The Provincial Building, on Hollis Street, is a large and imposing structure of freestone. It was built in 1811, and cost $200,000. It contains the Provincial Library and many historical paintings of great value. A register is kept of the names of visitors during the summer months, and an attendant is always ready to point out the interesting relics to be seen here.

Government Fouse, on Pleasant and Hollis streets, is the residence of the Lieut.-Governor. Its erection was begun by Sir John Wentworth, then Governor of the Province, but was not finished in the substantial manner as it now is for some years after. It is built of freestone. The present incumbent is the Hon. M. B. Daly.

St. Paul's Church was built at the expense of the English government in 1750, and is the first Protestant church in B. N. America. On the 21st of June, 1749, Hon. Edward Cornwallis, accompanied by two thousand intending settlers, reached Chebucto Harbor (now Halifax), and the ships which conveyed these adventurers also brought across the Atlantic the frame work of a church, which was erected as soon as the surveys of the future city had been completed, and named St. Paul's. The design was that on which St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, London, was built, and the copy was exact even to the size of the panes of glass On September 2nd, 1750, this church was first opened for divine service, and at present St. Paul's parish is one of the largest in Canada.

Dutch Church, corner of Brunswick and Gerrish Streets, was built in 1755, by private subscription and government grant, for the use of the Lutheran congregation that came to Halifax in 1752. The steeple was added to the church in 1760. In 1761 it was consecrated as a church by the Rev. Dr. Braynton. The ground adjoining the church was used as a cemetery by the early German settlers. This church has not been changed in any way, remaining to this day just as it was first built.
