Outside of a few skirmishes little excitement prevailed during yesterday's march. The officers expected that a battery attack would have been made from the eliff near Red Hill, near Barton-ville, but this did not materialize. Large crowds gathered at the armories last evening and friends and relatives visited the soidiers and had their farewell chat, as the battalion will leave shortly for England.

the soldiers and had their farewell chat, as the battalion will leave shortly for England.

May Arrive Too Late.

On behalf of Mayor Walters and the citizens of Hamilton, Rev. Dr. S. Banks Nelson, welcomed the battalion and complimented the men on their fine appearance and condition. He referred to the battalion leaving for abroad shortly, but expressed the belief that they would arrive at the front too late to take part in the big fight, as he was of the opinion that the time is not far distant when the allies will have the Germans on the run. A splendid band concert was provided oy the 91st Highlanders Band, assisted by Hamilton Robinson, who rendered several patriotic soles.

The battalion will leave town about 9 o'clock this morning for Merton, the fourth camping place.

The construction of numerous schools during the last few years has not by any means solved the problem of overcrowding among the pupils. At Earl Kitchener School, where a 16-room building was originally planned. 17 classes are in full swing and a request has just been made by Principal Kerr to Inspector Ballard for another, there being 20 rooms available. At the Robert Land and Adelaide Hoodless Schools, the principals' offices are being used as class rooms. It is suggested by E. E. Linger, the chairman of the building committee, that the board start at once to add four rooms to the Robert Land School. Chairman Linger figures that 20 rooms a year are needed to keep up with Hamilton's normal growth. There are 600 more pupils attending schools now than a year ago, while the increase over the year before was 1100.

If, however a state avails itself of that liberty in favor of her enemies, then it must, ir accordance with a rule generally accepted in international law, place no obstacle to the German military force ordering contraband from or thru its territory. In spite thereof, various American port authorities have denied elearance from American ports to ves sels of the merchant marine, which ould carry needed supplies or fuel to German warships either on the high seas or in other neutral ports. Ac-cording to the principle of international law, a neutral state need not pre-vent furnishing supplies of this char-acter; neither can it after allowing the adversaries to be furnished with con-

Complaint From Britain. The correspondence shows that the state department received also a complaint from the British ambassador, stating that the "systematic way in which neutral ships have left American ports in order to supply German cruisers, and have been allowed to operate freely in the ports of the United States, in spite of the warnings which have been given in the matter, causes grave anxiety to His Majesty's gov-
