TORONTO STREET

W. G. Trethewey Disposes of Fifty-One Feet at High Figure.

The largest downtown real estate eal since spring, was put thru yestardy, when the property on Totardy, when the property on Totardy, was sold for $160.000. S. W. Slack & Co. the agents for the sale efused to divulge the name of the purphaser, but it is understood that twas a Toronto man. The property akes in from numbers 26 to 30 Totardono street, and has a total frontage of 51 feet, with a depth of 105 feet. The building on the property is known as the Union Loan Building, and is cented for offices purposes. Last years assessment placed the value of $13,550 on the land and $28,000 on the building.

It is understood that the purchaser has no intention of using the building for his own business, and that no changes outside of a few slight alterations will be made.

The announcement of this sale will so doubt revive activity in downtown real estate, which has been remarkably quiet during the summer.

connections in England today of the free purchasing in the United States of Canadian securities. Not only has Toronto sold many millions of bonds in New York and Chicago, but several cities and towns in our prairie provinces have sold school and municipal bonds in the United States. The fact that Canadian securities are finding a ready market in the United States proves that Canada's sphere of influence is materially widening."

Controller McCarthy, who shares largely in the management of the financial interests of the city, says: "Toronto securities were weakened considerably by the civic hydro bonds being made a temporary investment by the city for the civic sinking fund. The bonds were authorized in 1908, and were not sold until very recently.

were not sold until very recently. There is no doubt that the sale of those bonds had been held up by interests antagonistic to municipal control of public utilities. That the city took them as a temporary investment was, of course, regarded in financial circles as a confession of weakness of Toron-

Two Years' Financing.

Mayor Hocken, speaking of the financial policy of his administration, said: "In the past nine months we have had to finance for two years' operations, instead of for one, and we have been not only successful, but we have made Toronto's credit as good as that of any other municipality in the world. We have taken the position positively that securities guaranteed by the city would be sold only to those who are seeking long-time investments. That assures the city securi-ties against injurious competition from marketing the bonds guaranteed by When we have disposed of all the city securities now authorized, which will be by next spring, we will have the way cleared for marketing other
