MANY SPORTSLONDON CLUB CURLERS HAVE NOT YET LOCATED A RINK

Meeting Has Been Called For Wednesday Evening, When Several Propositions Will Be Dealt With by Members and Committee in Charge

The London Curling Club will hold a meeting Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock in the Grigg House for the purpose of taking up the question of providing a rink for itself for the coming season. At the present time the club is considering a couple of propositions, but as opinion is divided it has been necessary to call the meeting.

At the annual meeting held a couple of weeks ago, a committee was appointed to look into the matter of securing a rink and since then this committee has been busy. The club can secure the Simcoe skating rink, it is believed, and it is likely it will be rented or purchased. This will be one of the matters brought up at Wednesday night's meeting.

A Bunch of Opinions.

Some of the members are of the opinion that the building in Queen's Park will be good enough if the city council can be persuaded to make a few necessary repairs. Others are of the opinion that the club should play on the Thistle Club, then deal with the other matter early next spring.

Several other opinions have been expressed, and the members have taken so many different views that it is likely several propositions will be dealt with at the coming meeting.

Brantford Will Have Some Time
Trying to Secure Rube Deneau

London Directors Inform Brantford Management They Will Have to Pay Good Price for Local Leader.

Brantford, Oct. 13.—Despite the stories sent out from London a week ago to the effect that Rube Deneau was to be let out by the London management and would next year be the manager of the Brantford Red Sox, it is by no means a certainty that the big fellow will be seen here in that capacity. There are a few obstacles to overcome before he will be in a position to make the jump. In the first place he must secure his release from London, and that will be a difficult matter, according to one of the directors, who dropped off in Brantford on his way home from the world's series games. He says that London will not let Deneau go unless it secures a good figure for him, as he is the only manager who has ever made any money for the club, and given it a winning team, in a number of years. It might incidentally be mentioned that the Brantford club management does not intend to hand out good simoleons for Deneau or any other manager, as it has a number of first-class men in sight who are free to come here for the salary they will receive, without any purchase price being paid.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX
WON WINDY CITY TITLE

Defeated the Cubs in Final Game of the Series by Score of Five to Two.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 13.—The White Sox retained the city championship title today by defeating the Cubs in the sixth and what proved to be the final game of the series, 5 to 2. Opportunity lying on the part of the southerners resulted in this afternoon's victory.

Jim Scott, for the Sox, pitched excellent ball. Although he granted the Trojans nine safeties, he managed to keep them scattered except in the fourth and ninth when they made their only tallies.

Bert Humphries started for the Cubs, but in the fourth round he was touched for three safeties, which netted the Sox three counters. They got two more in the fifth, principally because both Good and Rivers lost flies in the sun. Ordinarily they would have been easy outs, but both Lord and Bodie converted them into doubles, and two more tallies sifted in. The score: R. H. E. Nationals . . . 000 100 001—2 9 1 Americans . . . 000 320 007—5 11 1 Batteries—Humphries, Lavender and Archer; Scott and Schalk.

OLD COUNTRY SOCCER.

London, Oct. 13.—The Belfast cup was played for today as follows: Glentworth 2, Linfield 2. Distillery 3, Cliftonville 2.

Other Clubs in League Will Receive Share of World Series Receipts.

Decided After a Year

Giants Must Fork Up $26,000 For Last Year, and $20,000 For This Year.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, Oct. 14.—One-quarter of the New York National League club's share of the 1912 world series gate receipts must be turned over to the other seven clubs of the league, according to the announcement made last night on behalf of an arbitration board appointed to act on the Giants' protest against the national commission's rule last year stipulating this. Under the rule, the New York club is compelled to surrender also one-fourth of their share of the receipts of the post-season games just ended. The amounts that will thus be divided among the other clubs are $26,000 from last year and $20,000 this year.

Barnard J. York, of Brooklyn, representing the other seven clubs; Cornelius J. Sullivan, for the Giants; and Supreme Justice Carr, as the odd member, comprise the commission. The Boston Americans in 1912 did not dispute the national commission's rule, and divided $26,000 among the other clubs of their league, and the Athletics are expected to apportion theirs within a few days. The $26,000 which the Giants refused to give up last year was set aside in a bank until the dispute was settled.

World's Series Money
Shared With Players

World's Champion Mackmen Get $3,244 Each, While Giants Have To Be Content With $2,160 Apiece.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, Oct. 13.—The members of the New York National League Club received their share of the world series receipts last night, amounting to $50,000. Divided among the 25 players who were eligible to take part in the series, each man received a little more than $2,160, with the exception of Arthur Fletcher, who was handed $100 less, the amount he was fined for arguing with Umpire Connolly during one of the games.

Mathewson and Merkle, the committee who applied for the players' money, presented a statement to the national commission regarding the literary efforts of some of the men. They reported that each player-author who wrote of the series, signed his newspaper contract before the national commission's edict of Sept. 27, placing the ban on writing. The commission had threatened to fine any player who made a contract after that date, and had been withholding the money until proof was furnished that their edict had not been disobeyed.

Today the national commission will hand the world's champions their share of receipts in Philadelphia. The New York Athletics will receive each about $3,244, totaling nearly $81,000.

THE GREATEST "BONEHEAD" PLAY
EVER PULLED IN THE CANADIAN
LEAGUE HAPPENED IN LONDON

BY LOUIS BIERBAUER.
London's First Baseman.

I have often been asked what is the biggest "bonehead" play I ever saw pulled off in the Canadian League. The one I am about to relate is, I think, the worst case of a player losing his head and his nerve that I ever saw in this league. It happened right here in London soon after I had joined the London team three years ago. The player who pulled the "bonehead" was Peacock, who was catching here for a time. London fans remember him, I guess. The play came up in the seventh inning of a game between Brantford and London. We were leading at the time by one or two runs, I forget which. The Red Sox had men on second and third with two out. Big "Happy" Rich was in the box for London, and Peacock behind the bat. Rich shot one across that Peacock dropped and the ball rolled about two feet away from him. The runner on third started advancing. Peacock took off his mask and looked at the ball lying in the dirt. He then looked at the runner coming in and started feeling around in the dirt for the ball, never taking his eyes off the advancing runner. When the player got close to the plate, Peacock grabbed up a handful of dirt and stepped over and touched the man as he scored, the ball lying in plain view just two feet away. The runner on second saw the play and he came right on home. The rest of us were yelling our lungs out at Peacock, but he never made a move to get the ball. He waited until the second man came in and then touched him with the dirt also. That play cost us two runs and the game.

Peacock looked like a good catcher when he played for London. He was a good hitter and a fine thrower. He made a hit with the fans and to all outward appearances was a ball player. In practice he looked like a wonder, but just as soon as he got in a game he seemed to lose his head. I remember another incident at St. Thomas. The game was close and the Saints had three men on bases when Peacock got what ball players term a "throwing bug," and threw the game away. It seemed just as soon as he got the ball he wanted to get rid of it, as though it were red hot. The first ball pitched he threw over my head at first base, although he had no play on me. The man on third scored, the other runner advancing. He was then told to hold the ball next time, as there was a weak batter up. He said "All right," but the next ball pitched he heaved clear over second base into centre field, scoring another man. He did not say anything, but looked at the man on third for a while. He then called for the pitcher to throw. On the next pitch he threw the ball into left field over third base. Three men scored in that inning without a batter hitting at the ball. Peacock was taken out after that last heave of his, and when he was asked what was the matter with him, he replied he did not know. I believe he had an attack of nerves, and I venture to say he will never make a ball player. He tried hard to overcome his nervousness in a game, but could not, and London finally released him. He went out West after leaving London, but I don't think he has tried catching since.

BATTILING NELSON, who, despite his determination to beat Ad Wolgast, was last night outpointed by the former lightweight champion in a ten-round bout at Milwaukee.

McGill Wants to Know How Charlie Gage Got Amateur Card.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, Oct. 14.—The management of the McGill Rugby Club has written to N. H. Crow, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, asking under what conditions Charlie Gage was given a card to play Rugby with the Toronto University team. He was barred from amateur competition in the intercollegiate assault-at-arms, and there is no rule under which he is eligible to play Rugby, the club contends. Gage was played in the game at Kingston on Saturday against the Royal Military College Cadets.
