Forty-Three Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegram

The Attorney General's Reply to Mr. MacDonald.

MAKES SPEECH IN ANSWERING.

On Wednesday at the House Mr. MacDonald asked the following question:—
(1) Whether the Act amending the Companies Act, passed at the first session of this Legislature as at present constituted, enabled the Reid Newfoundland Company to sub-divide their interests and resources in this Dominion into various Companies, in a manner impossible before the passing of the Act?
(2) If so, did the passage of such an Act place the Government of this Dominion in a worse position regarding penalties or assets of the Company to meet such in the case of the Company's defaulting on their contract?
(3) If so, why did the Government pass such an Act?

The Attorney General in replying said:—"I could answer this question by the simple and single word 'no'; but, I do not think the Member for St. George's would be satisfied with such an answer, and as the matter has been referred to on many occasions, I ask the indulgence of the House while I reply at some length. Now that this grave railroad situation has arisen it is just as well that the public are not beguiled by erroneous ideas and statements.

As to whether the amendment to the Companies Act passed in 1920 enabled the Reid Newfoundland Company to sub-divide their interests or resources, and dispose of any lands which might be taken by the Government as security, I desire to say that under subsection 11 of section 4 of Schedule B of the Railway Contract of 1901, the Reid Newfoundland Company was given power to sell or dispose of the undertaking of the Company, or any part thereof. Under the same schedule they were given power to mortgage their assets, and to show it was clearly understood by the Government of that day that the Reid Newfoundland Company had power to sell or dispose of their assets, it was provided by section 12 of the 1901 Act that notwithstanding the sale or disposition by the Reid Newfoundland Company of its undertaking, or any part thereof, the security provided by clause 28 of the agreement shall remain with the Government for the purposes therein provided. Now clause 28 of the Agreement provides that the sum of $250,000.00 which was deposited with the Government for the performance of the contract, for the construction and equipment of the Northern Railway, (that is under the 1893 Contract), shall be held by the Government as security for the due and faithful performance of this Contract by the Contractor. It is evident therefore that the Reid Newfoundland Company could at any time:—

1. Sell or dispose of its assets or any part thereof.
2. Could mortgage its assets or any part thereof.
3. Could take advantage of the Companies Act 1899 and become a Limited Liability Company.
4. Could form up separate companies and assign its undertaking of any part thereof to such separate company.

To show that the amendment to the Companies Act of 1920 in no way gave the Reid Newfoundland Company any powers which they did not already possess, I draw attention to the fact that the company had actually, in pursuance of its powers, sold and disposed of the following assets:—

S. S. Bruce, S. S. Lintrose; Lands to the Anglo Newfoundland Development Company; Lands and timber areas to the St. Lawrence Pulp and Lumber Company; Lands and timber areas to the Terra Nova Sulphite Company.
To show that the Reid Newfoundland Company could, without the consent of the Government, mortgage any of its assets before the amendment to the Companies Act of 1920 was made, I find that on 6th Sept., 1918, when Sir William Lloyd was Prime Minister, the S. S. Glencoe, S. S. Meikle, S. S. Sagona, and the S. S.

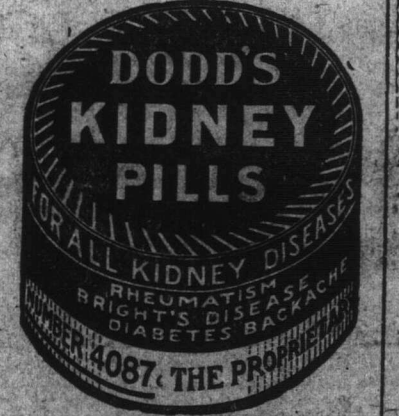

MCDONALD NOW IS FIT TO DO A BIG DAY'S WORK

Friends Comment Enthusiastically On How Well He Looks After Taking Tanlac, Sydney Man Declares.

"My friends all tell me how well I am looking, but I am not surprised when I know that Tanlac has rid me of all my troubles," declared John A. McDonald, of 1913 George St., Sydney, N.S.
"For two years I could hardly eat anything but what it would sour in my stomach and blast me up until I could scarcely breathe. I often went for days without food and finally got so I couldn't sleep and in the morning I had to just drag myself to work. I also had to be taking pills to relieve constipation.
"The way Tanlac fixed me up in a month after I started taking it is wonderful. I now get up feeling fit to do a big day's work, and have no more stomach trouble or other ailments. Tanlac is certainly great."
Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Kyle, were mortgaged to the Royal Trust Company, to secure a sum due on account current, with interest at 6%. Now all these assignments, and transfers were made before the passage of the amendment to the Companies Act of 1920, and the amendment passed in 1920 in no way altered the relations, either contractual or otherwise, between the Government and the Reid Newfoundland Company.

While on this subject, I desire to draw attention to a portion of a leading article in this (Wednesday) morning's Daily News, in which it says that the blunder of 1920 was followed by the base betrayal of the country's interests when the amendment was made to the Companies Act, which permitted the Railway Company to transfer all its other holdings to private companies, thereby alienating the only security held for the non-performance by the Reids of their contractual obligations. I do not desire to say anything of the rest of the paragraph, but I draw attention to two statements of fact which are made in the article. First, I desire to say that the amendment to the Companies Act did not permit the transfer of all its other holdings to private companies and, secondly, as for alienating any security held for the non-performance of their contractual obligations, I desire to say that I cannot find in any contract 1893, 1898, 1901 or 1910 any clause which states that the assets of the Reid Newfoundland Company were to be held by them or by the Government as security for the carrying out by them of their contractual obligations. The only reference to security for the performance of the contract is contained in clause 28 of the Agreement of 1901, which provides that $250,000.00 shall be put up as security for the performance of the contract. It must be remembered that the Reid Newfoundland Company has no assets either in lands or in anything else which they hold from the Government. The only assets they have, have been transferred to them by Sir Robert Reid. In 1898 Sir Robert Reid was given a certain amount of land to operate the road for fifty years. In 1901 when Sir Robert Reid came into power he took back the lands and paid Sir Robert Reid $850,000 in cash in lieu of the lands. The payment was made to Sir Robert Reid, and not the Reid Newfoundland Company.
