"THE GREAT COLOSSEUM OF ROME"

is the largest Amphitheatre known. It stands in Rome on the site of Nero's Palace. It was begun by Vespasian in 72 A.D. and finished by Domitian in 82 A.D. but a fourth storey was added by Severus Alexander, 235 A.D. and Gordianus 238 A.D. It was capable of seating 50,000 spectators and afforded room for 20,000 to stand. Externally, the building has four stories, the three lower with arcades; the first is of Etruscan architecture, the second Ionic, the third and fourth Corinthian. Its height is 157 feet. The seats were of marble; the exterior of the building and the chief corridors of travertine stone; the inner walls of tufa and concrete with which all corridors, stair-cases and sub-structures were vaulted. Underneath the arena were dens for wild animals and appliances for raising them into the arena. The Colosseum was chiefly destroyed in the 16th century, when it was used simply as a quarry for marble and other building material, until Pope Benedict XIV. (1740-58) intervened and saved it from complete destruction.

The Grand Colosseum, less correctly spelt from the Great Colosseum of Rome, is in the great arena of keen commercial competition for a share of the trade of the public. The greatness of the Duckworth Street Colosseum is in the great bargains we give to all classes; our advertising space and type is small, but for the value of your money is wonderful. This week we offer 40 Deen Men's All Wool Sox, 39c. pair; 2 pairs for 70c.
