It has been judiciously observed that the most atriking instances of almighty power, by becoming familiar to our experience, tose thai influence over the mind and action of man that their rater occurrence would inevitable possessand produce. The alternations of day and night, the vicissitudes of the seasons, he circulation of the blood, and "every bearing pulse we'tell, which icaves but the number less," are all so familiar to us that their warning is neglected; and even the aweful doom of our feilow mortals around us (alas! so frequently experienced in our fittle community within the last few weeks) will be lightly regarded, unless we open our eyes to the transient creumstates by which we tre surrounded. The amabie subject of this notice was in health and in the full exercise of her benevolent and maternal duties within a few days of her death, and it were well that all among es, who are as little the Poor and County Rates this year, on the in expectation of an immediate change, were real Estate as and by them in the Parish of as well prepared.
