LAWBUIT ABOUT A LANE.

rought by St. Paul's Church Corporation Against J. Perguson. Monday afternoon the first case called t the assizes was one in which considerable ocal interest has been taken. More than ocal interest has been taken. More than quarter of a century ago Peter Weston, now of Chicago, purchased the northwestern corner of the square on which St. Paul's eathedral stands from the wardens of tha church, and around the square he purchased were lanes leading respectively from Rich mond street and Dufferin avenue. These lanes have now a support of the control of the contro

John Ferguson purchased the lot east of this lane and built upon it soon after Mr. Weston's purchase, and when Mr. Weston's property was sold some years ago Mr. Ferguson purchased and built on the lot west of the lane. Now, it is claimed by the churchwardens that of the entire distance between Richmond street and Park avenue about seyenteen feet was never sold by them, and this suit is to recover possession. them, and this suit is to recover possession of this lane and a portion of the land pur-blased and occupied by Mr. Ferguson. John Ferguson, the defendant, purchased the property from George M. Mann in 1886. He had used the lane between the two lots for a number of years and did not dispute the right of the church to use it, but he claimed the right of way. Messrs. Bayly & Bayly had written to Mr. Ferguson in July, 1890, requesting him to restore to the churchwardens the property he had taken possession of. He had bought the lot and right of way for $1,700.

Wm. H. Weston stated that his father, Mr. Ferguson, the church people and tenants of his father, Peter Weston, had tenants of his father, Peter Weston, had always used the lane in question. James Ferguson said that for the last 25 years the lane had been used as stated by the previous witness. James Smith, teamster for Mr. Ferguson, was of the opinion that the lane was used by the defendant eight or ten times a day. Fred Dickerson stated that the lane had for fifteen years been used by people going to church, Mr. Ferguson and by Mr. Weston's tenants.

Samuel Flory, J. Cook, J. Purdem and John Dodd, builders, had all used the disputed land, entering the lane by Richmond street and going out by Dufferin avenue, Wm. Higby and Jas. THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Is One Party as Bad as the Other?
To the Editor of the Advertisen:
It appears from the public journals of the day, particularly from the Advertisen, that not only a certain class of politicians, that not only a certain class of politicians, that coursely ministers of the gospel also, but not only a certain class of politicians, but several ministers of the gospel also, who have at length decided to "speak out" concerning the recently-exposed rascalities at Ottawa, eliminate all force or sting from their fulmination by either profacing or concluding them with an emphatic assertion that "one party is as bad as the other;" and this they do without, so far as I have seen, producing any conclusive proof of the truth of their indiscriminate charge.

In have seen, proposed the line indiscriminate charge.

Can such a course of procedure be occasioned by ignorance of the history of our country or of the systems of government under which it has been ruled since the conquest, or is it the result of a thinly veiled Tory partisanship?

Which party strove to fasten upon a young and poor province the baneful, not to say intolerable, burden of Church and State establishment, with the full knowledge that an adjoining province was being ground under the heel of an equally relentless one? Was it the Reform party or was it the Tory party?

In order to support the pretension of the existence of an established church in Upper Canada, under whose rule was one McCarthy prosecuted for the oftense of preaching the gospel, banished and subsequently landed on one of the then desolate Thousand Islands to porish from starvation or by wild beasts?

Was it under a Reform Government or a Tory Government that a similar edict of testichment, was pronounced against that or by wild beasts?

Was it under a Reform Government or a Tory Government that a similar edict of banishment was pronounced against that redoubtable Empire Loyalist and British soldier, Major Neale, of revolutionary fame, because he would preach in spite of Tory threats of violence?

Was it a Reform or a Tory Government that refused to allow Methodist ministers to solemnize matrimony, banished Methodist ministers who had so united members of their own flocks, and when, to avoid further misunderstanding on the status of ministers, other than those of the Anglican faith, an act was finally passed according this and other rights to all Protestant churches, which received the sanction of the sovereign himself, at whose instigation did the then governor still further withhold it from the people for another year? Under whose tyrannous rule was the ill-fated Robert Gourley illegally imprisoned and his property confiscated; persecuted, ruined, and finally driven insane? Against whose greed aid oppression had he petitioned the British Government? Does anyone claim, or did any one ever claim, that any one of the villainies perpetrated by Reformers?

seeking favors from their Governments whether they were dock contractors, railway syndicates or manipulators of schemes for artificial waterways? Who can, with the proofs in his hand, point to boodling on the part of the Mowat Administration?

A few years since, in an election campaign, a Toryorator declared his intention to timpeach? a member of the Administration in his place on the floor of the House, and was challenged to do so. Did he fulfill his boastful promise? Why not? There was proof there had been no boodling.

Is it not an incontrovertible fact that nearly, if not, indeed, every good measure which has blessed the country, was either given in its entirety by a Reform Government or carried on so far toward completion that the Tories dared not run the risk of further opposition?

Have not Reform Governments, both the conomical, while Tory Governments have been and are the reverse?
