Marconi Talks of Wireless Message Around the World—Absolute Cer-tainty of Ocean Wireless.

William Marconi's head offices the Royal Exchange and around the corner from the Bank of England, are a busy place, and any sight-seer who strayed in just to see what the head-busy place, and any sight-seer who strayed in just to see what the head-quæters of wireless telegraphy looked like would find himself much in the way of messenger boys, clerks, mechanical experts and administrative officials, all moving about as if electricity were in the air. The guiding spirit of the establishment has a plain, dingy little room which tells the story that its occupant is too busy with one of the biggest ideas of the century to bother himself about appearance.

Chevalier Marconi is rarely interviewed, partly because he is always desperately busy, and doesn't care to talk, and partly because, whenever you go to see him, the chances are ten to one that he is somewhere else. I caught him by appointment just as he was preparing to dash off for his native Italy for a few days. Then he will turn up at his station away down in Cornwall, and then, it seems, he is to make another flying trip to the United States to take another big step—per, haps almost the last—toward the complete establishment of wireless telegraphy across the Atlantic. He has never been willing to set any date for this feat, and I wanted to see if I could not pin him down to one, writes C. B. to the Toronto Globe.

"Is it absolutely certain," I asked, "that we are about to have wireless telegraphy across the ocean established on a commercial basis?"

"Absolutely certain," said Mr. Marconi, chopping his words off as if there were no more to be said on the subject.

"Aren't you prepared now to say exactly when?"

"Probably this year; maybe in a month. "You see, there are fourteen cable lines, and if one of them breaks down there are the others to fall back on. With us there is only one system, and if there is any breakdown people will say they always knew the plan was not practicable. I can send a message clear across the Atlantic now, but I want to effect certain improvements and alterations to insure success. actly when?

"Then what?"
"I want to see what the Pacific will do, and to experiment with currents around the earth. There are many new conditions that would have to be made and many obstacles removed before we can send a message clear around the earth." earth."

earth."

"And are you going to enable us to talk back and forth across the Atlantic without wires? What is the prospects for ocean telephones?"

"I do not see anything in it at present. You will be able to telegraph faster than you can talk, so it would laster than you can talk, so it would not pay, apparently, to work at the changes necessary to effect long-distance telephoning without wires."

"Do you mean you have given up long-distance wireless telephoning as a bad job?"

"No, no; I may take it up again if it becomes amparent that there are pos-

No, no; I may take it up again It it becomes apparent that there are possibilities in it. At present I have my hands full with experiments at the station in Cornwall and with administrative work here. Our greatest distance so far is 3,000 miles, from Cape Cod to Cornwall, and 3,200 from shore to vessel."

"Have you anything up your sleeve?"

"Have you anything up your sleeve?"
At this point Mr. Marconi's somewhat stern face was permitted to relax a little, and he smiled.
"I always have something up my sleeve, he said. "I had up my sleeve for six months the agreement we have just made with the British Government for the sending of mesages to ships anywhere on the Atlantic from any post-office in England. We have such an agreement with the Western Union in the United States, but the facilities there seem to be hardly as good as they are in England."

The honors showered upon him by the nations of the earth do not appear to have turned Marconi's head in the

The honors showered upon him by the nations of the earth do not appear to have turned Marcon's head in the least. He is simple, direct and straightforward, and gives one the impression that he is too much occupied with important matters to concern himself about trying to make an impression. Hard work, however, is beginning to tell on him, and, although he will be only 26 on the 25th of next April, he looks near 35. His marriage to the Hon. Beatiste O'Brien wil probably bring about a considerable change in his work. Last year he traveled nearly 49.000 miles—mostly back and forth between England and America—but he can be expected to be a bit more stationary hereafter.

Mr. Marconi is as little given to writing about his discoveries as he is to talking of them, and has repeatedly refused glittering offers from editors and publishers. He says writing is a slow and difficult business for him. An invitation from the Royal Society, however, is not to be overlooked, and consequently the inventor has been devoting a good deal of his time of late to a paper containing his first complete and careful account of his work, which he is to read before some of the chief British scientists at the request of the Royal Society.

The British Bathing Fallacy.
One of the earliest impressions of an American in London is that Englishmen regard a bath as a luxury, and not as a matter of course—a luxury to be paid for. At the hotel he has landed in he must pay two shillings for a warm bath. And his conclusion is that the Englishmen, in spite of his traditional tub, is not a clean man. He cannot afford to be clean in a London hotel. Two warm baths a day. That is the American's average. Four shillings. He has a wife and a son and daughter. Sixteen shillings a day. Reckon out the expense and you will find that this man must pay about $300 a year to keep himself and his family clean. The American visitor has figured out that at least twelve calls on that bath are made every day. Nine hundred a year profit from a bathroom that certainly did not cost £900 in the building,—London Chronicle. The British Bathing Fallacy.

JAPANESE ART.

ne Japanese are a wonderful people, if arts and crafts have long been the iration of the world. Not only do produce the most exquisite creations lets. and in metal and porcelain, but they even take living animals and plants and by sheer persistence cause them to alter their natural ahape and growth. Any effort to paint the petals of the lily or add fragrance to the rose can only be as futile as are the attempts so often rose can only be as futile as are the attempts so often made to imitate the glow of health on the human skin by the use of paints and cosmetics. The color of the complexion is due to a pigment on the inside of the skin and its glow of bloom are due to the pure red blood which fills its vessels. Any attempt to imitate this color by applications on the outside simply give a dull dead surface, and their continued use produces a thickening of the outer layer causing the complexion to assume that "muddy" look which is so disfiguring.

Nature never intended that women should suffer from physical disabilities at certain periods, and too often women feel that the great distress they suffer at these periods is only natural. The fact is the women who live in the open air and do physical labor are little troubled by the pains and ills that our delicate, house-born women suffer. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a womanly tonic that has sold more largely in the United States than any other compound prescribed only for the diseases of women. Dr. E. V. Pierce, the well-known specialist, is chief of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. This wonderful remedy therefore stands absolutely alone as the only one possessed of such remarkable curative properties.

It is a medicine which has stood the test of a third of a century, and numbers its cures by the thousands. It is a perfectly safe tonic in any condition of the system, being entirely vegetable.

A Cavalry Reform.

Gen. Baden-Powell, the inspectorgeneral of cavalry of the British army, has just inaugurated a reform which is so sensible that it deserves attention.
Until now cavalry recruits on joining have been put through a course of rough riding in the riding schools, which has not only done much to dishearten them, and thereby retarded their training, but which has quite often broken their spirit. Baden-Powell has abolished this method. He has arranged that the recruit is to be introduced to his horse under comfortable conditions, calculated to inspire confidence, and that his powers as a rider should be developed gradually. Under the new plan the recruit is sent out into the field on a quiet mount, and rides about as he pleases, with and without a saddle. He is allowed to familiarize himself with the animal before any serious riding takes place, and thus acquires, not only confidence, but also a liking and interest for his work. Afterwards the pollshing werk Gen. Baden-Powell, the inspector but also a liking and interest for his work. Afterwards the polishing werk takes place in the riding school, but it has been shorn of most of the bru-tality and roughness by which it was formerly characterized, and which was foolishly regarded by the old-fashion-ed riding masters as indispensable to proper instruction proper instruction.

The Greatest Doctor. A story is told of an Englishman who had occasion for a doctor while staying in Pekin, says the Birmingham, England, Post. "Sing Loo, gleatest doctor," said his servant; "he saves my lifee once." "Really?" queried the Englishman. "Yes, me tellible awful," was the reply; "me callee in another doctor. He givee me medicine; me velly, velly bad. Me callee in another doctor. He came, and give me more medicine, make me velly, velly badder. Me callee in Sing Loo. He no some. He savee my lifee." some.
