

proper means of information. With regard to matters of opinion, we can only say that it will be our endeavour always to write honestly and frankly; and that when called on to express our sentiments on controverted points, we will give the reasons of our convictions to the best of our power.

---