Something New! The Kindergarten Quilt

"Grown Up Folks" can recall to mind how, when they were "Little Folks," they used to beg their father or mother to read some more stories from "Mother Goose's" books. Such wonderful stories they are—"The House That Jack Built," "Little Bo-Peep," "Cock Robin" and so forth. But parents can't read Mother Goose Melodies all the time-other matters demand their attention. So a clever chap invented the Kindergarden Quilt-a picture book quilt having illustrations of the Mother Goose Melodies, also the alphabet and numerals woven in the cover—to take the place of the book and incidentally use as a crib cover.

These quilts come in pink, blue or white, have a fine finish, are 45x54 inches in size.
