

Considerable interest attaches to the visit of English farmer delegates to Canada, and while it is much to be regretted that the whole party were not able to come here at an earlier date, New Brunswick is to be congratulated upon being favored with a visit from two such observing and discriminating gentlemen as Major Stevenson, of Londonbury, and E. R. Murphy, of Tralee. Mr. Hutchinson, a third member of the party, a gentleman from the north of England, will also visit the province arriving in St. John on Saturday, probably.

While it would be greatly to be desired that our visitors could have come when they could see for themselves the agricultural capabilities of the country, there is a satisfactory side to the fact that they have seen the province in the midst of one of the most unpleasant periods of winter weather they would be likely to find in a twelvemonth. They can at least take home with them the knowledge that rough though our winters may sometimes be, they are not so serious a drawback. They visited the schools and said that a very violent winter storm was not sufficient to keep even very young children at home. They found young people out enjoying themselves, and business going on just as usual. Such an object lesson is worth passing of writing. It is an ocular demonstration that our winters are not nearly as bad as they are painted.

The visitors were very much impressed by everything they saw; for the reason that it was nearly all unexpected. They frankly said that they had not the least idea what this province was like, and to find it gridironed with railways, with well built cities, large manufacturing establishments, large mercantile houses, excellent hotels, and a splendid school system, was a very agreeable surprise. The impression which prevails in Ireland in regard to this province generally is that the people divide their attention between lumbering and fishing and that social matters are in a decidedly crude state. A few persons know better than this; but the great majority do not even know this much about it. It is therefore not a bad thing that two gentlemen, especially delegated to see what the country is like, have come here and seen us at our worst, for the impression which they carry away can hardly be otherwise than favorable.

At St. John their stay was necessarily short; but they were able to meet the council of the board of trade and exchange views with those gentlemen to some extent. They were shown one of the principal schools and Park's cotton factory. On Thursday they visited Marysville. They said that they found here the greatest surprise in Canada. They had not been aware that there was such a place as Marysville, and gave it the very first place among Canadian industrial establishments. The cotton mill particularly impressed them by the excellence of its appointments and the character of the goods manufactured, while the fact of the globe in industries centering there, including Mr. Gibson's great lumber operations, called forth expressions of hearty approval. It was, indeed, unexpected to them to find, in a locality of which they had never heard, a reproduction of the famous Lancashire town of Salford, to meet with a business man who to-day in his employ at least two thousand persons and five hundred houses, and they frankly said that it would be something to tell about when they returned home.

At the crown land office the visitors were shown maps and plans, and given a full idea of the system of granting public lands, the agricultural area and other subjects of that class. Thence they were taken to the Normal school, where a very pleasant half hour was spent. "My Own Canadian Home," "Our Dominion," and "The National Anthem" were sung by the students. In response to a call Major Stevenson addressed the students, and was exceedingly happy in his remarks, saying among other things that the New Brunswick school system was the best he had investigated. They then went to Risteen's factory where they saw the wool which are being prepared for the Jamaica exhibition, and thence to the government stables and afterwards to the Cathedral, after which they took a sleigh drive around the city, subsequently visiting several stores and making enquiries as to the quality and prices of goods.

On Friday, accompanied by the attorney general and secretary for agriculture, they visited Carleton county. After spending a day in St. John, they will go to Sussex, in time permits, and to Sackville. They will then take a look at the ship railway and the experimental farm at Nappan, afterwards going to Halifax, whence Mr. Murphy will sail on Saturday next. Major Stevenson will visit Prince Edward Island, returning to Ireland on the 20th inst. This short and necessary imperfect observation tour through this province will no doubt be productive of much good; but we fancy that most persons will agree with Major Stevenson in saying that the next delegation ought to take a look at this end of the dominion first.

ENQUIRIES made by THE HERALD have made it very clear that there was no truth in the report to which currency was given in these columns last Saturday in regard to a certain high educational dignitary having declined to honor the toast of the Queen. The story was first published in a contemporary, and so current was it on the streets that it was no question as to whom it referred. There is no individual of the name of the gentleman in question in a false position, which it certainly had no desire to do. A high military official explained to THE HERALD that the story was probably a hoax got up by some of those present on the occasion in question at the gentleman's expense on account of his being an Irishman. THE HERALD confesses its utter inability to see the humor of such joking, or what reason there is, in the fact of a man being an Irishman, for his being charged with disrespect, not only to the head of the state but to the host at whose table he sat. On the whole, however, while we do not like to have to take anything back, we are rather pleased than otherwise that the story found its way into these columns, since it has led to such a very positive denial of the whole thing that there can no longer be any doubt in any reasonable man's mind that the gentleman to whom reference was made has been the victim of unfounded gossip.

NON-RESISTANCE.

Count Tolstoi, the great Russian novelist and apostle of christian non-resistance, says that christians are bound by the teaching of the founder of their religion to resist no man who seeks to do them or another an injury. He says explicitly that if a man attempts to kill any person, he must be allowed to do so, and that even his liberty must not be restrained to prevent his doing this or similar acts. It seems scarcely credible that a man in his senses would profess such a belief; but no one has yet called Tolstoi insane. He says his conclusions are the result of long study of the gospels and the teachings of Christ. Probably the explanation of this sort of error is to be found in the manner in which some persons study the scriptures. They take every passage as though it were written to fit all times and all occasions. Christ sent His disciples out to preach the gospel "as lambs in the midst of wolves," and undoubtedly He inculcated the doctrine of non-resistance. But the instructions which the Great Teacher gave to the comparatively few unimportant and little known people, whom He commissioned, can only be applied to our times by a forced construction of language. It is the cardinal rule in the interpretation of all teachings that the environments both of the teacher and the taught, must be considered. Let us try and fancy what our advice could have been given the early church. Drop out of sight all questions of morality and look at the subject from the narrow standpoint of policy. How far, think you, would christianity have been the seventy disciples or the twelve apostles used for? Christ's teachings must be read in the light of His environments. It is not credible that He would address those who listened to Him in a mere unintelligent jargon of words; and he nowhere made any pretence that He was giving formulas that could be applied to all conditions. There are those of His teachings which the context shows have universal application; others which clearly only had a local or personal application, but Tolstoi and his school take every line and every letter and apply them to conditions undreamt of by the people to whom the words were spoken. Hence the extraordinary positions which their logic—for this class of reasons are logical enough—lead them to assume. They would destroy the family, they would destroy the state, they would abolish property, they would wreck society. Thus they prove that the object of christianity is to bring love and misery instead of peace and freedom to the world. It will get really absurd of the gospels, when it will read the words of Christ as they were spoken, and not as centuries of priests have distorted their meaning, there will then be a second coming of the Master in a splendor, which we can by no means measure now. There is enough in the gospels, if we could shake it clear of superstition and priestcraft, to bring about not only a millennium, but a preannal reign of Christ upon this earth—not a personal reign with an attendant angel—a kingdom in the hearts and minds of men. But the christian non-resistance would not only make the earth not worth living in; they would reduce the race to savagery again, and to such a condition that before another century had rolled around, all that would be left of the creatures created in the image of God, would be two miserable beings seeking each other's life. This is the rational outcome of non-resistance, as advocated by the Tolstoi school, and it is worth a reference to there are some people who take stock in such a suicidal nonsense.

UNCLE SAM BOTHERED.

"The freest and most democratic government, while the fact of the globe" is somewhat disappointed its admirers. Uncle Sam has realized that the people do not rule in his dominions. In Canada or even in England, say some of his papers, a popular verdict of defeat is followed by a reprobation of the government, which is the best holds on. That is, unfortunately for Uncle Sam, the solemn truth, and he is beginning to realize that mischief may grow out of it. That the constitution of the United States is a splendid production no one will deny; but its framers after all know very little of popular government. How could they know? In what school could they have learned. In what school could they have learned to trust the people. There is a good deal of common sense in the electorate, and though they do funny things sometimes, the electors do not in the long run get very far astray. It has been proved time and again, both in England and Canada, that no harm comes from permitting the personnel and policy of the government to respond to once to the expression of the people at large. Until this principle is adopted in the United States they will be very far short of having a perfect system of government. As matters now stand, the extraordinary spectacle is presented by a house of representatives, composed largely of defeated candidates, being about to pass laws, for suggesting the passage of which they were defeated. This is a rather curious sight, and one which is not to be repeated. It is a good deal of common sense in the electorate, and though they do funny things sometimes, the electors do not in the long run get very far astray. It has been proved time and again, both in England and Canada, that no harm comes from permitting the personnel and policy of the government to respond to once to the expression of the people at large. PARNELL still holds on. Worse than this—since the eyes of the nation have been directed to him and his culpability has been proved, he has been taking a holiday with Mrs. O'Shea down at Brighton. He seems lost to all sense of decency. Moreover, he has taken to calling hard names and berating his opponents much after the fashion of an angry fishwife. In the cause of Ireland is so much wrapped up in Parnell that his ambitions are to be considered above everything else, it will be a sad thing for that island. Somehow it always happens that when Ireland is about to succeed in anything, the faithlessness of her alleged champions destroys her cause.

THE EXHAUSTION of the lands of Dakota is beginning to excite attention. In fact it is beginning to look as if Dakota were a failure. Things have been going along very rapidly in the west, and a great deal of country, not worth settling, has been taken up; but the facts are coming to light and the result will be an appreciation of the value of real estate in the east. This will doubtless begin at a very early date. Farm property in the east has probably reached its lowest value, and within a couple of decades will be worth more than ever. This will apply to Canada as well as to the United States, though not perhaps to the same degree.

THE financial crisis in England is over, and the bank of England is reducing its rate of discount. What threatened to be a disaster has proved only a demonstration of strength. At the same time English finances have been taught a lesson, which is that these far away investments, that look so well on paper, are not much in reality. Colonial securities will be all the better esteemed by reason of the disaster that has befallen upon South American credits, and Canada may be able to realize that it is "an ill wind that blows nobody good."

CANADIAN NEWS.

Since Messrs. Cadwallader and McLanahan set Nelson's spirited lines to music, Our Own Canadian Home has become a feature in the exercises of many of our New Brunswick schools. That is a good thing. It is an admirable thing to develop in the young Canadian mind a love of Canada. Let our girls and boys be taught to be loyal to Canada and a great step will be made towards solving the problems of the future; for it is a fact that the next generation of Canadian voters will have to deal with questions which can only be rightly solved by being considered in the light which true patriotism will cast upon them.

THE DEBILITY of having regular market days has been brought under the notice of the citizens. Just before Xmas is not a very good time to talk about this; but after the holidays it would be well to take the question up and examine it from every standpoint. Some very good features can be pointed out in the suggestion; perhaps the objectionable one is the most weighty; but on this point we shall know more when the question has been more fully gone into.

CITY COUNCIL.

Reports Submitted—An Old Time Petition—Work for the Roadmaster.

The town council held its usual monthly meeting on Tuesday last at the city hall, Mayor Allen in the chair, there were present Aldermen Vandine, McPherson, Gillman, McReay, Estey, McNutt, Farrell, Richey, and Beckwith.

The auditors report and monthly account was submitted and passed. The expenditure has been $10,000; the income $10,000; public works $15,000; city hall $10,000; justice $20,000; almshouse $4,000; burial ground $1,000; wharf $60,000; sewerage $10,000; sewerage and water $4,000.

The report of the almshouse committee, showed that the money had been expended for reimbursement on account of hired help had been considered, and that the committee recommended that a cheque for $100 be drawn in favour of that official.

The wharf committee reported that the tenders for stone ballasting near high water wharf immediately below Phoenix Square had been received, and that acting under the authority of the council the contract had been awarded to I. R. Goding his being the lowest bid at $275. They recommended that a cheque be issued for $275, and that the money advanced to take up the coal drift which fell on the 10th November; adopted and passed.

The road committee's report was adopted and passed. It showed that tenders for enough ploughing had been received, and both contracts were awarded to Robert Belyea, whose tender for the upper division of the town was $45, and for the lower $35, and that to the conditions specified had been added, that the contractor shall have snow holes laid at corners by the plough party levelled down and removed.

The petition of J. D. McKay, salmon river for relief from taxes was referred to the assessment and relief committee. The petition of J. H. Reed was reported upon, and the committee stated that although the petitioner had not the slightest legal claim against the city, the committee were satisfied after examining the records, that the claim had never been fairly considered, and being satisfied that the money had actually been expended recommended that a cheque for $30 for repairs to roller be issued. Adopted and referred.

By Alderman McNutt the fire committee reported verbally that $50 obtained for a hand engine had been paid to treasurer. Alderman Gillman reported that $8 had been refunded as over-payment of freight on asphalt. The city treasurer reported that the payment of $48 due from Edgewood & sons on account of the asphalt side walk. The annual report of the school committee was read and passed. It was referred to the school committee to report on and cause to be published.

Moved by A. Estey, seconded by Ald. McPherson that roadmaster McKay proceed at once with the plank walks and cross at Cork alley, Myrshall alley, Barker house alley, Synthe street, Chanery lane, and at the West end.

This concludes the business of the evening which was the best of the evening.

NATIVE WOODS.

A Fine Collection Prepared for the Jamaica Exhibition by a Local Firm.

The visit of the special commissioner of the Jamaica exhibition to this country in September last has been productive of much good in the opening up of closer trade relations with the West Indies.

The desirability of obtaining new and profitable markets for the valuable lumber industries of this province has induced several of our prominent local manufacturers to form a committee to exhibit the products of their industry at the Jamaica exhibition, and among these attractive specimens may be mentioned a collection of native woods prepared by C. Risteen & Co., of this city. All the varieties are beautifully grained and finished in various ways. The famous red pine from the Tobique, useful for scantling, frames, flooring, and inside finish is a most useful wood. The durable white pine for fencing and outside house work; the wood for carriage building; the poplar for balusters, stairs, and posts, together with specimens of spruce are represented in the exhibit. There is the cedar, or arbutus, a very durable native wood, used in the manufacture of sleepers, shingles, flooring and outside building purposes. Another hardy wood is the tamarac for ship's planking, siding and flooring; it is best suited for rough framing and boating; balsam fir and balsam of gilead for ornamental wood work, and the elm for turning purposes.

Three magnificent specimens for ornamental and designing work are the pieces of birch, the hornbeam and curly maple. The ash varieties, yellow, curly, and white for furniture and house finishing; the native oak for carriage purposes; and the white, black, and curly maple, a stiff, heavy wood, used in every variety of the last on the list.

In addition to the above excellent specimens, the committee have prepared a handsome piece of furniture, which, when fitted up, forms a complete office ten feet square. The panels are of birch, ash, maple, beech, hemlock and pine, and are of elegant design and finish. There is also a collection of cedar shingles and spruce clapboards. The exhibit will be forwarded to Kingston, Jamaica, on Monday next, and the exhibition will open on Tuesday, January the 27th of next year.

"Bill, have you dusted the pie?"
"Yes, sir."
"Sponged off the candy?"
"Yes."
"Washed the gingerbread and flavored the marshmallows?"
"Yes."
"Dug the flies out of the lemonade?"
"Yes."
"Hi! la! and gentlemen! Yere's yer nice, fresh confectionery, yer lemonade and yer homemade pie?" Yere—

Count Dillon, general Boulanger's late secretary and personal friend, stated, on his return from British Columbia to-day, that he intends returning with his family to Canada next spring to take up his residence on the Pacific coast at either Victoria or Vancouver, where he has been investing, it is understood, heavily in mining property.

The rats ate it—The treasurer of a county in a western state is $11,000 short in his accounts, and the only explanation he can make is that the rats must have eaten the money. He doesn't drink, gamble, speculate or buy lottery tickets, but the rats seem to have taken an especial delight worrying him.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Summary of the Press Telegrams From all Parts of the World.

W. H. Langworthy, the town clerk and treasurer of Port Arthur, who wandered away a few days ago, was found in an insensible condition in the deserted roller rink.

Thursday evening, at Three Rivers, Ed. Brunelle, who had been absent from his home, returned to find his wife sitting in her chair dead, with crocheting work in her hands. She was struck with apoplexy.

In Halifax a few nights ago a soldier knocked a citizen down and robbed him of fifteen dollars. Another soldier, a day or two ago, robbed the torpedo boats laid up at Halifax, of tea and other groceries and clothing.

Henry Hunter, the only survivor in Canada of the Heavy Brigade, which saved the Light Brigade from annihilation at Balaklava, fell down stairs on Monday night at Toronto, and received injuries which proved fatal.

A sharp line between the N. C. railroad and the Welland branch of the G. T. R. at St. Catharines, has been built at the instigation of president Oille by permission of the authorities in Ottawa and in defiance of the protestations of the Grand Trunk people.

The tank schooner David Sprague has arrived at Yarmouth with a cargo of live codfish and halibut. The vessel is fitted with a perforated bottom through which a constant supply of water is kept up. It was a novel sight to witness the fish swimming about the hold of the vessel.

The cold wave at Quebec, was the severest yet known for this early stage of the season. In exposed situations the mercury fell to 28° below, and seems to be falling lower. The Louis Basin and the river St. Charles have frozen over solid and heavy ice is forming along the shores of the St. Lawrence.

Majr-general Herbert, the new commander of Canada's militia arrived on the mail steamer Sardinian Monday last with Mrs. Herbert. He is a young looking man of easy and tact, with less fuss and feathers than the average lieutenant, and has created a most favorable impression upon those who have seen him in Halifax.

During the last season the St. John athletic club spent some thousands on professional players. The annual meeting has been held, and it is found that the club did well enough financially, but the managers conclude that its course has not been in favor of amateur athletics. Next year the members will do their own playing.

Mr. Saunders, who was investigating in England the prospects for a market there for Canadian eggs and poultry, arrived with reports that an unlimited market existed in England for such products if of good quality and properly shipped. Mr. Saunders sent an experimental shipment abroad of him, which resulted most satisfactorily.

The twelve jurors who found Blanchard guilty of murder, for which crime he was condemned to the gallows at Sherbrooke next week, have forwarded a petition to the governor-general for commutation of the sentence. Blanchard, however, awaits calmly his end and suggests that it would be a salutary lesson for the boys of the reform school here if they could be present at the hanging.

A report is current around Cumberland head, Nova Scotia, that a man was seen laboring under great state of excitement, was seen in the vicinity of the village on the day of the terrible murder and outrage of the McConigle children. It is said that he ran frantically to the river and asked the ferryman to take him across. Being refused he jumped in a boat and crossed himself, hastily disappearing from view after landing on the Quebec side.

The executive committee of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Association have by a vote of eight to six disqualified Jacob Leroux, a famous defender of the Cornwall lacrosse club. Leroux was proved to be an Indian and to have received money for playing with the Valleyfield club in the exhibition match against the Ottawa Capitals. Leroux's disqualification may lead to throwing out the games played by Cornwall in the lacrosse championship series this season.

The midnight express for Toronto was delayed till six Thursday morning. A switchman mistaking her for the Lachine local, she was turned into a siding and the heavy train on to the landing where the locomotive with the engineer and fireman went over the wharf into the river. Joseph Bires, the engineer, was drowned and his body has not yet been recovered. The fireman came up and was pulled aboard the train. Bires was 52 years of age and has been in the Grand Trunk employ since 1858.

One of the biggest blizzards for a long time raged in Montreal Thursday. All the trains were late, traffic was demoralized and roads in some places are impassable. A flood is feared, as ramps or openings leading to the wharves cannot be closed within ten days. The workmen refuse to work owing to the severity of the weather. The water may rise at any moment and flood the business section of the city. The temperature is eight above, with the blowing the snow into great drifts at the rate of forty miles an hour.

There has been a great boom in coal shipments this year from Nova Scotia. The Springhill mine is putting out two thousand tons a day and keeping the International busy rubbing freight. The output at the Joggins double last month and the Minnie mine is being reopened. The shipments from Cape Breton up to the St. Lawrence are the largest in the history of that island, and the demand is so great that the Sydney and Louisbourg coal companies were compelled to open railway lines. Every mine, which has been again closed, for years. They are now considering the "visibility of reopening also the old Lorway m. c."

The new Canadian Pacific railway bridge at Millford, spanning the South river, was open for traffic Wednesday. The span is the largest bridge in the world, and its construction all records in this section. Tuesday evening, W. Brown, telegraph line repairer, of Hamilton, came upon a bear lying between the tracks. The animal was resting quietly and Brown was not aware of what it was until he almost trod on it. The bear did not relish being disturbed and showed fight. Brown had nothing with which to defend himself except his climbing spurs, but by making good use of his legs he managed to distance the brute and reached the station unharmed. Brown resumed work in this section, but was accompanied by a brother climber. Hereafter are much upset by the unusual episode.
