

1. UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE (continued) - benefits to be provided for two years to persons who have lost their jobs through no fault of their own. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who have lost their jobs through no fault of their own shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their unemployment. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who have lost their jobs through no fault of their own shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their unemployment. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who have lost their jobs through no fault of their own shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their unemployment.

2. SICKNESS BENEFITS - benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of illness. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of illness shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their illness. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of illness shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their illness.

3. MATERNITY BENEFITS (continued) - benefits to be provided to women who are unable to work because of pregnancy. The amount of benefits to be provided to women who are unable to work because of pregnancy shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their pregnancy. The amount of benefits to be provided to women who are unable to work because of pregnancy shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their pregnancy.

4. INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS AND DISEASES - benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of an industrial accident or disease. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of an industrial accident or disease shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their accident or disease. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of an industrial accident or disease shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their accident or disease.

5. GOVERNMENT SPONSORED PROGRAMS - benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of a government sponsored program. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of a government sponsored program shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their program. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of a government sponsored program shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their program.

6. FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE - benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of financial assistance. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of financial assistance shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their financial assistance. The amount of benefits to be provided to persons who are unable to work because of financial assistance shall be based on the average of their earnings during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of their financial assistance.

7. APPROXIMATE AVERAGE CALCULATION OF COSTS

8. ESTIMATED COSTS - estimated costs of the program. The estimated costs of the program shall be based on the average of the costs of the program during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of the program. The estimated costs of the program shall be based on the average of the costs of the program during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of the program.

REMARKS

9. REMARKS - remarks on the program. The remarks on the program shall be based on the average of the remarks on the program during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of the program. The remarks on the program shall be based on the average of the remarks on the program during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of the program.

10. REMARKS - remarks on the program. The remarks on the program shall be based on the average of the remarks on the program during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of the program. The remarks on the program shall be based on the average of the remarks on the program during the 12 months immediately preceding the date of the program.