THEIR GREAT MOMENT GONE

Writer Was Little Expectation of Creative Ability Being Displayed by Returned Soldiers.
 The spiritual point is this, writes John Galsworthy in Scribner's. In front of a man in ordinary civilized existence there hovers ever that moment in the future when he expects to prove himself more of a man than he has yet proved himself. For these soldiers of the great carnage the moment of probation is already in the past. They have proved themselves as they will never have the chance to do again, and solemnly they know it. One talks of their powers of heroism and sacrifice being wanted just as much in time of peace, but that cannot really be so, because peace time does not demand men's lives—which is the ultimate test—with every minute that passes. No, the great moment of their existence lies behind them, young though so many of them are. This makes them at once greater than us, yet in a way smaller, because they have lost the power and hope of expansion. They have lived their masterpiece already. Human nature is elastic and hope springs eternal, but a climax of experience and sensation cannot be repeated; I think these have reached and passed the uttermost climax, and in Europe their number millions.

This is a veritable portent, and I am glad that in America you will not have it to any great extent.
 Now how does this affect the future? Roughly speaking it must, I think, have a diminishing effect on what I may call loosely—creative ability. There will have often said to me: "I shall have great writings and paintings from these young men when they come back." We shall certainly have poignant expressions of their experiences and sufferings, and the best books and paintings of the war itself are probably yet to come. But, taking the long view, I do not believe we shall have from them, in the end, as much creative art and literature as we should have had if they had not been through the war.

Will Go Back to Work in France.
 If Charles W. Bradley, Jr., formerly a teacher of manual arts in Worcester academy, Worcester, Mass., hadn't been an obliging sort of gentleman, he wouldn't be carrying a shell splinter today under his right cheekbone, so eminently lodged there that physicians hesitate to operate for fear of his face becoming paralyzed.

While a worker with the Foyer du Soldat in France, Bradley confessed August 7 to replace another worker on the front line at Ebery. The other worker was away on leave so Bradley, with his knapsack filled with Y. M. C. A. supplies went up near the front line. At that time a jagged scar caused by a shell splinter was healing on his forehead. He had been working only a short period at Ebery when a Hun shell burst and he was given another memento of service. This time the silver of a flying shell lodged in his chest.

Bradley learned to love the French and will return to England to work among them in the devastated section as a member of the International committee of the Y. M. C. A. He said that he feels he will be able to aid permanently wounded men in learning new occupations.

A Forgotten Language.
 "The crowfoot girls' treeing turtle," said one gentleman to another, as reported by the Minneapolis Journal, in an office in that city. "Scalp thirty reel blase," he continued, reading from an old leather-bound ledger. "Scalp thirty reel blase," repeated his companion, and wrote it down on a sheet of paper. The two gentlemen, says the Journal, were talking a language once used but now forgotten in Minnesota. For they were respectively a former surveyor general of logs and lumber and his assistant, busy identifying some ancient logs that had been a long time sunk in a river. The strange-sounding sentences were composed of identification marks, of which at least 6,000 have been recorded since the pioneer days when logs were first cut in Minnesota forests. Millions of feet of lumber from the great forests have been thus marked, and once in a while some old logs are recovered from the river bottom, and the old ledger of bark marks and stamps on the ends of the logs is again referred to.

Raising Monks for Fur.
 As wild fur-bearing animals have decreased in numbers and the scarcity and price of furs consequently increased, many individuals have been led to undertake the rearing of fur-bearing in captivity, as for example the efforts to breed foxes in Canada and parts of the United States, and the widespread interest in skunk raising. It is of significance that in one wood along the same waters, within a period of two years, issued more than five hundred fur-bearing animals in the National Geographic Magazine.

Energy From Common Fuel.
 Common black smoking powder is a source of immensity energy in some railway machine shops and is used for such purposes as blowing out mud and bolts, driving up scrap iron and steel, blowing steam locomotive pistons, and breaking metal needed in a furnace. It is employed in steel guns 8 to 12 inches long and of proportionately diameter.

You Just Try NR For That Indigestion
 Get your organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination working in harmony and watch your trouble disappear. NR does it or money back.

One Day's Test Proves NR Best
 The stomach only partly digests the food we eat. The excess is smoldered in the intestine where the food is mixed with bile from the liver.
 It must be plain to any sensible person that if the stomach and bowels must work in harmony if digestive troubles are to be avoided or overcome. This fact also explains why suffering from indigestion, also suffer from loss of sleep, loss of appetite, biliousness and constipation.
 If you are one of the millions of unfortunate persons who cannot eat without suffering afterward if you are constipated, have bilious spots, bad breath, coated tongue, bad digestion, variable appetite, are nervous, losing energy and feel your health steadily slipping, take this advice and get a box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) right today and start taking it. Give it a trial for a week or two and just see how much better you feel. How quickly your stomach bowels will become as regular as clock work, how your coated tongue clears up and your good, old-time appetite returns. See how splendidly your food will digest and how your energy, pep and vigor revive.
 You take a trial whether you believe in Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) or not. It is only one box, enough to last twenty-five days and it must help and benefit you to your entire satisfaction, or money returned.
 Five million boxes are used every year—one million NR Tablets are taken by the best people every day—that's the best proof of its merit. Nature's Remedy is the best and safest thing you can take for biliousness, constipation, indigestion and similar complaints. It is sold everywhere and recommended by your druggist.

Lovely Spots in Pontiac County, Quebec

(1) The Harbour at Fort William, P.Q.
 (2) Water Falls at Des Joachims, along the Ottawa River.
 (3) On the beautiful sandy beach at Fort William, P.Q., there are hundreds of log-seats.
 The Province of Quebec is dotted with many beautiful landscapes and water scenes. Some of these are well known, but many of them have been little heard of.
 For years Guyon and Campbell's Bay, Fort Coulonge and Bryon have been known to lumbermen and sportsmen. These sportsmen have fished and hunted, and have kept records of their exploits. But that sandy beach at Campbell's Bay and that new camping ground at Davidson fairly cry out for visitors, and if we know the signs it won't be long before dozens of families follow the example of the few Montrealers who have been that Province's most carefully-guarded secret.

can pack up the family and have forth to one of those quiet villages, confident that the children will grow brown and fat, and that they themselves will have no worry over household problems.
 It is a country of low green hills, of many sparkling lakes, of silvery rivers, the Ottawa and the Conception—there are streams and rivers to carry you across the river-strewn to Farnham and ferries to Chatham and Riveston. Beyond Waitnam, at the end of the line, is the well-known resort of Fort William, Quebec, just across the river from Farnham, Ontario. Near Fort William is the Jacques-Lac, where there is a pretty waterfall. The surrounding lumber, and the picturesque lumber have largely vanished from the village, and the surrounding hills are now a green, rolling landscape.
