Constable Byrns, who left by Sagona last trip, to make an enquiry into the tragic death of the Libby, which occurred at night. Head Byrns's report will be submitted to the Department in the course of his next days and the result of his investigation must remain a mystery to them. He reports "fairly good" on Labrador, but there was "nothing to fish going" at either Harbor or Grand. He states there was scarcely any hake on the coast this year, due no doubt to the very late coming of the "Silver Wings," a greater proportion than "Over the Hill," at the Majestic Monday. Sept 14.11

THE PENALTY OF THE PEN ARE TRACKED.
Anonymous letters are being written to-day than ever before. This morning a warning verdict of a well known handwriting and forgery expert.
An investigator ascertains in the case whether the recipient of the letter is the person named in the letter, the inquiry naturally being made in one direction, steps being taken to secure an example of the recipient's handwriting.
Tricks That Betray.
This is to guide him, the investigator compares the handwriting in the letter with that in the anonymous letter.
Use the microscope to enable you to detect minute similarities, and use the camera to enlarge and record these details.
The anonymous letter is photographed and enlarged bodily, individual characters in the letter being cut out and arranged in a reference album.
The A's are pasted in one row, the B's in another, and so on. This work of comparing the letters is easily done.
Whenever it happens that the writer of the anonymous letter is given a trifling detail, an uncrossed letter, a letter with a dot, or a letter with a cross, these little details are at once taken note of and compared with the letters in the reference album.
