisfy their greed for his character? Would they now, finding the proof they courted had failed to convict him, rise higher still in their malice, and override practice and precedent, by placing upon the journals what was intended to attribute a guilt to him, that investigation could not prove? Mr. Adams' speech was manly and touching, and there was not a member present to whom good name was a prize that did not despise the persecutors, and sympathize with the innocent accused.

The affair ended, but conformably with justice and usage. The malicious theories and absurd deductions were cast into oblivion, and the Surveyor General came out as we anticipated he would come, bright as gold proven in the furnace. But the execrable malice that the persecutors tried to foist upon the House is not lost. It is sent to its congenial receptacle the St. John Sun, that hack of dishonor and every thing that is low and unmanly. Let it come: in the columns of the Sun is the only place for such baseness!

THOU SHALT NOT BEAR FALSE WITNESS, ETC.

We have been talking in this strain to our neighbors for some time past, but it has come to our own turn now to make reparation for bearing false witness against our neighbors. Some days ago it was reported up and down the town, and all over the Province, that Mr. Lawlor of Chatham had refused to accept the contract for putting up the Parliament Buildings—the same buildings by the way that little Robbie Ritchie wanted down in St. John—at the figures first named by him. We immediately wrote an article on the subject, considering the rumours of a reliable character, and also believing an exposition of facts to be our duty as a public journalist. We pointed out to the Government how it was necessary it should take some means to protect itself against building rings, by insisting on tender deposits as a guarantee of good faith. We pointed out that this would be unnecessary were not unscrupulous men like Mr. Killam abroad ready to form rings at any moment, to cheat the country, and delude the Government. The latter theory we still as firmly believe as we do any article of faith.

But to the point. We have met Mr. Lawlor, and the meeting was a little bit stormy. Mr. Lawlor felt aggrieved we should have published the article, and assures us he never had any intention of repudiating the contract. We are glad to know this is the case, and readily take Mr. Lawlor's word for the fact; and infer from the statement that he would be above leaving himself with ren like Mr. Killam.

Meanwhile let Mr. Lawlor bear in mind that we live in an age now when it is not assumed all men are innocent till the contrary appears, but quite the reverse. Every man is now assumed to be a rogue till it appears he is honest. So that Mr. Lawlor will see even had we published the article out of whole cloth it was only in the fashion of the public good. Meanwhile we regret the rumors ever got afloat, while we from henceforth and till the contrary appears shall put implicit faith in Mr. Lawlor.

SOMETHING QUITE VILE.

A few days ago the Provincial Secretary was seized with sudden illness, and was taken to his bed. It happened to be two days before the resolution fixing $75,000 for a building in Fredericton was brought down. The next day's Sun with characteristic brutality insinuated that Mr. Wedderburn was only "playing sick," thus closing its infamous paragraph:

We don't suppose that the Secretary's indisposition affects his responsibility to his constituents in this connection.

At the time the base editor penned the above, Mr. Wedderburn was lying very ill of a burning fever, and gentlemen of every political class were hastening to see him.
It is a base man that will carry political feeling into the private circle, and in the opposition ranks, John Livingstone stood alone in this despicable insinuation. The most active of Mr. Wedderburn's political foes were among the first to run to his bedside to learn of his illness, and it was alone left to the low editor of the Sun, to act the ghoul, and sneer over the sick man couch. In the history of newspaper degradation we have only one other such example, and that is Mr. D. G. Smith of the Advocate, who sneered in his paper because one of the editors of the Advocate which he hates is dying. It is only a matter of a few days, when, if a mighty change does not come over the Sun, respectable people will not allow it inside of their doors.

TO OUR TORMENTORS.

Our columns are again open for correspondence of moderate length, fair English and devoid of personalities or reference to private character.

Please don't interrupt the Editor on publication day. Remember, you may rack away at his door, but on these days he will never be in.

To-day, for example, a pertinacious person, and we regret to have to insinuate said person was not of the male persuasion, invaded our door, knocked and rattled till we felt like a "pent-up volcano." By-and-by a face went into our "copy" box, and a pair of eyes that were neither straight or of any particular color peered in. Then the Editor of this journal found a voice and he thought it necessary to say: "Begone, don't you know I'm not?" Let the public take warning!

TAKING SHANK'S MARE.

LIVING over here in New Brunswick we can't be expected to know much about English politics, but now and again we hear something that will make one angry. Now just think of Lord Hartington having to walk—actually to "vamp it"—from the royal gate at Windsor, up to the Castle door! Mind there is nothing equivocal about the language according to the Telegraph and other papers; the Marquis did actually walk from the gate to the door, a distance of NOT LESS THAN A HUNDRED YARDS! Is not this monstrous and is it any wonder that the Telegraph, located down at the mouth of the St. John river, a stream not known to a hundred Englishmen, should say that acts like these will soon turn out to be dangerous work "for the House of Brunswick." The malice in the transaction is that the Queen's carriage was not in waiting to have the Marquis driven from the gate up to the steps. Of course, only that it is such a momentous iniquity to compel the Marquis to walk this distance, we would attribute these threats on the Queen by the Telegraph as pure and unadulterated Fenianism. Heaven grant it is not this!

OMISSION.

We regret that the name "W. B. Beveridge" did not appear on the list surmounted by our bird in last issue. Mr Beveridge has been a consistent advocate of the claims of Fredericton as the capital, all along, and no "yes" rang clearer through the House of Assembly when the question was put than did Mr Beveridge's. Meanwhile let St. John enjoy its fogs, let it keep York Point et hoc genus omne under its precious wing.

Hon. Geo. Brown, proprietor of the Globe, reported at the point of death, shows some signs of recovery.

We have Sir Charles Tupper's great speech by us and shall make extracts from it in our next.
