WEEKLY REVIEW.

Very few changes have occurred in this market during this week. Oats and wheat were about the only kinds of grain that offered in any quantity, and for them there was a good, steady inquiry, and prices were held quite steady. There was a greater variety of offerings than in previous weeks. The range also was wider, but the average sale was no better. Black oats that were black and not brown sold away up, some sales being recorded at $107. The majority of sales of white oats were made from $1 01 to $1 03, and not many loads at the latter. Ordinary black oats sold from $1 02 to $1 05. Sales of wheat were made at a little better prices, red running from 90c to 95c, and white at 95c to 98c.

No barley offered. Corn sold from 90c to $1, according to sample. Peas were scarce, and sold at $1 to $1 10 for good sound peas and 90c for ordinary feeding samples. Buckwheat and Rye-Prices are based on latest transactions, none having been offered for at least a month.

Beans are coming in very slowly, and are sell-Beans are coming in very slowly, and are selling at much lower prices than many expected, 90c to 25c being the ruling price for good quality.

Lamb quiet at 6c to 7c.
Mutton sold at 6c.
Hides brought from 1c to 3c, according to quality. Green calf skins sold at 4c per lb; sheep skins, 40c to 65c, and calf skins, 20c to 25c. Rendered tallow sold at 54c; wool at 18c.

There were very few apples offered; the quality of what did was poor and the price $1 to $1.50 a bag.

Potatoes were more than plentiful and sold at 50c per bag by the load; 50c by the bag.

Hay sales ranged from $7 to $8 per ton; the

At the conclusion of the programme the party amused themselves with various parlor games, which were a source of much enjoyment. The refreshments consisted of pie and coffee. Among the varied and excellent array of pies was one prepared by someone fond of a practical joke, the paste of which was made with flour and water, while between the layers tea leaves were placed. This was only served to the gentlemen. The pie was exceedingly hard and dry, but several disposed of their piece before the joke was discovered, when of course everybody laughed. The committee made excellent arrangements.

Reminiscences of an Old and Respected Citizen.

Visit to Rev. J. H. Robinson, Ottawa.

(Rev. J. S. Ross, of Woodstock, in the Christian Guardian.) During my recent trip on the deputation to interview Sir John Thompson respecting prohibition, I took advantage of the proximity of my old friend, Rev. J. H. Robinson, to visit him. As he has a large circle of friends throughout Ontario, I thought I would share my pleasure with them by dropping you a tew lines. He lives at the Dominion Government Experimental Farm, about three miles from Ottawa, with his affectionate daughter, Mrs. Saunders, wife of Prof. Saunders, the director of the farm. Another old friend, Rev. J. M. Hagar, M.A., pastor of the Ottawa West Church, kindly drove me out. Mr. Robinson is now 86 years of age, and during his active ministeria life was pastor of some of the most important New Connexion Methodist circuits in England, superintendent of missions in four times president of the Canadian Con-

Canada, editor of the Evangelical Witness, ference, editor of the English New Connexion Magazine, and president of the English Conterence. Though weak, he does not realize how really feeble he is. "I can and sleep well," he said, "and feel as though I would never die, except that I am feeble in my limbs." He is totally blind, having cataracts on both eyes. He face is plump as formerly, and of a healthy hue. He takes an interest in all the events of the world, the newspapers being read to him every day. His mind, however, does not long retain impressions, but on subjects of the past his memory is excellent.

I was his pastor for three years at the Dundas Street Center Church, London, Ont. He was such a renowned preacher himself that I always felt mortified if I had "a poor time" when he was present, but I found him a very kind hearer indeed. He had, perhaps, one of the best selected general private libraries in this country. This he was reluctantly compelled to sell when he became blind. He was particularly fond of Carlyle; I rather think he possessed everything he had ever published, and I remember he was particularly interested in learning a few years ago that Carlyle's only remaining sister lived near Hamilton, in the county of Halton. He was a bibliomaniac. A bookstore was his favorite rendezvous. His pocketbook almost invariably succumbed to the temptation of a new good volume in the best binding. Speaking of Carlyle and the Scotch, I remember his telling a story to illustrate the very practical complexion of the Scotch mind. A person had just died during a terrific storm of wind, rain and cold. "Ah me!" his friend remarked, "what an awfu nicht is this to be fleein' thro' the air."

Bro. Robinson was a great preacher-one of the best I have ever heard. His style was original, quaint and vivacious; his subjects were treated in a methodical manner, and his thoughts were lofty. With the cry for short sermons he had no sympathy, and plainly told the people that when he from him. I never heard of anyone stay. ing away on account of his long sermons. Pedestrians caunot been their feet and ferries can barely cross Africa." After one of his masterly sermons Col. Lewis said to me "What a pity he is growing old." Once when he was preaching for me at Pall Mall Church he had a tickling sensation in his throat, which made him cough hard and often, and knowing that the people were saying to themselves, "Poor man, he is near his end," he remarked, "Don't be alarmed about me; I'll live to bury many of you yet." He was particularly impatient with the SARNIA, April 11.—Wm. J. Lee, 20 complaining tone that some superannuated them; that they were now nobodies-so much so that the tone became decidedly funereal, he would jump up and say: "Brethren, this is all wrong. So far as I am concerned they offer me all the preach ing I am able to do; the people are very kind to us; there is no reason why we should not be the happiest men on earth don't let us make a funeral of this part of the meeting." I had prayer at his bedside, to which he responded with many hearty His fine voice is scarcely affected at all, neither does he feel life to be a burden. His daughter provides him every comfort for body and mind. As I was leaving he said, "And so our dear Dr. Douglas is gone from us"; and finally wished me to remember him to his many friends in the West.

My heart warms to these giants of the past-giants in the pulpit, in literature and in debate, and among those who have a deep hold on my regard and affection none will surpass my reverend friend, Rev. Joseph H. Robinson.
