Saving the Babies

Twenty-two out of every hundred babies born in London die before they reach two years of age.

Isn't it time something was done to combat such a terrible infant death-rate?

Something is being done-done steadily and surelyby the Child Welfare Association. Baby clinics are being held at frequent intervals. Mothers are being instructed in the care of infants. "Save the Baby" is the watchword of this association-and babies are being saved!

The Child Welfare Association is one of the fourteen worthy associations that will be sustained for twelve months by sharing in the budget of the United Welfare Fund Association.

Prices Are Now on Same Basis as Month Ago.

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appears in Canadian Grocer this week: Prices of refined sugar dropped 50 cents per hundred the early part of the week, which brings the price to the same basis as before the advance of four weeks ago. This reduction will hardly affect the trade, as the majority of wholesalers have been selling at irregular prices and generally at the same level as before the last advance. The present reduction is the result of the lower and weak condition of the raw sugar market, and also the fact that refined sugar, in the United States has reached low levels. Raw sugars continue in a weak and unsettled condition and prices show a decline of one-quarter cent below last week's quotations.

Cereals are in a weak position, with lower prices named on rolled oats and cornmeal, Package oats and one brand of corn flakes are also quoted lower. Supplies of shelled French walnuts, both on spot and in primary markets are extremely small, with prices again advanced during the week. Almonds are also in a strong position, and although prices on spot are unchanged, higher prices are inevitable, as quotations are generally lower or close to replacement value. Brazils are weak and lower prices are in sight.

Teas and coffees continue to be strong, with prices in primary markets advanced on all grades. Prunes are easier and lower, but other dried fruits are ruling fairly steady to firm.

Rices are in an unsettled condition, and lower prices can be expected. and lower prices can be expected.

Butter and cheese are somewhat easier, with prices slightly reduced, and as the production is likely to be heavy this season, the tendency is for an easy market for some time. Eggs are in an unsettled condition, principally owing to the export conditions not being any too bright, which, to some extent, is curtailing storage operations.
