A New Milking Machine.

A New Milking Machine.

Another milking machine has been introduced, this time in Scotland. Briefly described this machine is an evolution of the idea embodied in the bell and suction tube found in every druggist's shop for drawing the milk from a woman's breast.

An iron suction tube is fitted all around drawing the milk from a woman's breast. An iron suction tube is fitted all around the byre and above the cows, and from this an India rubber tube descends to the vessel into which the milk is to be drawn. A belt is hung over the cow's back, and from this belt the close vessel into which the milk is to be drawn is suspended. Four separate India rubber tubes about a foot and a half long terminate in this vessel, and at the other end they have tin vessel, and at the other end they have tin necks which go on to the separate teats of the cow. They do not grasp the teats, but fit themselves by force of the suction to the udder at the root of the teats. The suction force is supplied by a force pump erected in the corner of the byre, which can be easily managed by a boy. The lid of the closed vessel is of glass, so that the Birds of a Feather.

Lord Charles Beresford and Mr. Gerald Coxe, two of the most conspicious swells about London, were walking in Piccadilly, when a dirty little crossing-sweep importuned then for tu'pence.

"No, I'll not give you a penny," said Sir Charles, grufily. "But I'll tell you what I will do. You see that constable yonder? Well, if you mop your broom up and down his back I'll give you half-acrown."

The policeman very properly resented the shocking insult. He laid hands upon the small boy and proceeded to drag him to the tation.

How the Fire Should be Kept.—
Never have the coal come above the stove lining. The fire will not be so bright; fuel will waste, because the draught is not so good. When not using the fire keep dampers closed; when needed, open the draughts. For cooking or baking, no matter how hot the fire desired, having the coal come nearly to the top of the lining, the fire ought to last four hours without new coal or poking. The top of the stove may be red hot; the coal piled up to the lids, and yet the oven will not bake. There is too much coal in and the draught is stop Broke the Bell.

"Aha," quoth the officer, "so you want to interfere, do you? Well, I fancy I'll have to run you in, too."

"The procession moved to the station."

The inspector gazed at the three culpits austrely.

"So you've been interfering with the constable, eh?" said he, solemnly. "A serious charge. A most serious charge. Now tell me, sir, what's your name?"

"Mr. Gerald Coxe," answered the gentleman.
