Dillon on Home Rule Prospects.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—John Dillon in addressing a Nationalist convention at Boyle yesterday, admitted that there was some danger and risk of trouble in Parliament over the coming home rule, but he said it was rather from disunion in Ireland than from the condition of the party in England.

Mrs. Langtry's New (Butter) Role.

London, Dec. 13.—The morning papers say Mrs. Langtry offers a reward of £50 for information as to the origin of an unpleasant story. She was the heroine, this story has it, of a disreputable scene at supper at the Savoy Hotel, when it is alleged she threw butter at a number of gentlemen and was required to finish the meal in a private room and then to quit the hotel.

Prospects for Canadian Dairy Products.

London, Dec. 13.—Mr. Robertson, Dominion dairy commissioner, is addressing merchants in London and Liverpool and finds the prospects of Canadian cheese, and winter butter finding a market here are excellent. The Chronicle publishes an interview with him as to his advice to the British farmer respecting Canadian methods, and the paper says his remarks are the freest and most helpful uttered since the war.

Conservatives in Conference.

London, Dec. 13.—The Union of Conservative Associations held its annual meeting in Sheffield to-day. The Earl of Strathmore was elected president. Charles Stewart Wortley, M.P., declared the whole Conservative party would oppose the burden of what he called the "Liberal gerrymandering electoral reform bill" and the Irish Home Rule Bill, which latter measure measured the unity of the Empire. The conference adopted a resolution declaring in favor of the return to Parliament of candidates of the labor party.

Fashionable Cruelty.

London, Dec. 13.—Even Wales patronized the cruel battle. He was for a week prior to his return to celebrate the 48th birthday of the Princess—the guest of Lord and Lady Alington at their hunting estate at Cheltenham. It is chronicled with much gusto in the Morning Post, the organ of the "Princess's" friends, that the guests in two days shot within a dozen of 1,000 pheasants, 243 partridges and 396 rabbits. That is a very "preserved" and feels game for the purpose of slaughtering it. By and by the aristocracy may take to going here, ducks and peacocks. In all the ranks the Queen's household had their deer, and a shot at a distinguished party, who seem to delight in animal cruelty. The hunt has been commented upon by the Radical press with great severity. To the Pall Mall Gazette a Wokingham priest living in the Windsor district thus writes:

"It is surprising that this cruel and disreputable sport is patronized by people who set up to be humane and religious, and that the rural clergy keep so quiet about it. But it is not surprising that a clergyman of such barbarity fills the minds of the poorer portion of the lower classes. This I am glad to think, is growing with rapidly, and were it not for the present primary and social influences arising on the side of rural clergy, would sweep away all civilisation away."

At 28, a stage passed my house, patronized by the Queen's pack, and took refuge in a house hard by, after a good run. The animal was daily captured and housed as an amusing inn, but, shortly after, it was sent into the hands of a butcher and trotted about the streets.

streets. Instead of being caught, however, it was suffered to get on the outskirts of the town, and, as my information goes, whose accuracy I have no doubt of, the hounds were a second time laid upon its track and a long chase ensued. It is certain that the public are drinking the whole habit of treating as wild a stag that is kept in a small paddock, has its antlers sawed off, is carried to the meet, that will often run the road for miles, that flies for refuge to the abode of its pursuers—to streets of towns, to villages, fields and yards, joining in its efforts to shield itself, even dogs and cows."

The French Cabinet Crisis.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—The resignation of Rouvier will probably result in an extension of official life to the Ribot Cabinet.

I know not what the world may think of my labors, but to myself it seems that I have been but a child playing on the sea shore, now finding some pebbles rather more polished, and now some shells rather more strangely variegated than another, while the immense ocean of truth extended itself unexplored beyond me.—Sir Isaac Newton.

The Cincinnati Presbytery Suspend Prof. Smith.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 13.—The Cincinnati Presbytery voted upon the second and third charges against Prof. Henry F. Smith, of Lane Theological Seminary, and found him guilty of both charges. The first charge was that he taught contrary to the fundamental doctrines of the Word of God and of the confession of faith that the Holy Spirit did not so control the inspired writers in their composition of the Scriptures as to position of the Holy Spirit absolutely truthful, make them free from error when interpreted in their natural and intended sense. The third charge accused him of teaching an inspiration of the Scriptures in a sense different from that taught by the Scriptures themselves and by the confession of faith. The final vote was: Charge second—Guilty, 36; not guilty, 26. A committee was appointed to consider and report the penalty. The majority of the committee recommended a reprimand. The minority voted 31 to 27 to suspend Prof. Smith from the ministry.

REV. GEORGE BOYD DEAD.

The Pastor of Queen's Avenue Methodist Church Passes Away.

Surrounded by His Family and the Church Officers—A Useful, Career Ended—Sketch of His Life.

Rev. George Boyd, pastor of the Queen's Avenue Methodist Church, passed peacefully away at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon, surrounded by the sorrowing members of his family and a number of the officers of the church. He became unconscious a short time before his death, and remained so until the feeble spark of life went out. He had been so utterly weak the last few days that to speak was a painful effort. This morning a few of the officers of the congregation called. He recognized them and requested them to sing one of the good old hymns he so dearly loved. They complied and the dying man, unable to repeat the words, beat time with his hand. It is a little more than a month since the reverend gentleman took to his bed. Everything that human skill could do was done to save his life, but the physicians realized almost from the first that the internal complaint from which he suffered was too critical to admit of much hope, though they suppressed their fears for the family's sake.

The news of his untimely death in the midst of a useful and promising career will cast a deep gloom over the community, for no man was more beloved for his noble qualities of heart and head. He was a man of high character and high ability. He was a resident of London for a little over two years, he became widely known as the pastor of one of the largest congregations in the city and as a foremost champion of every good cause.

Rev. Geo. Boyd was born Feb. 13, 1847, at Grangemouth, Stirlingshire, Scotland. He received his primary education at the public and grammar schools, by private tuition in Glasgow, and then finished at Mount Allison College, Sackville, N. B.

When a boy, Mr. Boyd had an ambition to become a practical engineer, and worked at that trade for several years. He, however, felt called to the ministry, and in the year 1869 became a local preacher in connection with the John Street Wesleyan Church, Glasgow. He was brought up in the Presbyterian faith, but at the age of 14 was converted in the Methodist Church, and united with that denomination. In the year 1872 he went to Newfoundland, where he joined the Wesleyan Methodist Conference, and was ordained in 1877. He continued in that conference for eighteen years, when, in the year 1890, he was transferred to the London Conference as the pastor of the Queen's Avenue Methodist Church, this city. While in the Newfoundland Conference he traveled to several cities, Port-de-Grace, Cupids, Cartwright, Harlowe, Grace and St. John's, remaining on the two circuits in the latter place for six years. He was pastor of the largest churches on the island during his residence there.

The Conference of 1891 he was elected chairman of the London district. Mr. Boyd was second secretary of the Newfoundland Conference, and its president in 1886. He was one of the representatives of that conference to the General Conference of 1882 at Hamilton, of the Union General Conference at Belleville in 1885, and of the Conference at Toronto in 1888.

He had been the representative of his conference to the General Board of Missions on several occasions. He was an eloquent and earnest preacher, a diligent and sympathetic pastor, as well as a man of great determination of character and consecrated zeal, and he was greatly beloved by his own congregation and enjoyed the esteem of all who knew him. He was also a strong opponent of the liquor traffic.

Mr. Boyd was united in marriage with Miss Bartlett, daughter of Isaac Bartlett, of Bay Roberts, Newfoundland, on the 23rd of August, 1877, and leaves several children. He had become much attached to this place, refusing to leave one temporary assignment to go to another city, preferring to accept the charge of Askin street church in South London, where he had many warm friends and admirers.

Attempt to Kill Hayti's President.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The Atlas Line steamer Adriatic, at this port yesterday from Kingston, Jamaica, brings a confirmation of the report that an attempt had been made to kill President Hippolyte, of Hayti. Several of the passengers of the Adriatic stated that on the day of sailing, Dec. 2, a report was current in Kingston that a conspiracy of revolutionists had culminated that morning in an attack upon Hippolyte while he was walking in his garden. Several men had concealed themselves until a favorable opportunity presented itself, when they rushed upon the President. He understood their design as soon as he caught sight of them and cried loudly for help. A number of guards rushed up and caught the would-be assassins before they had done any injury. The report was that the conspirators were shot to death in the prison yard after a short trial. It was supposed they were in the interest of Gen. Maignat and other exiled conspirators.
