FRENCH CROSS FOR F. M. FRENCH

PARIS, To-day. Field Marshal French, accompanied by several British officers, were presented to President Poincaré, in a conversation with the Field Marshal, President Poincaré took the opportunity to thank him for the services he rendered on behalf of the Allies. Earlier in the day, General Joffre, the French Commander, conferred the War Cross on Field Marshal French.

SHORTAGE IN MUNITION WORKERS.

LONDON, To-day. Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, gave an account of his stewardship in the Commons last night. Beginning with the oft-repeated story of the insufficiency of munitions in the early days of the war and the history of the establishment of his department as a remedy to this situation, the Minister gradually warmed to his subject and reached the climax with the declaration that the success of the Allies in the war depends upon the attitude of organized labor, whether it will allow the Government to recruit a sufficient number of skilled men for the factories, which the munition department has brought into being. We want eighty thousand skilled men, from two to three hundred thousand unskilled men for the new factories. He said we must reduce the proportion of our orders, which go abroad, to develop our home resources. Upon the supply of labor depends, I think, our success in this war. Upon this depends whether we can reduce war cost by scores of millions of pounds; upon this depends whether we can supply troops with the right sort of guns and enable them to make the next year's campaign a success. Here only organized labor can help us. We have done our best to get skilled labor by a system of munition volunteers. It is no use my going into the question, why we got only five or six thousand men, although that story may have to be told later. The whole question depends upon organized labor. Unless it allow us to put unskilled workers on work which has hitherto been the monopoly of skilled labor, we cannot perform this task. There can be only one appeal, namely, to patriotism. Victory depends upon this. Hundreds of thousands of precious lives depends upon labor's answer. It is a question whether we are going to bring war to an end in a matter of weeks or whether we are going to suffer along in the blood-stained path. Labor has the answer.

11.00 A.M.

LONDON, To-day. A fair degree of quiet has continued on the war fronts during the past 24 hours. None of the oft repeated threats of big offensive in France, north Russia, Galicia, or the Balkans has yet actually materialized. Persistent reports of a Greco-Bulgarian encounter, resulting from a Bulgarian surprise attack have been cleared up by a Greek statement. The encounter took place in Albanian territory. No one was killed, and but a few were wounded. It is announced from Paris that no enemy detachment has yet crossed the Greek frontier. Meanwhile work on the defensive lines around Saloniki is being actively pushed. Greek villages in the neighbourhood of the lines are being evacuated by the populations. Greek military circles declare they are convinced the forces opposing the Allies will not attempt to cross the frontier; the Bulgarians because they realize the danger of provoking Greece, the Germans because they are grateful for Greek neutrality and they realize the tremendous cost which the enterprise would entail.

HUNS CAN'T MOVE BIG GUNS.

PARIS, To-day. The lull in the Macedonian campaign is explained by the Temps correspondent at Saloniki as being due not only to political consideration but to the fact that it is extremely difficult for Germans and their Allies to move forward their heavy artillery. The French and British on retreating destroyed the railroad along Vardar river, blowing up bridges and tunnels and removing rails. The railroad from Seres also was rendered useless by the British, who retreated from Doiran. For the present, the correspondent says, it is probable the efforts of the Austrians will be directed toward Adriatic with the object of rounding up the Serb troops in Albania.

GREEKS SEND REINFORCEMENTS.

PARIS, To-day. In the fighting between small detachments of Greek and Bulgarian troops reported in a despatch from Brindisi, Italy, it is said several Greek officers and soldiers were killed or wounded. The Greek Government is hastily forwarding re-inforcements to the scene of fighting.

ANOTHER PROTEST TO BRITAIN.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The United States has protested to Britain against interference with parcel post shipments between this country and Sweden. Secretary Lansing announced to-day, Lansing said the Swedish Minister has complained to the States Department that parcel post shipments have been held by British ships on the high seas. Besides filing a protest, the State Dept. asked Britain for an explanation; Mr. Lansing said.

Bp. Feild College Speech Day.

The annual distribution of prizes to the pupils of Bishop Feild College took place at the Casino Theatre last evening before a large gathering of the parents of the pupils and the friends and supporters of the College. The affair was under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson. The programme opened with drills by the College Company C.L.B., under Lieut. Cluett, and by the Kindergarten class all of which were well executed. Following the drills, Mr. R. R. Wood, Principal of the College, read his report of the year's work, which showed that the splendid reputation established by the College in the past had been ably upheld during the year. He also referred to the fact that over 150 men now serving with the colors, claimed Feild College as their alma mater, which reflected much credit on the institution and went to show that the teaching of patriotism had not been neglected. Following the report came the operetta, "Britannia and her Sons," the performers being Miss Dunfield, Masters C. Williams, A. Perlin, C. Stein, W. Anderson, E. Jerrett, E. Reid and H. Snow, the last two rendering their solos very creditably. After the operetta His Excellency distributed the prizes. His Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland acting as Chairman. With them on the platform were Rev. Canon Bolt, Supt. Blackall, H. W. LeMessurier, B. E. S. Dunfield and the teaching staff of the College, Messrs. House, Salmon, Cluett, Blackall, Sterling and war. Before distributing the prizes His Excellency addressed the pupils impressing upon them the importance of knowledge which would prove of greatest value to them in after life. He referred also to the lesson of patriotism that is to be learned from the great war. He had no doubt whatever of Britain's ultimate victory, which would only be a natural sequence to a struggle in the cause of righteousness. Mr. Blackall paid a tribute to Rt. Hon. Sir E. Morris, who was present and whose prizes had just been awarded, for his interest in the cause of education. He congratulated Principal Wood and the College staff on the results achieved and referred with pride to the fact that besides students and ex-students, two of the College masters had suffered their services to the Empire. In conclusion he spoke of the advantages of early military instruction. A vote of thanks proposed by Mr. LeMessurier was tendered to His Excellency the Governor by the Lord Bishop, and the singing of the National Anthem brought the enjoyable evening to a close.
