

THE Empress Elizabeth of Austria advises the ladies to keep out of politics as there is nothing but misery in it.

THE Paris "Figaro" says that an execution lately put into the house of a man about town, whose abode was poorly furnished, surprised him while at his toilet, and that the officer, seeing nothing more valuable than a set of gold mounted false teeth on the mantel-piece, at once set them down in his inventory.

NAPOLEON'S literary adventure, the Life of Caesar, has just brought fresh trouble upon him in the shape of a lawsuit brought by M. Pion, the Paris publisher, against "Louis Charles Napoleon Bonaparte, formerly Emperor of the French, and now residing at Chiselmhurst, England," and demanding that that personage shall pay to his prosecutor the sum of 333,299 francs and 25 centimes.

"Oh, that my enemy would write a book," is an old and intelligible aspiration, but not even its author ever contemplated such a double and mortifying punishment as has befallen Louis Napoleon.

"At Battle Harbor, by W. B. Bendell, Esq., Capt. John Dalton, of Exports, Burnt Island, to Dorcas Taylor, of Mosquito."
