MADE BID FOR LIBERTY

But Was Back in Durance Ville After Forty-Five Minutes' Freedom.

With but 23 days to serve of a 60 sentence, Arthur Francis fell under the spell of the skiddoo number at the jail yesterday afternoon and made a short, vigorous but ineffectual bid for liberty. Francis, who had been at work with the outside gang, returned with them to the building at 4 o'clock, and saying he had left his mitts in the hall a few yards away, went to get them. He was missed in about two minutes and a number of guards gave chase.

He was traced along the Winchester-street ravine into the Rosedale ravine, and finally landed after a breathing run in a small lane off Amelia-street. He was completely exhausted when taken and returned to the jail quietly enough. He had enjoyed just 45 minutes of strenuous liberty.

ATLAS AGAIN REMANDED

Witness Testifies That Accused Became Surety for Macedonians.

George M. Atlas was once more called in police court yesterday morning to answer three charges of fraud. He was again remanded, this time until Tuesday next.

One witness was heard yesterday in the case in which Atlas is charged with having obtained $610 by fraud from a number of Macedonians, under pretence of arranging for their stay in the country. L. M. Fortier, chief clerk of the immigration department at Ottawa, was called. He swore that Atlas had been in Ottawa and entered into bonds of $1,000 as surety that the Macedonians should not become a charge upon the community. Atlas paid no money over, but the defence said that he received $400 for services rendered.

THE SIMPSON COMPANY LIMITED

NEW CLUB TO INCLUDE TECHNICAL SOCIETIES

Organization Meeting Was Held Last Night—Will Apply For Charter.

At an organization meeting held last evening at the Engineers' Club, the founders were laid for a new club of a semi-social character, by which it is proposed to bring together and concentrate in one club building all the organizations at present existing in the city for technically trained men, such as the Ontario Society of Architects, the Engineers' Club, the Ontario Land Surveyors' Association, etc. The chair was occupied by A. W. Campbell, the newly-appointed deputy minister of railways and canals.

While no arrangements for club quarters have yet been made, the intention is to obtain two floors of one of the large downtown office buildings as a commencement. It is hoped that later an entire club building will be found necessary, as is the case in some of the larger American cities. The club premises will provide common lecture rooms, library and social privileges for the members of all the technical societies who will be included in the amalgamation. The initiation fee has been placed at $50 with an annual fee of $25.

Between 300 and 400 have already signified their intention of becoming members. This list includes only residents of Toronto. Over half of the men who it is understood would like to be connected with the organization, will yet to be heard from.

The following organization committee, representative of the various technical life, was appointed, with instructions to obtain a charter and complete arrangements: Dean Galbraith, A. W. Campbell, R. B. Sims, Willis Chipman, Cecil B. Smith, J. G. G. Kerry, J. E. Tyrell, H. E. T. Haultain, A. F. Stewart, R. A. Baldwin, R. G. Black, W. A. Burke, C. W. Hill, W. Douglas, Norman McLeod, C. H. Ruck, T. B. Scott, A. J. VanNostrand, George W. Goulnick, A. A. Pearson, A. C. H. Bond, A. Burton, Capt. R. K. Innes, H. J. Drayton, E. K. Gamble, H. J. Mackenzie and E. A. Hayes, K. J. (provisional secretary).

Another meeting will be called in three or four weeks. No name has yet been chosen for the club.

The Sixth Sense.

From The Philadelphia Press. The subject of occult or psychic research has occupied the attention of the students of sociology to a great degree for many years. A great many of these which are known and have their respective uses there seems to be a vague and yet not ill-defined sense to which are attributed certain powers. Some more or less in the experience of every person. The recent death of Cesare Lombroso has created a renewed interest in investigation of which, in its fragmentary state, it may be known, some mysterious influence seems to hold a place unrecognized but suggestive at times in the affairs and thoughts of men.

The telepathic influences that sway us, the mental conditions that guide our impressions, the things that control our impressions that come to us, all indicate the existence of some direct power to the agency of partly remembered experiences in a previous state of incarnation, some of these manifestations of spirits or some other personality dominating the weaker self or possibly that of an astral world, from which the commanding entities control the individual human mind.

Others allege that the spirit can, at times, separate itself from the body and pass through experiences unknown to the physical and therefore unexplainable. It is doubtless the fact that the nerves have much to do with some of these manifestations, and even the nerves are as yet but partially understood.

MARK HAMBURG GIVES NOBLE PERFORMANCE

Demonstrates Himself Magnificent Exponent of Chopin and King of Sonata Form.

No pianist that has appeared in Toronto, not even Paderewski nor Hofmann, nor Sauer, nor Busoni, who had given an ovation a week ago, can be given a higher standing when all things are considered than Mark Hamburg, who won the acclamations of an enthusiastic audience in Massey Hall last night. His long and slender and enchanted fingers are not so devoted to making mere volume of tone as to making music, but in point of dynamic effect when occasion demands he is powerful as Sauer. It is the fascinating delicacy of his touch, the caressing ease and grace with which he touches the most dulcet harmonies from the keys, the marvelous technique, swift as lightning, gentle as summer rain, and a profound purity of taste and depth of feeling in interpretation, that combine to ravish his hearers. Last night's program was a generous and representative one, and the pianist gave freely of his best in response to the encores which were insisted on after numerous recalls. The first number was Handel's "Harmonious Blacksmith," and there was so much new feeling and originality of treatment in the performance that it sparkled with the new graces of simple melody. A lovely intonation, whether the piano spoke or whispered, or sang, or called, or clamored, sped along with a molten liquidity entirely Hamburg's own. After this comparative study followed Beethoven's sonata, op. 2, No. 3. The allegro movement is one of great technical difficulty, and to secure more than an intellectual appeal calls for vast resources of execution before interpretation becomes possible. The audience applauded vociferously at the end of this movement, and Mr. Hamburg had to bow his acknowledgments twice. The exquisitely pensive and melodious adagio followed, in which the proportion of tone was impressively varied, and the beautiful phrases of the closing passages were nobly rendered. A sudden change to the scherzo furnished a display of dazzling brilliance, and the finale was greeted with tremendous applause, recalls being at last rewarded with an encore number, Scarlatti's "Pastorale." A set of Chopin selections came next. The poetical side of the performer was fully apparent in these numbers, and perhaps especially so in the "Ballade in F major." The study in G flat was accorded with an ovation, and Mr. Hamburg repeated it. The study in B minor was equally wonderful in execution. Mr. Hamburg is absolutely untheatrical in his methods, and plays without any affectation or gesture. His recollections of the past, passages of his writ, seldom come apparently as easy as the simplest scale, yet the prestissimo was prodigious. Two preludes supplied an example of the lovely rippling effects and the glittering delicacy of his treble passages. The Chopin "Memorial" Sonata in B flat was given out in respect to the late Steward Houston. Herein Mr. Hamburg evinced splendid interpretative qualities, the rendering of the funeral march was magical in its beauty. The concluding presto was a marvel of concluding presto was a marvel of brilliant power, and seven recalls followed. The last section of the program was of lighter quality, but dainty and dexterous, and exhibiting the most facile execution ever heard in the city. Liszt's arrangement of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was applauded to the echo, and after four recalls a Rubinstein waltz was given, but this did not satisfy the audience, who persisted in their applause until another waltz by Chopin was liberally contributed by Mr. Hamburg. His art is supreme and those who were fortunate enough to hear him last night can never forget his unsurpassable loveliness of touch and tone. A. E. S. S.

PROF. ROSS PREDICTS A FAMINE IN TIMBER

Tells Rosedale Business Men What Will Happen Without Intelligent Conservation.

"Instead of speaking of Canada's timber wealth, I prefer to speak of her timber famine," said Professor A. H. D. Ross of the faculty of forestry, in lecturing on "Canada's Forest Problems" at the Riverside Business Men's Club last night.

Considerable divergence of opinion existed, said the speaker, regarding the extent of Canada's timber wealth, but he estimated the total acreage of commercial timber at about 250,000,000 acres, or 500,000,000,000 feet. The annual cut was approximately a little over 4,000,000,000 feet, but he pointed out that as the country developed, the demand for timber increased proportionately, and unless some method of conservation was arrived at, in a hundred years' time, Canada would be facing a timber famine.

The danger of promiscuous felling of large timber areas was well illustrated by Professor Ross, who cited the case of Southern France, where a century ago, immense tracts of forest perished in the flooding of the year 1865, and had been burnt. This procedure had resulted in the flooding of vast portions of contiguous lands, which were costing the French nation enormous resources, and he advised his audience that the care of her timber was essential if Canada was to develop as a great nation. The meeting was presided over by Ald. Hilton.
