AUTUMN VESPER.

All gray and quiet ends the heavy day,
In listless languor hangs the smoky air;
Through leafless branches gleams a sullen glare
Plunged from the lowering sun—a parting ray.
Worn by the hours of hurry and delay,
Of feverish toil, and soul-tormenting care,
Lord, in this breathless twilight hour,
I bear
My weary, aching heart to Thee, and pray
Lord, show me strength for my infirmity;
In midst of change, let me the changeless know.
That toward the infinite my soul may grow,
And here, in time, hold fast eternity.
Open my eyes the invisible to see—
By faith to look beyond the false and low,
Letting Thy clear light on my darkness glow,
Illumine my soul with Thy divinity.

DEEPLY IN LOVE.

J. Hamilton Jaffray Would Wed
Mrs. Graves at a Minute's Notice

If Only She had her Divorce From the Husband, Now Pending in New York Courts.

New York, Nov. 17. — J. Hamilton Jaffray, co-respondent in the divorce suit begun by Robert Graves against his beautiful wife, declares that the divorce courts can't do their work too quickly.

"Any man, I believe, would be honored in marrying Mrs. Robert Graves," he said yesterday. "I said before, and I say it now, that I am ready to marry her, if she consents, within five minutes after she is divorced. I would lay down my life for that woman." He added that he loved her as few women were ever loved.

J. Hamilton Jaffray, Jr., is young, rather short, and of good appearance. He is an amateur musician and hopes to win a career by his voice, which is a high baritone. Meanwhile he is living a life of leisure and enjoyment.

"I wish I were married to her this minute," he continued. "She's a lovely woman, and until this affair came up no one could ever say a word against her. As to what actually will happen you must ask her."

"What have I not stood on her account from Graves? Why, I gave me such a 'calling down' in the Grand Central station, as one man rarely gives another. But 'Bob' Graves is a fine fellow, from A to Z, I will acknowledge that. He's as good a man as there is on earth, not a word can be said against him."

"The loss of this girl means a stigma on her name, she suggests to me such a 'calling down' as I don't count," said Jaffray. "As soon as it is incurred she can efface it by taking my name."

Asked whether his willingness to marry her was due merely to affection, or to a feeling of chivalry on his part, he said: "It's simply because I love her. I don't take much stock in this chivalry business. When it comes to marrying a woman out of chivalry," he added, with a laugh, "I usually get out of the way."

He said that he knew of Mrs. Graves and had seen her long before he met her, and he heard of her chiefly in a musical way. He loved her even before they met, he declared. "I'm sure you're not sorry, now that this trouble has resulted, that you ever formed a friendship with her?" he was asked.

"Well, that depends on what happens. If the result is simply that I've ruined a home, of course I am. But if it turns out well and she marries me, I shall be right glad of it. How long will that divorce proceeding take, anyway? Why can't they have it over with at once? I believe in getting through with these things."

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

Carload of Horses Without Food or Drink for Seven Days.

Greenville, Mich., Nov. 19. — A carload of 22 horses shipped from Colorado arrived here in a pitiful condition. They were without food or drink several days and had one load shipped to St. Louis, but their desperate condition kicked and chewed each other until they present a shocking appearance. The owner started with two carloads and had one load shipped to St. Louis, but his present whereabouts is a mystery. The animals are in the railroad stock yards being cared for.

WILLING TO BE HANGED

But he Would not Turn a Christian—The End of a Chinese Murderer.

New Westminster, B. C., Nov. 17. — Yip Luck, the Chinese murderer of Chief of Police Malins, of Stevenson, B. C., April, last, expiated his crime on the scaffold here Friday. In addition to a frank confession to two other murders in this province, he committed several robberies in the town. The last two days he seemed repentant, but declined to accept Christian baptism, when visited by two Methodist ministers yesterday. This morning he was cheerful; ate his breakfast at 6.30, but did not pray, as usual. Telling the Chinese missionary he needed all his mind to brace himself for the end. This he met like a man. Unfortunately, he experienced 10 seconds of dreadful suspense when the official hangman, who is alleged to have taken a "bracer" too many, fumbled with the bolt, but the drop fell at 6.15 and the pulsation ceased 11 minutes later.

"When does a man become a seaman?"
"When he hears and haws."
"When he threads his way."
"No."
"When he rips and tears."
"No."
"Give it up."
"Never, if he can help it."

REMEMBRANCE.

In a lone bleak wood a wild rose grew,
No eye ever saw it, no mind ever knew,
But the flower was none the less as fair
As any that ever breathed the air.
It gazed up to the calm, cold sky
And shuddered to think it soon must die.
It languished, and its heart grew chill;
The curse of a reaper might well sigh kill,
But a passing breeze gave encouragement
And bore afar its delicate scent.
The breeze thus laden kissed a child
Who played in the meadow and, pausing, smiled.
The dear enchantment of that spot
The child, through a lifetime, never forgot.
The soul of the rose, with its last sweet breath,
Leaped forth to meet approaching death,
And gave to the breeze every crimson tinge;
'Twas all it had, for memory's sake.

No eye ever saw it, no mind ever guessed
The sweetness of its final rest.
How came I to know it? 'Twas told by the dew
How sweet is Remembrance, and I tell you.
—J. B. Delany in Guidon.

WALK BLINDLY TO DEATH.

One of the Keenest Birds Is Often Deceived by His Visual Organ.

After trudging all day along the top of the mountain with no success at all, inasmuch as I had shot several times, but failed to bring down my game, I ran across an old hunter, J. W. Hyde. After the usual greeting we seated ourselves on an old log to exchange notes.

I put the question:

"Why are the turkeys always on the run when I see them?"

The old man spit through his teeth, changed his position, laid his long, muzzled loading rifle on the ground, put the fourth portion of a plug of tobacco in his mouth and proceeded to tell me why the turkeys were always on the run when I saw them:

"Of all the game I have ever hunted turkey is the most wonderful power of vision. I cannot tell just why this is. I have made a microscopic examination of the eyes of the hawk, eagle, fox, weasel and owl, but find no material difference in the lens and retina. The ciliary muscles and the iris are exactly the same, yet none of these keen visioned creatures can compare with the turkey in point of seeing. I remember the acuteness of sight displayed by one old gobbler. I had carefully concealed myself, and no part of my body was visible but the upper part of my head. A puff of wind slightly disturbed the brim of my hat. He saw it and immediately took to flight."

"On another occasion I was hunting in the mountains in Georgia. I was lying behind a log and was carefully hidden, all but the upper part of my face. A turkey was slowly coming in response to my call and was carefully watching for signs of danger. A mosquito was stinging me fearfully on the forehead. I raised my finger slowly to crush it, and as soon as the finger came within range of vision click went the turkey, and he was gone."

"Now, the most inexplicable thing in regard to hunting turkeys is that, with all their acuteness of sight, the surest way to get a shot is to sit down in an open place with your back against a tree, in full view, and, strange to say, they will walk up within ten steps without seeing you."

Just then we noticed that the sun was down. The old hunter invited me to spend the night at his camp, which I did and had a most pleasant time. Forest and Stream.

A Big Grasshopper.

A geographical expedition which set out for Australia, from Boston on an evening and marmalade tour had engaged a negro cook, who took great interest in everything he saw. While the party was en route a kangaroo broke out of the grass and made for the horizon with prodigious leaps, an event that interested the colored gentleman from the hub exceedingly.

"You all have pretty wide meadows hereabouts, I reckon," he said to the native who was guiding the party. "Not any larger than those of other countries," returned the guide most politely.

"Well, there must be mighty powerful high grass roundabouts, heh?" he insisted.

"Not that I know of," replied the guide. "Why do you ask such odd questions?"

"Why, I'll tell you, boss. I was thinking of the mighty uncommon magnitude of them grasshoppers."

Knocks Their Shoes Off.
Strange as it may seem, people killed in a railroad wreck are generally bereft of their shoes by the shock. In commenting on this peculiarity an old railroad engineer said: "A man who is killed in a railroad accident seldom dies with his boots on. I don't know why this should be, but it is a fact. It is particularly true in the case of a man who is struck by an engine and killed. In nine cases out of ten, when the body is picked up, it will be found minus shoes. Even men wearing heavy top boots are not exempt from this strange rule. Why is it? I guess you'll have to ask somebody who is wiser than I am."

Try It.
One can hear better with the mouth open than shut, a fact which may be verified by stopping the ears while passing through a railway tunnel and alternately opening and shutting one's mouth. The increase in the volume of sound while the mouth is open must be experienced to be appreciated.

A Tremulous Moment.
Doctor—I'm afraid your husband doesn't get enough exercise.

Mrs. De Style—Well, he'll be exercised enough when my dressmaker sends in her bill.

It Has Happened

More than once that a child has been carried off by an eagle. When such a thing does happen the press rings with the story. There's not a line given by the press to the babies carried off daily by disease. It isn't the fact of the child being taken away that is startling or interesting, it's only when the method of taking off is novel that it excites interest. How many children die who might have been saved if the mother who bore them had been able to give them strength and vitality. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes healthy mothers and healthy children, strong enough to resist disease if they are attacked.
