Bid for American Vote. There is one strong plank that Mr. Collins has added to his platform. He states that American representation should be increased in the high offices, and doubtless this policy will find favor with delegates from the United States. There were at the end of last December, 152,624 American members, as against 94,642 Canadian. As each high court is created by a certain number of members, and the supreme court is composed of delegates

The actuaries find that last year the payments made by the old members fell some $400,000 short of the disbursements for death and disability, and in addition the annual accumulation which this year reaches $11,-000,000, must soon cease, owing to the increasing death rate among the older members. Mr. Stevenson said about this: "I think when the time comes there will be unanimity as to the rates," he said. "Either our plan will be adopted or another plan approved of by the committee. There is misunderstanding among some of the members at present, for they think the two options will be combined and that they will
