A novelist, a sea captain, a bank clerk, all yearned for her love. Then the four met at 'the end of the world.'

THE IMPERIAL TODAY

Ernest Klein's Colorful Romance

"AT THE END OF THE WORLD"

THE YARN RUNS THIS WAY:

Cherry O'Day: Queen of "The Paper Lantern," a brilliant Shanghai resort. . . . Betty Compton
Gordon Deane: traveller and novelist, of whom Cherry becomes enamored. . . . Milton Sills
Donald McGregor: religiously inclined sea captain, weirdly in love with Cherry. . . . Mitchell Lewis
Harvey Allen: English bank clerk in Shanghai infatuated with Cherry. . . . Casson Ferguson
William Blaine: Shanghai banker, marries and divorces Cherry. . . . Joseph Kilgour
SCENES: In Shanghai, in London Society, on Shipboard, in the Lighthouse at "The End of the World"

A SUPERB AND THRILLING LOVE ADVENTURE

LOVER NO. 1 This young man was infatuated with the charming English girl—a conspicuous figure in the motley Oriental throngs of Shanghai—to which port business took him as a bank clerk. To him she was the fairest creature in all the world. In fact he drove himself into prison in a vain attempt to win her favor with show of money.
LOVER NO. 2 A rough-appearing but tender-hearted son of the sea became enamored of our heroine because he felt it was his religious duty to lift her from the surroundings of her father's establishment. He wanted to take her to the English land for the sake of her eternal soul. Furthermore it was his craving that she be his bride.
LOVER NO. 3 Roaming the Orient in quest of subject matter for his prolific pen the handsome novelist admired the girl as a bright touch of strange color in a foreign setting. His heart did not yield to her charms at first but the girl fell desperately in love with him and followed him.

Friday—Wallace Reid in "The Hell Diggers"

Through the failure of the water system connecting the harbor with the steam boilers and condensation plant of the power house last night, about two-thirds of the city was plunged into darkness from 7.55 o'clock to 8.45 o'clock. A special effort was made to keep the lights in the central business section and in the hospitals going, but even the hospitals were dark for a time. The cars on the main line were kept running.
