

that the small silk bag containing the gift of the bridegroom had gone with her.

She slipped a long cloak over her bridal dress and all unnoticed in the general jollification walked quietly downstairs into the arms of Andoni, who was waiting for her with his boat at the quay immediately under the bridal windows.

She never came back.

