

The L. C. A. S. Sale.

Last night was the "banner night" at the L. C. A. S. Sale in the College Hall. The attendance was larger than on the previous night, and the ladies were kept quite busy attending the tea tables. The "Oracle of Delphi" was a successful feature and many went to consult the Priestess. The receipts of the Fair are about $1,700, and it is expected when all is wound up the total will amount to about $200 over last year's amount. Mrs. W. J. Herder, the President, and her assistants deserve to be congratulated on the gratifying success of their zealous work. At the close of the sale last night a very nice musical programme was rendered under the direction of Mr. A. Mews, Misses Johnson, Fitzpatrick, Strang, Curtis and Rogers contributed numbers.

Holyrood Notes.

The Christmas Tree in aid of the church funds of Holyrood will come off during Christmas week. Rev. Fr. Donnelly and the large committee of ladies are working hard to raise funds to make improvements in the church property, and to all who wish to help them out in this laudable and worthy work we appeal to send along their donations.

There were six applicants for the so-called Old Age Pensions from Holyrood. Only three received them. With the others it's a question of "five horse and you'll get grass." Those rejected had first class credentials, but they lacked the political pull. Better luck next time!

Capt. John Lewis has purchased a new knockabout schooner at Gloucester, and leaves with a crew by Thursday night's express to bring her to Harbor Breton. Capt. Lewis will sail her to the Banks next season, and we wish him a continuance of his previous good fortune in the banking industry. The Hispaniola will prosecute the Bank fishery too next season.

From the Pacific Star we note that Alex. Walsh, an intermediate graduate of Holyrood High School, comes well to the front in the Roll of Honor in the Sept-Oct. Exams of Mt. Angel Seminary, Oregon. Alex. takes first place in Greek, Modern History, Telegraphy, Composition, Evidence; 2nd in Literature; 3rd in Rhetoric, and 4th in Latin. Some six years ago this young Holyroodian emigrated to Newfoundland with the strong determination to work his way to the nobility of all professions—the priesthood, by his own personal efforts.

First we find him working in the gold mines of Montana, later served as a porter in Los Angeles Hospital, and now within a year of being ordained priest in Mt. Angel Seminary, Oregon, with the above noted excellent work. We congratulate this successful young Newfoundlander who has won such high distinction and signal merit for himself, his school, his parents and his native place. This is a striking example of another young Newfoundlander making good.

Mr. Bartholomew Dunphy, a respected resident and industrious farmer, died last night. His funeral will take place on Sunday morning after High Mass at Holyrood Church. To the bereaved relatives we offer our sincere sympathy.

The Sensitive Soul.

We are always alert and watchful when carrying the body among its ten thousand adversaries. But the soul is more sensitive than the body. It has a greater surface, it has more branches, it has more arms and feet, it has more nerves. It has more injurable attributes, than the body. It carries them, too, amidst flying missiles, countless, endless in succession. When the fire touches gauze, it is too late then to interfere; you must not let it touch it. When the rap is given to the crystal vase, it is too late then to save it. You must keep it from the blow. When the frost has struck the flower, watching it then remediless; you must keep it, where the frost cannot reach it. We must keep sensitive things free from rude contacts. That is true wisdom in practical life, and when this task respects the whole soul, and all its tenuous, invisible, supersensitive faculties, how much more important is pre-vigilance!—Becher.

Sunlight and the Sea.

Sunlight and the ships at sea,
Clouds as still as stars,
Out beyond the vast to-be
Of earth's horizon bars.
Take my hand and lets us go
Where the winds may lead;
Earth and time are all we know,
Life is all we need.
Dawns flush and flying foam,
Tides that beat and turn,
Now the vast beyond is home,
And there our altars burn.
Take my hand; our cottage hearth
Is flaming in your eyes.
Earth shall be our garden garth
Our tent the summer skies.

DELHI, Dec. 8.
The roar of an Imperial salute of a hundred guns welcomed the King, Emperor and Queen-Empress on their arrival here to-day from Bombay. The railroad station had been the mecca of the populace since dawn. Everybody in the city and the Coronation camp, with equippages vying with each other in splendour, passed along the roads, which were crowded with Indian princes, military officers and government officials. Streams of natives went along the same way.
The route to the camp was lined alternately with British and Indian regiments under command of Lieut.-General Wilcox and General Barrow. In providing Guards of Honour as escorts, the native troops were also given an equal share with the British.

King George and Queen Mary received the Viceroy and Vicerine, the Governors of the Provinces, Commander-in-Chief and high military officials. After a series of presentations, their Majesties proceeded to a pavilion within the walls of the fort, where 150 ruling chiefs were introduced. This brilliant ceremony, with its gorgeous display of jewels and richly-coloured garments, occupied considerable time. Meanwhile the Provincial legislators gathered on a ridge overlooking the Durbar camp to greet the royal party.

Then began the great procession to the camp four miles away. Throughout India a holiday had been decreed. Hordes of natives gathered to get a glimpse of the Emperor and Empress. They formed a striking background to the gorgeously uniformed procession, which was headed by hands of the Lancers, playing. Then came General Peyton, as herald, in silk and gold, with tabard emblazoned with the royal coat of arms, and sixteen British and native trumpeters, mounted on black chargers. Next followed the native escort of the Viceroy, in scarlet and gold, preceding the Imperial cadet corps, composed entirely of princes and their sons. Their Majesties and the Viceroy, with suites, followed. The Emperor and Empress entered the city through the King's Gate, which was opened for the first time since 1857, when the King of Delhi went to public worship. All along the route the impression seemed profound, and the reception was cordial.

On arrival at the camp the troops defiled past the Imperial carriage. Receptions followed, and the King-Emperor was presented with a brief address of welcome, to which he replied in a few words.

Their Majesties, with the vice-regal party, then repaired to their camp, which circled a house built by Lord Curzon, as a centre. The camp stretched along the great trunk road. The long symmetrical rows of white tents were almost blinding in the vertical Indian sun, while the whole place, when their Majesties entered, blazed with the bright hues of the East.

LONDON, Dec. 8.

In addition to the labour troubles which threaten to reach a crisis during the Christmas tide, this country is now menaced with a possible general strike of postal servants during the height of the festive season. A conference of postal employees will be held at Birmingham on Sunday to decide on an immediate policy for the men of the service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.

The second one-topic message sent to Congress during the three days of the present session was presented to-day. In it President Taft reviewed the relations of the States with foreign nations during the past year. He urged the Senate to ratify the general arbitration treaties with Britain and France, and suggested legislation that he declared would strengthen the States in the World trade and in her position among other Powers.

Job's New Steamer.

Job's new sealing steamer, Neascotie, which was launched at Newcastle-on-Tyne yesterday will be one of the finest ships of the sealing fleet leaving this port. She will have a speed of 14 knots, is over 2,000 tons register, and was built by Messrs. Swann, Hunter & Co. She will be one of the finest ice boats of the fleet having been specially built to resist the Arctic seas, and in the summer season will ply in Hudson Bay. Capt. George Barbour, of the Beothic, will command her at the seal fishery, and Captain W. Winsor will take the Beothic. The ship will leave for this port early in January to get ready for her spring's work.
