Heretofore the commissioners are said to have had an indisposition to do more than to accumulate evidence, but today's proceedings disclosed a distinctly advanced position on their part, and a disposition to commence weighing the comparative value of various features of the complication. The first impressions of the commission that this boundary dispute would eventually be found susceptible of ordinary common-sense settlement, upon unimpeachable historical data, has already been partially confirmed, and the way of the commission to New York, N. PEARLS FOUND IN SCOTIA.

One from Aberdeenshire Said to Form One of the Queen's Jewels.

Scottish American.

One is so much accustomed to as gold with the southern and western countries of the world, that the discovery of pearls in Scotland and gold in Wales seems somewhat opposed to the order of things. That gold exists in Wales is, of course, quite a recent discovery, and the small and unprofitable quantities found have now resulted in the abandonment of the mining operations commenced by Richard Morgan.

But the pearls of Scotland have pearls have been found in the river Ythan, in Aberdeenshire, and only last year an Aberdeen man made some notable hauls, which he disposed of to jewelers of the northern towns. It was recently stated in a London paper that a pearl taken from the river Ythan is believed to form one of the Queen's crown jewels. It is to be hoped that the belief is well-founded, for in that case it may be reasonably claimed that the precious stone in question is the only one contributed by the British islands, a thought calculated to gratify our national pride, for Scotland might be worse represented than by a pearl in the national regalia. A story is told of an Aberdeenshire farmer who found a very large and displayed his treasure to a west end

English money. His surprise and delight may be gem subsequently at a large profit.

The kindness of civilians is almost matched by the politeness of the officials. A country policeman not only assisted a traveller to get all the needed information he was after, but even volunteered to accompany the man on his mountain climb. For four days he was a cheery companion. He was only 5 feet high, but his dignity was very great, and he commanded respect wherever the two went. Even to the solitary summit of the mountain he insisted on wearing his twohanded sword and his white cotton gloves. His good temper was marvelous. On one occasion the traveller fell out of his hammock while asleep and landed on the policeman, who was sleeping on the ground below. The only remark that the Japanese made was that "he sorry to have been

DOGS OF THE NORTH.

One would suppose that in a country literally dependent on dogs for winter transportation, quantity and at least some degree of quality would be kept up. And yet the facts are directly the reverse. Not only is quality wanting, but the quantity is limited. The Hudson Bay Company, strangely enough, seems to have made no effort to improve or even establish a breed, and at their more important posts rarely maintain more than one train, and never more than two. have been visiting Mrs. G. The foregoer follows the trail and sets the pace. The steer-dog keeps the sledge upon a slanting track, and guides it through trees and rocks. He must be strong and is the most important of the four in rough country. As for competent drivers they are even scarcer than good dogs, but the few are exceedingly skillful; and of these, Spencer, McKinley, Gaudet, Francois sociate pearls with the eastern and and his brother William at Chipewyan, Michael, the interpreter at Resolution, and the Catholic "brother," whose name I never knew, at Resolution, are easily the best. The difference between a good and a bad driver is that the former knows how and when to handle his sledge to ease the dogs, keeps them all up to their work and does not "force" (urge) them at improper times. The bad driver spends his energy in throwing clubs at the foregoer and
