Billie Burke Says:

DON'T BEAUTIFY IN PUBLIC.

By Billie Burke.

The First Word: "Talent is perfected in solitude," Goethe said, and so is a good complexion.

If you want to make a success of beautifying, persist in it until the results are satisfactory, but do not take your whole family into your confidence by telling them at once what you are going to accomplish. Small brother is likely to say, "Gee, but your neck is scrawny, and all that dope you rub on it isn't any good," and little sister, with equal candor, while entertaining your "best friend," who is awaiting the final touches to your toilet—which, alas, you may have delayed until the last moment—is quite liable to tell him just how you beautify. For small sister, no matter how young, always takes an eager interest in each detail, and usually explains all about it at the least opportune moment.

Of course, everyone acknowledges in this enlightened day, that all things are fair in producing an excellent complexion, but always remember that brothers, friends and husbands enjoy the finished product, and not the process.

I know a man who discharged an employee because he detected a powder pad down behind the counter—"didn't approve of powder." The woman who is "just right" in his eyes—well, to say the least, an artistically applied complexion, and he would take the most sacred oath that she never uses powder, nor does a single thing to beautify. She is a fascinating widow, and knowing his little weakness in this regard, never will offend his taste by applying powder to her nose in his presence. And they will live happily ever after.

I am not advising deceit, but creams, etc., are not things to be applied in public. When we by common-sense methods have improved our personal appearances, and all our family and friends are remarking, "How you have improved!" then is not the time to brag about what you have accomplished.

Just One Last Word: We must beautify, but let's do it in secret.

APPARENTLY LOOK FOR ANGELS

Young Men, in Telling Cynthia Grey the Sort of Girls They Like Best, Seem to Require All the Virtues and Charms in Existence.

This week the young men who deign to read the correspondence column in this page, were asked to tell the fair readers (upon the special request of one of them), the sort of girl they liked best. A number of replies were received, and from them the following six have been selected for publication.

Must Be Good Cook.

Dear Miss Grey—Here's the kind of a girl I like: One that is an everyday girl; one that doesn't try to make you think she is something more than what she really is. I don't care for her looks, as long as she is neat, kind, loving, good-natured, full of fun, and a good cook—not one of those who has a good cook-book and don't know how to use it; not too extravagant, but one that knows the value of a dollar. Hoping I have not taken up too much space in your valuable columns, I remain, CHIG-A-DO.

Prefers "Accomplished" Maid.

Dear Miss Grey—I am a constant reader of The Advertiser, and having seen in Monday's paper the query of "The Hopeless Case," I thought I would tell her the kind of girls most boys prefer. I like a girl who is a good girl with auburn hair and hazel eyes. I think boys generally like an accomplished girl, one who can cook, carry in wood, and milk cows, especially if they purpose marrying her. I hope this will prove beneficial to our friend, SILEY BILLY.

Wishes Integrity and Kindness.

Madam—In answer to your query, "What can I do to make the fellows like me?" I would like to say, and one of the many young men of this city, the following is my taste of girls: girl of polite ladylike manners, neat, clean, truthful, and combined with sound integrity. She to be of a free and humorous nature, and possessed with kindness.

Also instead of in conversation speaking about things of no benefit, to be able to speak of things that edify.

Dear Miss Grey—I noticed your request published in Monday's paper, I wish to submit the following statement, in answer to the girl that signs herself, "A Hopeless Case," thanking you for the space that I am taking up.

The kind of a girl most fellows like? Well now that is rather a difficult question, but upon reflection I have decided upon the following, hoping this will meet the views of the girl that signs herself, "A Hopeless Case." The kind of a girl that most fellows like is a girl that does not think she is above her fellow companions, one that can talk intelligently about the things of the day, one that can hold her self-respect above reproach and can command the respect of others, one that does not indulge profusely in perfume and flattery, and thinks she is IT, one that knows how to conduct herself while on the street, one that can treat a man on the square, one that is not afraid or ashamed to let her parents know who she is keeping company with, and last but not least, one that does not go around with a man for the purpose of having a good time, and to help squander all his weekly earnings, and then laughs at him when his back is turned and thinks what a big fool he has been.

As to how you can make a man like you, as far as I can see it is impossible. If he does not like you, you can't force him to, but if you act the part of the lady, most any common-sense fellow will like you if you are at all attractive.

I think that these are most of the chief things a fellow wants in a girl. (Signed) A. J. R.

Evidently Sour-Grapes!

Dear Miss Grey—in answer to the query of that poor neglected mortal whose letter was in your column, as to what sort of a girl the boys like, I must first ask where I can meet this girl?

I am in the same box! Although I have longed and yearned for the love of a young girl, it has been denied me. I have gone with many of the girls of London, but could never seem to get on right with any of them. They seem to me to be after all they can get, such as going to shows and places of expensive amusement. Now this is too high for the average five-dollar-a-week bank clerk's pocket. These poor wretches spend their measly remittance on girls, and what is the result?—they sleep on straw, and finally get turned down to make room for a wealthier gentleman, such as a wholesale clerk.

Miss Grey—in personal conversation with you, I could wax impetuous on this subject of girls playing boys for their last dollar.

Now, the kind of a girl I like is one of those dear little sweethearts that you dream about, but that I have never seen; some confiding little, clinging bunch of sweet meat that you would tear out your heart to serve, and who would carry you bread and water to prison, if necessary.

Give me a girl with lots of life, To keep on loving all my life, One whose love will never grow old, To make you shoot yourself in cold blood!

Pardon me, Dear Miss Grey, but I cannot hold myself in regarding this subject, which has bored a hole in my brain, but permit me to close, lest I become too worked-up and hurt someone's feelings, which I would hate to do. In closing, Miss Grey, I would beg of you that you would publish this at the earliest opportunity. Thanking you for your space, I remain, your very sincere, but sad, J. C. M.

THE HANDLE OF THE DISH MOP.

Utilize the handle of the dish mop when the mop part is worn out, in one of these ways: Cut the top off evenly and fasten a piece of outing flannel firmly over it, using it to put blacking on the stove. Polish with a small scrubbing brush, having a handle three or four inches long. Or cut the mop entirely off and in its place tie a piece of cloth six or eight inches long to use in wiping lamp chimneys.

PERNICIOUS ANAEMIA.

The symptoms of this disease are pallor, weakness and debility. They suggest the need of a blood examination. The examination shows the blood to be poor in corpuscles and in coloring matter.

The decrease in corpuscles is greater than the decrease in coloring matter. The best sign is that given by the blood examination.

Arsenic dieting, and persistent use of proper laxatives, are of great service.

Some cases seem to get well. They look and feel well. But later the disease grows worse again.

The research work being done on this disease is mainly to find a cause and cure.

Neither is known now.

A STYE.

A stye is due to an infection of the root of an eyelash, or of an eyelid gland. It is not different from a small boil. It is not helpful in any way.

Eye-strain is one of the contributory causes. Unclean lashes and lashes which should be removed are another cause.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

If in employ, you will receive some present or benefit. Be generally careful, and try to foresee the results of your decisions, weighing everything carefully.

Those born today will be fortunate in many ways, and, if under proper direction, are capable of rising to great heights. When young, they will try too many things to be successful in any.

Problems of the Fair Sex Solved by Cynthia Grey

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn, as they are received. No letters can be answered privately.]

Is She Too Young?

Miss Cynthia Grey: As I am a constant reader of your column, I would be very much obliged if you would answer a few questions for me. 1. I am 17 years old, and work out. Do you think I am too young to have a beau? 2. I met a young man when I was on my vacation and since then we have been writing. Do you think I should continue to write to him? 3. One day when I was going down street with my chum we met a young gentleman and he started to flirt with us. I never let on I saw him, but my chum did. I told her if she was going to continue to do that I was not going to chum with her. And she got vexed at me about it. Did I do right in telling her that? I am very sorry to vex her again. Should I make up friends with her? 4. BROTHERSOME PEARL.

A-1. It is impossible for a stranger to judge. Some girls of 17 seem quite mature, and sensible enough; others are exactly the opposite. You should follow what your mother advises you to do. 2. I see no harm in writing a friendly note occasionally. 3. While your chum acted somewhat foolishly, perhaps you were a little hasty. 4. I should advise you to "make up" as you call it, only give her to understand that you still object to flirting.

Study His Tastes.

Dear Miss Grey: I am a constant reader of your column. Please tell me what kind of a book would be suitable for a young gentleman for Christmas. Kindly give title and where they might be obtained. A-There must be a stationery or book store in your town where you could obtain lists of popular books, and the dealer would no doubt send away to the publishers for any book he did not carry in stock. You should consider the young man's tastes before making a selection. Is he fond of poetry, works of travel, science, or any particular subject? If so, choose a book accordingly. Or if you desire a book of popular fiction there is a wide range to select from.

Writes a Neat Hand.

Miss Grey: Would you please answer the following questions: 1. Would you kindly publish the birthday calendar for Aug. 18? 2. What do you think of my writing? 3. Thanking you in advance for your kindness, I am yours, BLUE EYES. A-1. "No great events are fore-shadowed by your calendar. Some difficulties caused by your writing are possible, but these can be avoided. Materially, you will be fortunate and some pleasant friendships found. 2. The handwriting is a strong character, and can become what you wish if guided by their best ideas. 3. It is very neat and legible. Blue Eyes.

Griddle-Cake Recipes

Wholesale Flannel Cakes.

Two cups of milk, one teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt. Beat eggs very light. Add the milk and baking powder, and mix together with salt and baking powder, should be put to it. Bake at once.

Feather Cakes.

The best way to make feather griddle cakes is to add to a pint of water and milk a teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of yeast and flour enough to make a batter. Let stand all night. In the morning add one egg, one cup of thick sour milk, two eggs well beaten, one level tablespoonful of butter, one level teaspoonful of soda, and flour enough to make a consistency of pancake batter. Let stand twenty minutes and then bake.

Entire Wheat Cakes.

The wheat griddle cake is cooked the same as the sweet milk cakes. The ingredients are one-half cup of entire wheat flour, one cup of flour, three tablespoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt, three tablespoons of sugar, one egg, one and one-quarter cups of milk, one tablespoonful of melted butter.

Rice Cakes.

Rice griddle cakes require two and one-half cups of flour, one-half cup of cold, cooked rice, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half cup of milk, one cup of sugar, one and one-half cups of melted butter. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Work in rice with tips of fingers; add egg well beaten, milk and butter. Cook the same as other griddle cakes.

Robespierre Gloves

To discover a novelty in gloves is a feat worth chronicling. The newest gloves bear the name so familiar this season—Robespierre. These kid gloves are given the novel touch in the turn-over cuffs, which display a lining contrasting in color to the glove.

A tan glove, for instance, will have a red or a king's blue lining, while a white glove will be made very pretty with a Nile green shade or a soft lavender tint.

For very dressy wear these turnover cuffs may be lined with lace, just as were the gloves of the dandies of Louis XVII's time. To complete the velvet suit when calling or "teasing" these new gloves are most attractive. To stick in them, by the way, there are dainty little gloves, handkerchiefs, either embroidered or with colored borders to match the turnover cuffs. Only a few inches square, to be sure, yet these handkerchiefs are wonderfully useful to touch the lips after a cup of tea. So soft and fine are they that one almost forgets them when they are tucked in the palm of the hand.

POTATO GRIDDLE CAKES.

Twelve large potatoes, three heaping tablespoons of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one or two eggs, two teaspoonfuls of boiling milk. Peel the potatoes, wash and grate into a little cold water (which keeps them white). Then strain off water and pour on boiling milk, stir in eggs, salt and flour mixed with the baking powder. If agreeable flavor with a little fine-chopped onion. Bake like any other pancakes, allowing a little more lard or butter. Serve with stewed or preserved fruit.
