United States Is Only Place Boxing Game Will Thrive Now

With England and France Fighting Real Battles, America Is Only Place Showing Interest in Ring Affairs

America will undoubtedly be the scene of the world's greatest boxing bouts this winter, if the war that is sweeping Europe continues. Even should it culminate shortly it is thought that the country will be in a state too troubled and unsettled to make the game worth the candle.

Fight men and promoters throughout the United States and Canada have a hunch that way. More, they are said right now to be making preparations on the side, should such be the case.

Should England and France, the only two countries where real attention is given to this branch of sport, be in the thick of it, there is little possibility that any bouts could be arranged in time to be staged in either country for the coming fight season.

It remains then for the United States

"HOW I CAME BACK!"—ED WALSH'S OWN STORY OF HIS RETURN TO THE GAME

BY ED WALSH
WRITTEN BY THE GREAT PITCHER ESPECIALLY FOR THE ADVERTISER.

They say I am back. Whether I am or not can only be shown after I have been in there regularly. No Chicago fan hopes more than I do that I am in form to pitch winning ball for the White Sox. It has been a long, hard fight. Even now I am not certain that the arm is in perfect shape, but it is good enough for me to be out there helping the boys.

You cannot understand how a fellow feels after he has been losing ball games. I knew the arm was from last year. What it was I could not tell. Something had slipped and even when it felt well it did not have the strength that it used to have.

It set me thinking. A man learns only through troubles. When my arm first went wrong I didn't know much about pitching. I didn't have to know. I had the strength and the confidence and could break the spitter so no one was sure of hitting it. When I lost that I found myself up against it. My stock was gone. I had to get something else. I had to learn to pitch without it. And I did. It was hard work, hard study and worry all the time. My curve came along fairly well, but I didn't know how to use it. My side-arm spit ball was like learning to pitch all over again. I commenced studying butters harder and harder.

Last year I thought the arm was going to be great. It wasn't. Something went wrong early in the spring. It never was right. I had to work and work and study, and make my head do the work my arm always had done.

Many a game I simply flushed and tricked them. When I got in a hole I shut my eyes and threw my whole weight into it, and no matter how it hurt, made the ball jump. They still thought I had something.

It was a season of suffering for me. Suffering and worry combined. Last fall I had the arm fixed. The muscles were snapped back into place, but they did not get strong. I hoped they would, but I was afraid they wouldn't even try it, excepting to swing it easily once in a while and wonder what it would do. This spring I tried it out—and there it was. I went to the park every day and spent hours tossing the ball easily, trying to work it out and to get the strength back. I was afraid it was some quick, careless movement would displace the muscles again. Every game—and I breezed through two in throw to be made with just the same careless motion. While the boys

HOW LONG WILL HIS "COME BACK" LAST?

When Cal sent me against New York I felt worse than I did in my first big league game. I almost had stage fright. You see, it meant everything to me—more than you can guess. I wanted to make good for the crowd that has stuck to me so long. I did not pitch a good game. I did not think enough. My mind was on what my arm was doing and sometimes I forgot batters and runners. But I beat them—and that evening I told myself that the arm was right. I pitched much better than that against the Athletics, with more confidence, and I had more stuff on the ball.

I think the arm is almost back in shape. It probably never will be as strong as it was, but if it is just good enough to last and let me help the team, the work will not be wasted.

With the Trotters and Pacers

One of the nice features at Kalamazoo this week will be the exhibition of the great Michigan-bred mare, Santos, dam of Peter the Great and J. Malcolm Forbes, both fast trotters and sires. She is 27 years old and in good health.

"Pop" Geers day is Wednesday, when attendance records will be shattered. Walter Cochato and Flower Direct are to have it out again in the 204 pace, which is the first thing on the card this week.

While there is not much class to the 208 trotters, they have a habit of putting up a hard race. Grand Marshall, Lady Gratton, Oakdale and Omar, which have been winners, clash in the event at Kalamazoo.

Whether William can handle Frank Bonash Jun., Earl Jun., and Hal R. Jun., as easily as he has other fast pacers, will be determined when they meet in the Kalamazoo free-for-all on Friday.

The 210 pace for $5,000 at Kalamazoo on Thursday promises to be better than either the chamber of Commerce or Comstock events, for King Cochman picks up Peter Stevens and Walnut Grove in addition to the ones he has been beating.

The revised program of the fall races at Charlotte, N. C., has been issued. There will be three days' racing this year. The classes have been arranged so as to bring together the very best horses in the Maritime Provinces. The classes will be as follows: 2:19 trot, 2:20 trot, 2:19 pace, 2:21 trot, 2:20 pace, free-for-all trot and pace, 2:22 trot and pace, and 2:20 pace. A purse of $500 is offered in each class.

The three-year-old pacer, Peter Panam, by Peter the Great, out of the sister to Hawthorne, 2065, has worked in 2:09 1/4, last half in 1:01 1/4.
