

Second Master and Steward and Stewardess, sit at the same tables and live in immediate and constant connection with the students.

The Vice-Principal has it as his special duty to watch over, and, in every possible way, conserve the interests of the junior members of the Academic family, so as to supply to each of them, to the greatest extent practicable, the place of the wise Christian parent.

Course of Study, Classification, &c.

The Course of Study is designed to ensure to the student thorough preparation for College matriculation or for comfortable entrance upon a course, either of special training for agricultural, mechanical, or commercial pursuits, or of specific study for professional life, it is, therefore, systematic and extensive, including all the branches of science and literature which are taught in the best conducted educational establishments on this continent and in Great Britain.

The aim in arranging the order in which the several subjects for study succeed each other in the course, has been not only to secure to the greatest possible extent, the symmetrical development of all the intellectual powers of the regular student, but at the same time also to accommodate the class of worthy young men, who, being able to spend but a short time in the Institution, wish to devote it all to particular studies.

The students being classified according to their respective scholastic attainments, are arranged in two distinct departments. Each Department is sub-divided into classes, and has assigned to it its own appropriate portion of the Course of study, as follows, viz :—

1.—PRIMARY DEPARTMENT.

This is designed as a preparatory school for such of the more youthful pupils as may not be prepared for the exercises of the classes in the higher Department.
