COMMONS ENTHUSIASTICALLY APPROVE LOCARNO PACT.
LONDON, Nov. 18. When Austen Chamberlain's motion to adopt the Locarno Pact was put to the House of Commons last night it was met with a shout of approval and the vote was 375 to 15 in its favor. Many Labourites voted with the motion after the Labor amendment had been voted down 332 to 130. Others refrained from voting. The Pact was lauded by both Ramsay MacDonald and Lloyd George, although both had made some criticisms.

Wasn't Dr. Quack the famous duck doctor, hurrying to the dear Old Bramble Patch as we finished reading yesterday's story? Of course he was. Dear Uncle Lucky had sprained his little pinkie toe, you remember, and Lady Love had called up Dr. Quack to come over at once with his little black medicine bag and a fountain pen. She wished to make sure that he brought the latter along in order to write out a prescription. Poor, anxious little Lady Love. In her excitement she feared she might not be able to hold a pencil in the house. She even imagined that the ink bottle might fly off!

As Dr. Quack hurried down the road on his fat, wobbly yellow feet, who should come by but Peter Pig in his donkey gig. "Want a ride?" enquired Peter kindly, pulling in his donkey. "Very kind of you," quacked the famous duck doctor, carefully placing his little black medicine bag in the cart. Then with a flutter of wings and a scramble, jumble, he seated himself beside Peter Pig.

"Gid-ape!" chuckled the old Pig's tongue against his teeth, with a wiggle of his long ears, off trotted the good little donkey, the creaky little cart swaying to and fro over the uneven road.

"Who's ill?" enquired Peter Pig, as he flicked off with his whip a bothersome fly from the donkey's left hind leg.

"Dear Uncle Lucky has sprained his little pinkie toe, the one with the rheumatiz, you know."

"Dear, dear, I'm sorry for him," replied Peter Pig. "No one in all Rabbittand is so well loved as the old gentleman rabbit. Always doing something for somebody. Never thinks of himself. Only last night Mrs. Pig was reading me a poem that made me think of dear Uncle Lucky. Wait a minute. Maybe I can remember it," and scratching his ear with his left forefoot, Peter Pig wrinkled his forehead for a minute or two. "I have it,

he cried, all of a sudden:

"Every day a kindly deed,
Plant a loving flower seed
In the world's big garden plot;
Just a sweet For-get-me-not."

"Ah, me," sighed good Dr. Quack. "I'll try to think of this pretty verse when I make out my bills on the first of the month. I'll mark on some of my accounts 'Kindly Deeds' and let it go at that."

Just then Professor Jim Crow flew by with his Wisdom Book under his wing. "He, ha," he cawed, turning swiftly about and alighting on the tailboard of the old creaky cart.

He seated himself beside Peter Pig. "Wither bound my friends?"

"Dear Uncle Lucky has sprained his pinkie toe, the one with the rheumatiz, you know," answered Dr. Quack.

"Too bad," exclaimed the old crow. "Give him my sympathy." Then away he flew to attend the meeting of the Black Feather Club at Turpie Hall in Rabbittand. On rattled the donkey cart along the dusty road as Mr. Happy Sun drew closer and closer to the Western Hills. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Mem-O-Rea and Majestic Artists Score Big Success

No one should miss seeing Tom Terriss's "The Bandolero," which came to the Majestic Theatre last night. Taken in Cuba and Spain, this picture is a story of hate, handiery, love and intrigue against beautiful backgrounds. It marks the screen debut of a young Argentine, Manuel Granada. The cast includes Pedro de Cordoba in the title role, Renee Adoree, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Gordon Beggs, Dorothy Ruth and others. It is a Metro-Goldwyn picture, adapted by Mr. Terriss from the novel by Paul Gwynne.

Last night was a night of mystery, mirth and high-class entertainment at the Majestic Theatre. As anticipated, there was a bumper house. The evening's entertainment began with the picture as stated above, and it was really one of the finest any critic could ask for.

Rita Johnson, the world-famed dancer again delighted the audience with a series of dances. This talented dancer and her daughter are certainly in a class by themselves. Her exhibition of the Buck and Wing dance to say the least, was a revelation in terpsichorean art.

Mem-O-Rea's performance—as in the past—excited much interest amongst the audience and many were disappointed at not having had an opportunity to be interviewed by this famous man. This man is certainly the mystery that he claims to be. Not a few, naturally, were inclined to scoff at his predictions, but it is generally accepted now that he possesses some kind of extraordinary power which permits him to reveal facts which have yet to be disputed.

The same show will be repeated to-night. Don't miss it!

The Pons Concert is exciting general interest daily. Hundreds of thousands of votes are already polled, and a lively race is likely to ensue.

Just one other word. Don't forget the greatest picture ever screened "North of 36," which will be exhibited shortly.

Renowned Play at the Casino To-Night

"TWIN BEDS" BALFOUR STOCK CO. ATTRACTION FOR WEEK-END.

One of the greatest stage comedies ever staged is the play entitled "Twin Beds" which the Balfour Stock Company are playing at the Casino commencing to-night. This bill is made for laughing purposes and is one continuous scream from start to finish. A 14 kt. gloom-chaser and then some. "Twin Beds" is not simply a farce but a real play with a real story contained in it. There is a laugh in every line. Apart from the play there will be a complete change of vaudeville specialties. "Twin Beds" will run for the remainder of the week and at the Saturday matinee.

The management desires to call the attention of the public to next week's opening attraction, which will be "The Unwanted Child," a modern tragedy. Starting in this life without a mother's love or a father's companionship, how is the child going to face the world. This play is produced in the hope that it will shed a new light on this modern tragedy. You'll enjoy this play; a great cast of talented players not only make the story live, but they bring out the many humorous situations. You get all the emotions from laughter to tears, from comedy to pathos and tragedy. It's a royal entertainment with a wonderful lesson. You are advised to make reservations now for this wonderful production.

The Handling of Food

"There was, in fact, no such thing as stomach poisoning; food poisoning was due to infection by one of a definite, readily recognisable group of organisms—organisms which were not, with certain exceptions, inborn in the meat, but which gained entrance to it from the outside," said Dr. W. St. G. McClure, Deputy Medical Officer of Health for Manchester, in a speech recorded in the Manchester Guardian.

"Meat from healthy animals was for all practical purposes germ-free. It might become contaminated before it reached the consumer in many ways, but he did wish to emphasise the fact that the handling of food by human beings was the most serious source of contamination, and the one most likely to lead to outbreaks of food poisoning. Food at the present time was unduly handled, and handling should be avoided as far as possible."

Yukon Miner Stakes Valuable Gold Vein

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 13—Twenty seven years ago, Thomas Kirkland, a miner, discovered a valuable gold vein in the Yukon. To-day Kirkland arrived here in sign agreement with a group of New York financiers who will make him a millionaire. One of the claims he staked is the Kirkland gold mine adjoining the well known Engineer mine, near Atlin, B.C. The Wall Street interests to which Kirkland is now turning over his mine, are to put one million dollars into the property.

The Story of 1924

Assurances Issued	7,761,726	25,451,233	33,424,317
Total Assets	10,310,392	16,983,112	31,239,195
