

LUMBERING OPERATIONS WITH THE BRITISH ARMY
In this picture is shown some of the work of the Canadian Forest section on the western front. The men are engaged in bringing in the timber from the forests, ready for sawmill operations. The character of the logs shows the care exercised by the foresters in making selections, while the trees in the background show possibilities for the future of French forestry.

(Courtesy of American Forestry)