IZZET PASHA HIDING IN LONDON HOSTELRY

Turkish Machiavelli Brings Wreck of His Fortune, Only $6,000,000, With Him.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Izzet Pasha, "the Machiavelli of Turkey," hopes to escape the vengeance of his enemies as well as conceal his identity while living in a comfortable suite in a well known London hotel. This, too, despite a startling experience. On the first evening of his arrival he ventured into the hotel restaurant and as luck would have it was placed at a table adjoining one where, Jamal Kiamil, who fled from Constantinople ten years ago to save his life and who has since been an exile in London, was dining.

Kiamil stared in astonishment at his neighbor and the recognition was mutual. Kiamil accosted Izzet and they shook hands, but the sultan's ex-favorite was so demoralized by the unexpected encounter that he denied his identity and Kiamil apologized and withdrew.

Izzet was able to make his denial with some plausibility, because there has been an important change in his appearance since he left Constantinople. He is a small man, with the dark Arab complexion, and is 64 years old. His friends were familiar for many years with his long black beard, but now he wears a close cropped gray beard. He explains the change with perfect ingenuously, saying "I have always dyed my beard, but was unable to do so on board the steamer, so I took it off, thus leaving it its natural color."

COL EVANS DEAD.

Commanded Mounted Rifles at Hart's River Engagement. OTTAWA, Aug. 24.—(Special.)—The remains of Col. T. D. B. Evans of Winnipeg, who died at Battle Creek, Mich., Santarum, will be interred here on Wednesday afternoon with full military honors.

The news of Col. Evans' death was received with many expressions of regret here. He was born here in 1860 and commenced his military career with the 43rd regiment.

Some months ago he suffered a stroke which rendered him unable to perform any active military service and never once in all that time until his fatal attack was he incapacitated from duty. He was a prominent sportsman and a keen hunter.

He leaves a widow, who was formerly Miss McMillan, daughter of Lt. Gov. Sir D. H. McMillan of Manitoba. His military rank of major in 1886 and that of brevet lieutenant-colonel in 1890. He served thru the Northwest rebellion and commanded the Yukon frontier in 1898-9. In South Africa he was mentioned in despatches on two occasions and promoted to brevet rank of colonel. For his South African services he was made a C.R.

Col. Evans was the commanding officer of the 2nd Canadian Mounted Infantry, recruited mainly from the western provinces. He was a strict disciplinarian and a man who was well liked by the rank and file. He was ever careful of his non-com, and promoted them if they deserved it. The regiment fought in many battles. One of his proteges was Capt. Callaghan, D.S.M., of Toronto, who was his chief scout and found the Boers at the famous battle of Hart's River on March 31, 1902, where the Canadian troopers made such a heroic fight against great odds, especially that section of the regiment under Lt. Bruce Carruthers of Kingston.

Such is the Report of West Toronto Strikers—Trying to Engage the Old Hands.

The attempt of Messrs. Vaughan and Cross to break up the federation of railway men by offering to send members of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers to England to get members of that union to come out and work for the C. P. R., as reported in the Sunday World, was the principal topic of conversation at West Toronto yesterday.

"Mr. Cross has held that society open for the past six or seven years," said a member of the press committee, "in an effort to keep us from starting on just such a fight as we have entered upon now, but it didn't work, and the fact that the company has descended to the point of trying to obtain the services of those men in an effort to break the strike is a good criterion of the condition of the company's rolling stock."

"The Amalgamated Society of Engineers is a powerful union in England, and we are very few members of it in Canada, to-day," he continued.

"Those who come to this country act as high as machinists here, meaning the same thing. They alone are called mechanics over there while boiler-makers, fitters and so on are simply designated as artisans. The men known as engineers here would be called engine-drivers there. They are very particular to keep the class of tradesmen separate and distinct."

"Bosses are approaching men on the street," said another, "especially the old men, near to the pension age, and after telling them that the strike is practically over, hold out as an inducement that if the old fellows go back they will have the advantage of all the conditions which obtained before the strike was called, but the old men are holding firm. Our men are prepared to carry the strike to a finish, and I don't think that finish is very far off."

"The freight is not moving out west. That is admitted by the company, and yesterday 51 and 52, two of the best freights from the east, had to be canceled at Havlock for lack of engines to pull them thru, while another train came thru West Toronto with two engines, and pulling only 15 cars."
