the producer with a more extravagant profusion CHAP. than in all our other commercial regulations. Asgreat empire has been established for the sole purpole of railing up a nation of cultomers who Thould be obliged to buy from the shops of our different producers, all the goods with which these could supply them. For the sake of that little enhancement of price which this monopoly might afford our producers, the home-confumers have been burdened with the whole expence of maintaining and defending that empire. For this purpose, and for this purpose only, in the two last wars, more than two hundred millions have been spent, and a new debt of more than a hundred and feventy millions has been contracted over and above all that had been expended for the fame purpose in informer wars. The interest of this debt alone is not only greater than the whole extraordinary profit, which, dit ever could be pretended, was made by the monopoly of the colony trade, but than the whole value of that trade, or than the whole value of the goods, which at an average have been annually exported to the colonies. " "

It cannot be very difficult to determine who have been the contrivers of this whole mercantile fystem; not the consumers, we may believe, whose interest has been entirely neglected; but the producers, whose interest has been so carefully attended to; and among this latter class our merchants and manufacturers have been by
