Friday, September 13, 1907,

VICTORIA SEMI-WEEKLY COLONIST.

Dr. Grenfell Afloat-His Wonderful Work to be imperial on the high seas, and prefers to deserve the title of a race thing promises good prices for our "staple," and no more eager crowd ever haunted the Casino gambling ta-she said, "that is all very but they've got is dreadfully en it is for us old people to them better," said Martin, at is what I say," answered the at is what I say, answered the oman. "I had seven children, nly one daughter's left now." she began to tell him how she with her daughter, and how grandchildren she had. "I very little strength left now, till I toil on. I am fond of the en too. No one lows me children, No one loves me as they do. Annie will hen I am at home. It is always imother," "dear grandmother," ng grannie," "—and the old woas quite overcome course, she said, looking at the "he is only a child, God bless ing a basket of apples, of which ad sold almost all, and but few ned. Over her shoulder she held k of chips, which she had prob-gathered at some new building, vas now taking home. The sace thered at some new building, to now taking home. The sack idently tired her, for she stop-shift it to the other shoulder, ut the apple basket on a post, ed the sack on the footpath, and to shake the chips together. He she was doing this, a boy in ged cap rushed up to the basket, ged cap rushed up to the basket, an apple, and made off as fast could. The old woman saw him, a round, and caught him by the boy struggled to get free he woman held fast with both , and at least she knocked off his nd caught him by the hair. The creamed and the woman scoled.

Friday, September 13, 1907,

tening to give him to a police-and the boy was struggling and ning. "I didn't take it. What pu hitting me for? Let me go." thin ran in between and separat-m: then he took the t's all right. And now here's le for you. Take it," and Mar-It's all right. All now neres ple for you. Take it," and Mar-ok an apple from the basket and t to the boy. "Til pay you, little r," he said to the woman. u'll spoil him like that, the ras-said the woman. "He ought to warded so that he couldn't sit for a week."

for a week." ah, little mother," said Martin may be right in your eyes, but i's sight it is not right. If he be thrashed for taking an apple, must be done to us for our

Martin told, her, the parable the king who pardoned one who him a large sum, and how the then went and persecuted a who owed him a little sum. The n listened, and the boy also still card listened bids us forgive," said the old , "else we should not be for-Every one must be pardoned, pecially children, who have no tanding." The old woman shook old woman was silent. Martin told, her the till and listened.

ead and sighed.

then he took the boy cried, "Let him go forgive him for Christ's sake." forgive him so that he won't it till next spring! I'll take the police, the rascal!" tin tried again to pacify the old him go, little mother; he won't again.' Let him go for Christ's old woman let go; the boy tried a away, but Martin held him k the little mother's pardon," he and don't do it again. I saw ke it." boy began to cry, and asked the an's pardon.

not even wait to stick his table; he thr the floor, ran out and stumbl-In the floor, ran out and stumbl-the steps, dropping his specta-is he did so. When he got into reet, the old woman was boxing by's ears and swearing and py's ears and swearing and tried to lift the sack to her ler, but the boy ran up and me carry it. little mother: I ing your way.' old woman shook her head. et him take the sack.

went down the street together

We are turning down, but has a low we are of high the rank from outsing the rank of the <text><text><text><text><text><text><text> found a fine Gloucester fishing schoon er going to the Labrador fishery and secured a berth aboard her. We an-chored in a spacious harbor called Bonne Esperance and started fishing. and, having nothing to do, I wandered about ashore. One day I walked as far as Belles Amour and spent the night. I had long before discovered the ## of shopkeepers. Yee there are many submerged families we would move, if we could afford to do so. However, we are glad that at present every-he woman even forgot to ask a to pay for the apple. Martin gazing at them for a long time, istening as they went along to each other, they were quite out of sight.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text> Journey on an electric car, I never had a chance to pay back the kindness of these people. I should like to do some useful thing for their children." I promised to let him know.

t indoors, found his spectacles steps, where they lay unbroken, up his awl, and again sat down rk. But soon it grew dark, and ald no longer put the thread into bles; then he saw the lamplighter by to light the lamps in the , and he thought, "I suppose it be time to light up."

he trimmed the lamp, hung it up, ontinued his work.

ently he finished the boot he een sewing. He turned it round, I at it, and saw that it was well So he put away the tools, swept clippings, gathered together his and awls and leather, took lamp and placed it on the n he took the Gospels from the and tried to open them at the he had marked the evening be-rith a strap of leather, but they at another place. Then Marddenly remembered his dream of ight before, and he had hardly teted it when he seemed to hear se behind him, footsteps in the He turned and looked. In the corner people seemed to. be ng-dim forms he could hardly a voice whispered in his ear, in, Martin! Don't you know to is it?" said Martin. said the voice.

the form of Stephen came out he dark corner, smiled, and van-like a cloud; and there was no d this is I," said the voice again, he old woman and the boy ap-l, smiled and vanished. th's soul was filled with glad-He crossed himself, put on his cles, and began to read just the book had opened. At the ing of the page he read: as an hungered, and ye gave me

I was thirsty and ye gave me I was a stranger, and ye took at the bottom of the page h smuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, done it unto me.' Martin understood that his had not deceived him, that had indeed come to him that that he had indeed welcome

We allotted each one hundred miles of coast, with headquarters at the biggest settlement. Both have been duly christian lines. One had to the instructions are fully observed, it the instructions are fully observed, it the instructions are fully observed, it the mathematicate work along hygiend and ruly Christian lines. One had to head work along hygiend and truty Christian lines. One had the installment of such have been duly inspected and the installment of such have been duly christian lines. One had to head work along hygiend and truty Christian lines. One had the installment of such have been duly christian lines. One had the installment of such have been duly christian lines. One had the earn how well nurse in the anti- to be and the observed. The regulations provide in part that: the installment of such have been duly christian lines. One had the have been duly christian lines. One had the have to do, and it is country. The regulations provide in part that: the installment of such have been duly christian lines. One had the earn how well nurse well nurse in the anti- the anti- the mathematicate were had to learn how well nurses. In-

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text>