

The Light.

(The Century for November.)
There is no shadow where my love is laid;
For ever thus I fancy in my dream
That wakes with me and wakes my sleep,
Of sunlight, thrashing through the poplar shade,
Falls there; and even when the wind has played
His requiem for the day, one stray sunbeam,
Falls as the pale moonlight glimmers seem.
Keeps sentinel for her till starlight fades,
And I, remaining here and waiting long,
And all entangled in my sorrow's night,
Who not on earth again her face may see—
For even memory does her likeness wrong—
Am blind and hopeless, only for this light—
This light, this light, through which the years to be,
It is English, You Know.

Jim Jinks (meeting Lord Horfleswell on Broadway)—How are you, my lord?
Lord Horfleswell (puts up his glass and stares)—You have the advantage, J. J.—Met you in the Adirondacks. Don't you remember?
Lord Horfleswell—Oh! Ah! Delighted, you know, to know you in the Adirondacks.
Turns his back and goes on.

Never to Be Forgotten.

"Have you ever been camping, Miss De Vere?" asked Augustus Pennington.
"Oh yes," replied his companion, "but it was so long ago that I only remember two things."
"What are they?" asked Augustus.
"That we had a 'gone' feeling in the morning and washed dishes all day."

"Bobby," said his mother, "I told you not to forget to bring up three scuttles of coal before you went to school, and you only brought up two."

"I know, ma, but I forgot the third one. Three scuttles is a good many for a little boy like me to remember."—New York Sun.

Patriotic citizen—"You are opposed to forts, big guns, and so forth, are you? Very well; what could we do in case of war? Business taxpayer—"Surrender the United States at once. Do you suppose the country could stand another load of veterans?"

For Ricketts Marasmus, and all Wasting Disorders of Children
Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is unequalled. The rapidity with which children gain flesh and strength upon it is very wonderful. "I have used Scott's Emulsion in case of Ricketts and Marasmus of children. In every case the improvement was marked."—J. M. Main M. D., New York. Put up in 5c. and $1 size.

What it Costs to Smoke.

Last year tax was paid upon $510,898,488 cigars. The average smoker is content with a cigar worth $30 per thousand, or one that retails at five cents. On that basis there were sold in 1886, 17,029,949,500 cigars, or $510,898,488 every month, or $500,000 every day. In addition, boys, waste on poisonous cigarettes, $6,500,000, and those who perform smoking a pipe add the further sum of $20,000,000.—American Grocer.

In all talk about persons, let it be the most common sense to disclose their good deeds that we gladly unfold. In all discussion on character, let the good come into prominence. In all our uttered hopes for the future, let our highest ideals receive the emphasis. Let truth and not error, light and not darkness, love and not hate, be our themes. So shall we increase and perpetuate all that is good by frank utterance, while evils will decrease and disappear under the thick drapery of silence.

Says the Kentville, N. S. Chronicle: Business outlook in our country was never better, prices are good, demand sharp and everywhere looks cheerful. All through the country you can see great improvements; the number of new barns alone is enough to tell the tale; some of these barns costing $400 to $600 do not look as if we needed commercial union.

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

Conducted by Members of Sackville W. C. T. U.

You Can Drink or Let It Alone.

No, you cannot, but you can let it alone if you will. That old saying leads more boys astray than all the drunkards do. Drink lets nobody alone. It invades the home. Thousands of mothers are waiting to-night for the coming home of a drunken son or a drunken husband.

A poor woman came to me once to pardon her husband; he had been 6 years in the penitentiary serving out a sentence of 10 years for murder. I said I did not think it right to interfere, but she told me her story. She had been married 14 years. Had gone to a western town of Kansas to live.

They worked hard and prospered and they kept up a good home. He was a good man between his shop and his home. How many saloons have you in Los Angeles between the workman's home and his work? Her husband learned to drink there in a drunken row in the saloon he killed a man.

She had sold her home to defend him and three of her six children had died of privation and hardships; and she would pardon her husband? And she asked the ex-governor in a voice of thunder, I said I will, and I did.

I ask you to rise above your prejudice. Where will you be in this great contest between good and evil? Will you be in a party that wars on the home and the children? Or will you enlist for the war against the saloon? You must be on the side of the home or the side of the saloon.

May God help you to buckle on the whole armor of God and fight this giant evil till it goes down for ever. Do your duty and God will take care of results.—Report of Ex-Gov. St. John's Address.

The Finger-Ring.

Of all the ornaments with which vanity, superstition, and affection have decorated the human form, few have more curious bits of history than the finger-ring. From the earliest time the ring has been a favorite ornament, and the reasons for the general preference shown for it over other articles of jewelry are numerous and cogent. Ornaments whose place is on some portion of the apparel, or in the hair, must be laid aside with the clothing or head-dress, are thus easily lost and often not at once missed. Pins, brooches, buckles, clasps, buttons, all sooner or later become ineffective in some part, and are liable to escape from an owner unconscious of the defect in the mechanism. The links of a necklace in time become worn, and the article is taken out to be mended; the string, or other fastening is easily broken, and the bracelet vanishes. With regard to ornaments to parts of the savage body, mutilation is necessary, the ear must be bored, the nose pierced, the cheeks, lips, beards, and even the fingers, are pierced, and the articles used for adornment are generally inconvenient, and sometimes, by their weight or construction, are extremely painful.

In striking contrast with decorations worn on the clothing, in the hair, round the neck, and on the arms, are the ornaments of the ears, lips, and nose, the finger-ring, the model of convenience. It is seldom lost, for it need not be taken off; requires no preparatory mutilation of the body, is not painful, is always in view, a permanent reminder, either of the giver, or of the purpose for which it is worn.

The popularity of the ring must, therefore, be in large measure due to its convenience, and that this quality was early learned may be seen in the history of the Hebrew tradition, which attributes the invention of this ornament to Tubal-Cain, the "inventor of every artificer in brass and iron."—From "The Wedding-Ring," by D. R. McANALLY, in Popular Science Monthly for November.

The Vastness of the Universe.

It is certainly true that a contemplation of the antihelical vastness of the universe, in the midst of which we dwell upon a speck illuminated by a spark, is calculated to make all terrestrial affairs appear contemptibly insignificant. We can not wonder that men for ages regarded the earth as the center, and the heavens with their lights as tributary to it, for to have thought otherwise, in those times, would have been to see things from the point of view of superior intelligence. It has taken a great amount of experience and knowledge to convince men of the parvity of themselves and their belongings. So, in all ages they have applied a terrestrial measure to the universe, and imagined they could comprehend the vastness of the heavens and human interests setting the gods together by the ears.

This is clearly shown in the story of the constellations. The tremendous truth that on a starry night we look at the distant stars, and see the vastness of the universe, is a lesson that we should never forget. The stars are not merely points of light, but they are worlds, and they are as near to us as the stars are far from us.

The Chinese believe that Satan has a fashion of rising to the grave and seizing the body of their dead as soon as it arrives there; so on the way to the grave, the friends keep tossing bits of paper out of the carriage window, which Satan is supposed to pick up and read, thus allowing the procession to reach the cemetery first.

The trotting mare Daisy Miller, entered in the 27 class at Boston, has shown fast time, and much is expected of her. Ten thousand dollars is said to have been paid for her, with a view to her being sold for a race horse. She is said to be a very fine specimen of the breed.

The schooner Sunbeam, Captain George Hiscup, which sailed from Port Hope Saturday afternoon for St. Pierre, loaded with hay, took fire from the rigging, and before she could be reached was burned to the water's edge. The Sunbeam was a vessel of seventy tons, and owned by the captain and Mr. Buffet, of Fort Hope. The crew saved nothing except what they stood in.

Ten thousand persons attended an open air demonstration under the auspices of the Radical Club at Colborne, Monday evening. Resolutions were passed protesting against the government's interference with the liberty of the press and right of public meetings in Ireland and England and condemning Sir Charles Warren's action against the unemployed of London. Speeches were made from five platforms.

A competent mining engineer has lately been examining the rich deposit of iron ore at Old Barns, Colchester Co., N. S. There is every prospect of immediate work being commenced there. The Steel Company of Canada have taken some 400 tons of ore from this locality, and the quality cannot be doubted. If the leases of the property can be obtained there is a splendid prospect of quite an iron boom in that favored locality this winter.

The Maine corn canning companies are closing their season's business. The factory at Farmington Falls, canned over 200,000 cans, that at South Norridgewood, 500,000 cans; Canton, 250,000; Bethel, 350,000; Hiram, 267,000; St. Albans, 450,000; Camden, 86,838; Unity, 343,255. This large industry affords a profitable market for immense quantities of corn, paying the farmers according to one report, from $14 to $15 per acre. It gives employment to many people in and about its factories.

The Turkish Government owes the younger Krupp, successor of the late famous gunmaker, $5,000,000. The Turks have the guns and Krupp has the itemized account.

The output of the various cigar manufacturers of the United States has increased since 1880 from 2,000,000,000 to over 5,000,000,000.

An Australian farmer has discovered that the thistle, which infests his lands can be worked into ensilage, and that the cattle eat them readily.

It is estimated that Grand Manan puts up annually over a million boxes of herring and is able to control the New York market or glut it at any time.

The prairie cattle from the Northwest Cattle Company's ranch, were sold at Montreal last week, and realized an average price of $54.123 cents per head.

A Prussian genius has left the Keely motor for astern. He has invented a windmill which you put on a ship's deck, whence it turns a screw that propels a vessel against the wind.

If people should stop suddenly some evening telling what they think about other people and tell what they know about themselves, what a stir-up they would be in modern society.

Princess Irene of Hesse is doing her best to become a clever cook, and is taking lessons in that art under the chef at Balmoral. She is engaged to her cousin, Prince Henry of Prussia.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor pays her chief cook $7,000 per annum, and has to content herself with eating the plainest kind of fare. She is troubled with dyspepsia in its worst form.

A General Mission Conference is to be held in London, Eng., in 1888, to gather up reports, statistics, etc., of all foreign missions, and to discuss the world's situation and its needs.

The ship Marlborough, built by Messrs. E. Churchill & Sons, twenty-four years ago, is now in Hantsport undergoing repairs. Her bottom and timbers are said to be as sound as ever.

A despatch to the Sportsman from Sydney says: "Hanlan is suffering from a carbuncle on the wrist, and the conveyance of his Majesty's Mails will be unable to row for ten days. The race with Beach, however, will not be postponed."

A young lady in New York who was insensitive at what, has broken off her engagement with her lover because he recommended her to "scop up her mind in a peanut shell and fix it on the game."

There seems to be a great deal of excitement among temperance people throughout the United States, owing to an apprehension that the Supreme Court will declare the prohibition liquor laws unconstitutional.

Coal for the C. P. R. now comes from Sydney, C. B., by water, and is delivered at Sorel. This road has contracted with the mining company for a delivery of 45,000 tons of coal for next year; and by unloading their coal at Sorel the Canadian Pacific railway will make a saving of one dollar per ton.
