Church Lads' Brigade.

A parade at Headquarters Thursday night was necessarily small due to the Holy Week services. The church corps class under Lieut. W. Wilson in the Company room were efficiently engaged at their studies. Educational class did not meet due to the absence of Rev. and Fletcher.

Mr. Morris, the busy band leader, was busier than usual tonight as the Holy Week services. The church corps class under Lieut. W. Wilson in the Company room were efficiently engaged at their studies. Educational class did not meet due to the absence of Rev. and Fletcher.

The Congregational Pulpit.

The Good Friday message which the Rev. Dudley B. Ashford gave to his people was one suited to the solemn occasion. He took as his subject "The Crisis of the Christ" which he considered to be Christ's experience in Gethsemane, where there in agony and with sweat of blood He bowed to the Will of God, and chose the path of duty and of death. That scene is suggestive of an awful loneliness and isolation. Matt. 26: 36-39 says, Jesus said, "sit ye here while I go and pray yonder"—and He went a little farther. Yes, He went a little farther, to an experience of which the disciples could know nothing, but He met God in the gloom. There are glories which can only be seen in the darkness. The majesty of the heavens cannot be seen in the hours of sunshine. A great artist once invited a friend to come along and see his latest picture. When the friend arrived he was shown into a room that was perfectly dark, and left there for some minutes much to his mystification and annoyance. At last he was taken up to the studio, and on seeing the picture at once remarked on its wonderful colouring. "But what did you mean by keeping me in a dark room?" said he to the artist. "Well," said the great painter, "if you had come into this room with the sunlight in your eyes, you would never have seen the beauty in that picture." So also God sometimes has to put us in the dark room of sorrow and suffering in order that we may be able to see the beauties of His grace and love. Jesus went a little farther, and He found the Angels. The disciples did not see them, but Jesus did. "They ministered unto Him." When God sends us a load of sorrow, He also sends along His angels to help us to carry it. Jesus went a little farther, and it is just that last step that counts. Most people fail to find God because they are not prepared to pay the price of complete surrender. Jesus went the whole way, and therefore achieved the world's salvation. On Sunday morning, Mr. Ashford will speak on "The Message of Easter," and at night his subject will be "The Choice of a Master."

The Cub-Editor Apologizes.

As will be noted by those interested in the week-end feature, "From My Scrap-Book," to-day's issue has gone to press minus this week's installment. A note, received from the Cub-Editor, throws some light on this omission: "Please inform our readers that we are unable, this week, to present the usual dope," but as for the reason, you will kindly think up one. We have spent the past hour trying to formulate one, but the net result is a bad headache and a worse temper. Hang it all! Cannot we take a holiday as well as our intimate friend, W. Wilson? If the public gets too insistent we will soon retaliate—by withholding, altogether, our gems of thought. It would serve the public right. If you have any of your pencil left, after writing the excuse for us, be so kind as to inform our correspondents, "Lover," "Archie," "Heart Broken," and "C. A. V.," that we have received their communications and they will receive our attention in due course. We must say, however, that they are the bummiest lot of questions we have yet received—but you need not say that. After all, we must indulge ourselves with the great unwashed—"drat 'em. Need we say anything further?"

Unsatisfactory Quarters

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—May I, through your paper, call attention to the fact that some of our recently returned soldiers with wives and children have been unsatisfactorily lodged while awaiting passage to their homes in the outports, either through ignorance of locality on the part of those responsible, or through carelessness. I have in mind, as I write, a house that I had occasion to visit yesterday in which several of the recent arrivals are quartered, and to say that I was surprised is to put it mildly, for it was certainly no place to be provided for a returned soldier and his loved ones. The men who have been overseas fought gallantly and successfully for the Empire, we call "Heroes," and so they are, but you will agree with me, Sir, that it seems some of us feel we have done our duty once we have read a few words of welcome and given them a shelter. If one for a moment places himself in imagination in the position of a man who is bringing his wife to a land strange to her, but the land of his birth, and which he loves, it can be at once appreciated that he wishes her first impressions of his native land to be the best possible, but how can that be done when on arrival they are met by those supposed to be most concerned in their welfare, and taken to a squalid part of the town amongst squalid surroundings. It must be remembered that these Scotch ladies came from homes where they have had, at least, comfort, and in many cases luxury, and then to be placed in such lodgings by a community supposedly grateful to our soldiers, must seem to them but a very poor welcome to their future homeland, and is a decided contrast to the welcome given by the Scotch people to our soldier boys when they received so heartily and treated so kindly that many of them will carry life-long memories of their goodness to them.

It may be argued that lodgings are not only difficult but almost impossible to obtain, but I venture to say that if those responsible had only asked through the newspapers for temporary accommodation for those heroes and their wives and children, they would have been willingly commended by those whose patriotism is deeper and more sincere than to be satisfied by merely shouting "Welcome," and who would have made them feel thoroughly at home without wishing any more reward than the satisfaction of knowing they had been able to do something substantial for those who fought, and in many cases shed their blood, that our island and its homes might be safe from the devastation which overtook so many homes in France and Belgium.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, allow me to say that I have not written in the spirit of criticism so much as with a genuine desire to bring these things to notice, in order to avoid a repetition of the same, and that we may be better able to do full justice to those of our boys who have yet to return to us from the other side.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor. Yours truly, AMICUS.

Storm Causes Damage

IN GREEN BAY.

From a gentleman just arrived from Green Bay we learn that a strong N.E. wind which blew there on Wednesday caused some pretty serious damage, when about $4,000 worth of twine was destroyed. Some forty herring nets also were lost in the storm. One man's loss amounted to more than $1,000, and nearly everybody, near about, suffered some from the storm. Ice blown in by the wind, was the direct cause of the damage.

Viking Arrives.

The S. S. Viking, bringing the key of the sealing voyage, arrived in port yesterday morning. She sails for 30 pelts or thereabouts. The Viking scathed the Gulf for the whitecoats but was unable to find them. Thousands of old seals were seen, however, and there had been any guns on board a fair trip would probably have been secured but as the law allowing guns to be carried was not in force when the Viking sailed, the men were, therefore, deprived of this spring's work.

Are Looked On As Old Tried Friends.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Earned Their Popularity by Their Cures. Alberta Lady Who Suffered from Kidney Trouble for Ten Years is Now Recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to Her Friends.

Tolland, Alta., April 18th. (Special).—"I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone who needs a remedy for sick kidneys." So says Mrs. Fred Wolters, a well-known and highly respected lady living here. And Mrs. Wolters gives her reasons for making this statement.

"I suffered from kidney trouble for ten years. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals, I was always tired and nervous and I had a bitter taste in my mouth, especially in the mornings. I was often dizzy, my memory was failing, and I was very irritable. Stiffness in the joints, backache, headache, and finally rheumatism were added to my troubles.

"I finally decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and I took two boxes. I found them satisfactory in every way. I do not think they can be excelled."

You will notice that everyone who recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills has tried them and found them good. They are recognized as old and tried friends in thousands of Canadian families. Ask your neighbours about them.

The rendition was produced under the management of Mr. Beresford, of the Methodist College Staff, who since his arrival here has had charge of the choir.

The whole piece was most splendidly rendered and the audience was delighted. Some parts of the music will be again rendered at to-morrow's services.

The Battle of Toulouse.

The battle of Toulouse, which was fought on April 19, 1814, between the Allies, under Wellington, and the French, under Marshal Soult, was the last notable engagement in the long series of campaigns waged from Lisbon to the South of France. National partiality has claimed it as a victory for Soult; but inasmuch as he was forced out of a very strong defensive position, abandoning redoubts, falling back across the canal, and taking refuge within the walls of Toulouse itself, it is difficult to understand upon what that claim rests. However, the action was well contested, and cost the Allies some 7,000 men, the English alone having 5,000 casualties. The French losses were never returned, but unquestionably they were severe, and included two Generals killed, and three wounded and taken. The bloodshed was the more regrettable in that it was wholly useless, for two days later an English and a French field officer, Colonels Cooke and St. Simon, arrived at the allied headquarters with news that hostilities had ceased, and that the war virtually was ended. Unfortunately, the courier sent from Paris with this important communication had been interrupted in his journey, and the opposed armies, ignorant of passing events, wasted their energies and spilled uselessly much good blood in an unnecessary struggle. Yet it was not the last, for a sortie from the beleaguered fortress of Bayona, four days later, cost both France and England many valuable lives. Such were the last actions fought by that tried and valorous Peninsular Army, which in a few more weeks was broken up and dispersed for ever.
